FEDERAL SURPLUS OF $245,000,000 FOR FISCAL YEAR

Government Estimate Is Twice as Large as Was Calculated When Year Began.

INCOME TAX RECEIPTS CONTINUE UPWARD

Indications Are That Secretary Mellon Will Favor Cut of $300,000,000 in Total Revenue.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—The Federal Government will finish the fiscal year next Tuesday with a surplus in excess of $245,000,000, nearly $50,000,000 greater than any previous estimate and more than twice as large as was calculated when the year began.

Although three more business days, including today, remain before final figures are computed, official reports up to the close of business last night warranted official statements that the fondest expectations in the matter of surplus had been exceeded.

$1,749,697,000 From Incomes.

Another phase of treasury operations that gave rise to feelings of satisfaction was the continued upward trend of receipts from income taxes. Excluding the last three days of this month, revenue from this source alone aggregated $1,749,697,000, or $89,000,000 more than the estimate upon which the budget was based when the year's appropriations were made. And the final days of the month will see this figure increased for few of the Internal Revenue Collectors have completed their totals on collections for the June 15 quarterly payment.

Despite the reduction in tax rates which have been effective through half of the current fiscal year, total internal revenue receipts are expected to fall only about $220,000,000 below the receipts for the last fiscal year, which totaled $3,975,912,000. Total receipts to June 25 of this year were, roughly, $3,750,000,000.

Miscellaneous Taxes Lower.

Since receipts from income taxes so far are only about $80,000,000 below those from the same source in the fiscal year 1924, it thus becomes obvious that the shrinkage in the revenues has been in the miscellaneous group and as a result of the abolition of certain taxes. Officials, however, have not had time to analyize this phase of the year's business.

As to expenditures, incomplete, but official figures show the cost of government for the 12 months ending next Tuesday will be very close to the original estimate of $3,534,083,000. To date the outgoing totals $3,500,560,000.

Tax Revision Is Sounded.

With the approach of the end of the fiscal year, the subject of tax revision was stirred again among the few officials in the city. Suggestions were made freely that the present law is producing at a greater ratio than had been expected and some officials believed that the reduction in the higher surtaxes already had called forth some capital from hiding.

Although Secretary Mellon will take no steps in calculation of tax rates until the final figures are in, it has been indicated that he will favor a cut of $300,000,000 in the total tax.

TOO PROUD TO BEG, DIES

Man Claiming to Be a Lee of Virginia Starves in New York.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 28.—James Lee of Virginia, 55 years old, who said he was a member of the famous family of that name, died tonight at Bellevue Hospital from starvation. He said he was too proud to beg. A patrolman saw him collapse on the city hall steps at 4:30 o'clock this morning. Lee's clothing was soiled and threadbare but was of good quality and taste.

Two other men collapsed on the streets from hunger during the last 24 hours. They are expected to recover.

"Wolf of La Salle Street" to Be Deported This Week.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICALI, Lower California, June 27.—John W. Worthington, the "Wolf of La Salle street," convicted swindler, who has been confined to his bed in an Ensenada hotel with a dangerous illness since his escape from a Glendale (Cal.) sanitarium 10 days ago, will be deported to the United States early next week, if he is still alive, according to an official announcement here today.

Underwater Sound Telephone Perfected

Will Enable Officers of Two Submarines to Hold Conversations, Naval Research Laboratory Announces.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Announcement was made by the Naval Research Laboratory today that a method for conducting underwater communication by sound telephony had been developed, which would make it possible for officers of two submarines to hold a conversation while far below the surface of the sea.

While details of the invention were not made public, reception of high frequency waves was said to have been obtained by use of the "well known hetrodyne receiving principle."

"Code messages," it was added, "transmitted by underwater sound telegraphy using comparatively low frequency soundwaves is well known, while high frequencies that is, above the limit of audibility of the human ear (about 30,000 vibrations per second) are now being utilized."

SON MAY SEEK SEAT OF LA FOLLETTE

Governor and Progressive Following to Support Robert M. Jr., Newspaper Says.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 27.—The Chicago Journal today published a story saying that Robert M. La Follette Jr., son of the late United States Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, would announce his candidacy for his father's seat in the Senate within a few days.

Primary Election Soon.

The Journal said that a special primary and election will be called soon by Gov. Blaine and that young La Follette, who is 30 years old, would be the first in the field, with Blaine and the La Follette organization behind him.

Blaine would be a senatorial candidate against Senator Irvin L. Lenroot of Wisconsin, in 1926, the Journal story added.

The authority for the statements was attributed to Illinois followers of La Follette.

Mrs. La Follette, widow of the Senator, Robert M. Jr., Mr. and Mrs. George Middleton and Mrs. Ralph Sucher, passed through Chicago today en route to Washington. Mrs. Middleton and Mrs. Sucher are daughters of the late Senator.

The Journal said it had learned that Mrs. La Follette had definitely decided not to be a candidate to succeed her husband.

Opposition by "Regulars."

Young La Follette would not be nominated without a fight, the Journal story added, saying Roy F. Wilcox, former State Senator, and Francis P. McGovern, former Governor of Wisconsin, were mentioned as possible candidates.

Senator William M. Butler of Massachusetts, chairman of the Republican National Committee, who is expected to visit the Middle West some time this summer, will discuss the Wisconsin situation with Republican "regulars" opposed to the La Follette faction, the Journal said.

IMMIGRATION TIDE CURTAILED

Only Three Ships Scheduled to Arrive in U. S. on July 1.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 27.—Immigration Commissioner Curran said today that only three ships bearing about 500 Scotchmen, Swedes and Norwegians, are scheduled to arrive on July 1, with the start of the new immigration year. Two years ago, in contrast, a dozen ships, their steerages filled with aliens, raced into the harbor to land their passengers first.

Explaining why the new immigration regulations prevent any rush of aliens, Curran said: "Everyone must have a consul's visa and no consul may issue in one month more than 10 per cent of the quota for the year. Selection is made on the other side and the flow is controlled there."

FIREWORKS ROUTS LOCUSTS

Vera Cruz Uses a Novel Method to Disperse Pests.

By the Associated Press.

VERA CRUZ, June 27.—Fireworks were used today to disperse clouds of locusts which flew over the city from several directions. About one-third of Mexico is suffering from a scourge of locusts, and the authorities are taking energetic steps to eradicate the pest and prevent serious damage such as has been caused in the past by locusts.

Cab "Comes Back" in London.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 27.—The hansom cab is coming back in London, much to the disgust of the taxicab drivers. American visitors who enjoy the romantic feeling of driving about London in one of these old-fashioned conveyances have had a lot to do with the movement. A year ago, when the revival began, there were only 10 of the old-time cabs left in the streets of London. Now there are about 70. The drivers say their business this spring has been very profitable.

ENGINEER DECAPITATED IN TERMINAL 'PUZZLE SWITCHES'

Body of Pruitt P. Palmer, 42, Found by Crew of Locomotive That Hit Him.

Threading the maze of tracks in the "puzzle switches" of the Terminal yards on his way to his engine at Eleventh street at 10 o'clock last night, Pruitt P. Palmer, a Terminal engineer, was killed by a locomotive which he apparently failed to see approaching.

His decapitated body was found beside the tracks in the yards at Fourteenth street by the crew of the switch engine which knocked him down and passed over him. The engine, its crew related, was running slowly westward in reverse when the fireman, glancing over his shoulder, saw the body beside the track.

A few minutes before Palmer had reported for duty at the yardmaster's office and had started on foot to Eleventh street, where his engine was steaming, ready for him to take out at 11 o'clock. It was in the most complicated track section of the yards, that known as the "puzzle switches," that the westbound engine struck him.

Palmer was 42 years old and lived at 1901A Allen aveune with his wife. He had been an engineer for 15 years.

QUEEN MARY GRADUALLY ALTERING SHAPE OF HATS

Was Recently Seen in One Taller and With Wider Brims Than Prevailing Style.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 27.—Queen Mary is gradually altering the shape of her hats. Although still mainly faithful to the small toque, she has recently been seen in a taller shape with somewhat wider trimmings. The Queen does not, however, follow the prevailing fashion of wearing the hat low on her forehead, but puts it on the old way, straight down on the top of her head, instead of from the back of her hair.

TENNESSEE BAR DELETES SPEECH FOR EVOLUTION

Association Votes, 86 to 53, to Expunge Plea for Theory From Records of Convention.

CHAIRMAN RULES IT IS OUT OF ORDER

Laughter, Pleas and Parliamentary Tangles Mark Debate; Many Would-Be Speakers Refused Floor.

By the Associated Press.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 27.—In a pitched battle where laughter, pleas and parliamentary tangles were the weapons, opponents of Tennessee's anti-evolution bill lost today to the Bar Association of Tennessee.

The score was 86 to 53—the vote by which the association voted to expunge from its records an address by Robert F. Keebler of Memphis, on "the Tennessee evolution law."

Keebler condemned the Legislature which enacted the bill, characterizing the bill as an attempt "half-pitiful, half-ludicrous," to set up by legislation a norm for science which in itself contradicted its asserted purposes.

By agreement Keebler was limited at the start to 30 minutes. When the time limit was reached, and the speaker had but warmed to his subject, a storm of applause resulted in a motion for extension which was granted. Ten minutes later his extension was up and an indicated discussion for further extension was interrupted by a cry from the back of the room:

"When do we eat?"

Despite efforts to restore order the convention's will to adjourn for lunch was maintained and Keebler's address, unfinished, was concluded.

Forestalled by Chairman.

No sooner had the crash of gavel reassembled the association than leaders of the opposition directed the attack. Elias Gates of Memphis projected the meeting into a parliamentary tangle with a point of order that controversial subjects such as treated by Keebler were barred from the association's consideration by its constitution, the spirit of its meetings and the customs of its procedure.

Attempted discussion of Gates' point of order was forestalled and President Lovick P. Miles announced his ruling. "I was chagrined and disappointed," Miles said, "when Keebler read a paper that, instead of being confined to a legal question, discussed a religious issue."

He declared the paper held up to ridicule people of orthodox views and ridiculed the acts of the State's Legislature.

"You cannot discuss the paper he read, or any resolution on this subject without precipitating a discussion unworthy of this assembly; I therefore rule the whole matter out of order," Miles said.

Many Fail to Get Floor.

Members sought the floor to express opinions—some were successful, many failed. Finally opposition to the ruling of the chair brought an appeal from the decision and the vote of 86 to 53 concluded the discussion.

The antievolution act, Keebler declared, "was inspired by religious zealots who believe in the literal inerrancy of the scriptures" and "its object is to set up the scriptural story of creation as against the universal teaching of science."

"If our Constitution means anything," he said, "it means that science must be free to pursue its painstaking researches. Nay, more, the Legislature instead of retarding and making a mockery and caricature of science, must sustain and nourish it."

Declaring that the lawyers, of whatever religious convictions, or scientific beliefs, could not help but be profoundly interested in the legal aspects of the situation, Keebler indicted the antievolution law "as unconstitutional" upon the following grounds:

"It violates the solemn duty imposed by the Constitution of the State of Tennessee on the Legislature to cherish science.

"It violates our constitutional guaranty of religious freedom.

"It violates the fourteenth amendment to our Federal Constitution.

Theory Accepted As Fact.

"Insofar as our university is concerned, it violates the solemn contract between the State of Tennessee and the United States."

The general doctrine of evolution is so pronounced, he said, "that the

MUTRUX FAMILY OF 14 SAILS FOR VISIT TO EUROPE

Honeymoon Trip Delayed 20 Years Finally Started by St. Louis County Residents.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 27.—"Well, we're off at last," said Louis E. Mutrux today to his wife. They were standing on the boat deck of the French liner Paris, glancing at New York's skyline. The Mutruxes hail from University City, a St. Louis suburb. Close by were their 12 children, all going abroad on the honeymoon trip of Mr. and Mrs. Mutrux.

Mutrux is an architect. Twenty years ago when he married he was an artist. He couldn't afford a honeymoon trip then. In the meanwhile, the stork became a frequent visitor to the Mutrux home and it was delayed indefinitely.

Then the Mutrux bankroll augmented until they decided to take a real honeymoon to Europe and have the children go along. The oldest child is 17 and the youngest 7 months.

"Came the time, as they say in the movies," explained Mutrux today, "to go, and here we are, Mr. and Mrs. Mutrux and the kids. And we didn't have to mortgage the old farm to do it."

It required several trunks to care for the family. Three big pieces were utilized for toys, kiddie cars, etc. The Mutruxes will establish headquarters in Lausanne, Switzerland, until their return home.

Owner of Car With Chicago License Leaves Only Champagne Odor Behind.

By the Associated Press.

DIXON, Ill., June 27.—Many corks from champagne bottles and pieces of many glass flasks, found in the ruins of a new Nash car, which was destroyed by fire at an early hour today on the Lincoln highway, east of Dixon, led Sheriff Risley to believe that the car was being used for the transportation of liquor.

The car was destroyed by fire after it had overturned and the two men and two women, who were passengers, and were slightly injured, left town after having their injuries treated by a physician who did not ascertain their names. The plates on the car indicate the license was issued to Edward Wilcox, 3152 West Fifth avenue, Chicago.

INDIAN CHIEF HELD FOR DEBT

Said to Have Jumped Hotel Bills in Italy; Arrested in Switzerland.

By the Associated Press.

LUGANO, Switzerland, June 27.—"White Elk," a big Indian chief from the United States who last year stalked the boulevards of Paris in an amazing head dress and multi-colored raiment, has been haled before a pale-face Justice of Switzerland, charged with not paying his hotel bill.

The Indian chieftain, according to the charges before the court, apparently succeeded in getting the better of Italian and Swiss hotel keepers, failing to pay his bills and obtaining various sums of money for current expenses. Complaints have come from Rome, Florence, Turin, Genoa, Milan, Naples and Venice, but the specific charge made by a Lugano hotel keeper is the only one now under consideration.

10,000 SAIL FROM U. S.

11 Liners Carry Record Crowd, a Majority on Pleasure Bent.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 27.—All records for the number of Americans going to Europe were broken today when 11 big transatlantic liners sailed from New York carrying 10,000 persons.

The great majority of them, according to shipping officials, are pleasure bent, although business men and college students formed a part.

It Takes a Purpose

In life to transform mere existence into real living. And there aren't many more inspiring or more worthy purposes than the acquisition of a home.

The entire family will feel the inspiration of a goal like that. They will all strive earnestly for it and be more united and happier because of their striving and the purpose that lies behind it.

"PERFECT CRIME" PLOT OF STUDENT FOR $50,000 FAILS

University of California Senior Arrested by Detectives Trailing Taxicab With "Ransom Money."

SOCIETY MATRON CALLED FROM HOME

Mrs. Daniel C. Jackling Goes to Hospital in Kidnaping Hoax as Note Is Sent to Rich Husband.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 27.—Bliss Baker, senior at the University of California, student of criminology and writer for his alma mater's daily publication, is in the city prison here while police of the Bay District are seeking to fathom the underlying elements in the youth's plot to obtain $50,000 ransom from Daniel C. Jackling, millionaire copper magnate, through the perpetration of a kidnaping hoax involving Mrs. Jackling.

In a confession he named, as his accomplice and the actual instigator of the plot one "George Beeman," who, he later said, was Russell Crawford, another University of California student.

Baker today admitted that he and his companion had studied in what manner they could carry out a "more perfect crime" than that which led Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold to Joliet prison.

Followed Loeb-Leopold Case.

Baker confessed that he and "Beeman" had followed the Loeb-Leopold case minutely and that it had formed the "inspiration" for the attempt on Mrs. Jackling. Attempted extortion yesterday of $50,000 from the copper magnate, he continued, was but a trial by "Beeman" and himself of their ability to carry out a crime. Others are believed involved in the plot.

In selecting Daniel Jackling and his wife as the victims of their kidnaping hoax, Baker and "Beeman" chose one of California's wealthiest and most prominent families. Their palatial town home here and country estate at Woodside, on the San Francisco peninsula, are show places.

The plot failed yesterday when Baker virtually walked into the arms of detectives. It was shortly before 11 o'clock yesterday morning that Mrs. Jackling was told over the telephone that her sister, Mrs. Rudolph Spreckels, had been injured in an automobile accident down the peninsula and was at the Mills Memorial Hospital at San Mateo.

Telephone Wires Cut.

Mrs. Jackling endeavored to telephone the Spreckels home in Hillsborough, but the plotters had cut the telephone wires leading to it. Mrs. Jackling immediately called her private car and proceeded to the San Mateo Hospital.

Jackling, who was at home when the fake telephone message was received, left for his office shortly afterward. Five minutes after his arrival a telegraph company messenger delivered the extortion note. Jackling read that Mrs. Jackling was held by kidnapers and would be subjected to "exquisite torture" and inoculated with disease germs unless $50,000 was delivered as per instructions set down in the message.

To save his wife from a horrible fate, Jackling was told he would have to fix up $50,000 in $20 bills and deliver the money in a package to a taxicab driver who would be found in front of the Hobart Building within 30 minutes.

Jackling got in immediate telephone communication with Captain of Detectives Matheson and was advised to seemingly go through with the instructions. He sent his office manager to a bank, from which he returned with a package apparently containing money. Jackling's secretary took the dummy package to the entrance of the building.

Police Trail Taxi.

He approached Frank Liebowitz, who had just drawn up in his taxicab.

"Are you waiting for some one?" he asked.

"Yes," answered the taxicab driver, "have you a package for me?"

The secretary handed over the package. The taxicab was driven away, but it was followed by a po-

COL. JOHN COOLIDGE.

DOCTORS TO CONFER ON COL. COOLIDGE'S CASE

Complications in Intestinal Tract Caused Relapse, Says His Physician.

By the Associated Press.

PLYMOUTH, Vt., June 27.—The condition of Col. Coolidge, 82-year-old father of the President, took a turn for the worse today, and he was reported in a serious condition by his personal physician, Dr. A. W. Cram of Bridgewater. The doctor said there was "no immediate danger" of a fatal termination of the illness.

"Complications have developed in the intestinal tract," Dr. Cram was quoted as saying over the telephone in Plymouth. "He has had a turn for the worse and is not feeling nearly as well as usual. He had a bad time yesterday and is far from well today." While admitting alarm over his patient's condition, Dr. Cram was reported as saying he did not believe the issuance of a formal statement was justified. He said that the Colonel's heart action was "about the same, a hopeful sign."

Physicians to Confer.

Asked if he thought an operation would be necessary, Cram replied:

"I cannot tell at this time. The consultation of physicians after an examination tomorrow will tell."

Cram said that he considered the condition of Col. Coolidge worse than it had been at any time in the past, but was "not immediately serious."

"Some little intestinal complications arose yesterday and today," he said, "and this morning Attorney-General Sargent visited Col. Coolidge and was alarmed by his condition.

Special Nurse Sent For.

"He telephoned me at Bridgewater and I came right over. This afternoon he was fairly comfortable, and the heart and pulse were both normal. He developed a slight temperature around 100. I have sent for a special nurse to attend Col. Coolidge and we shall watch his condition closely."

In the absence of Dr. James F. Coupal, physician to President Coolidge, who was expected here from the summer White House in Swampscott, Mass., Cram declined to enter into the nature of Col. Coolidge's condition in great detail.

EARTH TREMORS SHAKE FOUR STATES; SLIDES HEM IN TRAINS

Crowds in Montana Cities Rush Into Streets for Safety—No Loss of Life Reported.

CRACKS AN INCH WIDE IN BUILDINGS

Two School Buildings Said to Have Been Destroyed in Manhattan With Loss of $200,000.

By the Associated Press.

BILLINGS, Mont., June 27.—Sections of four Western states were harrassed by earthquakes for three hours tonight. Just north of Yellowstone Park, at Three Rivers, Mont., three landslides were reported to have hemmed in as many passenger trains loaded with vacationists.

Pavements and buildings were cracked in many cities, half dozen buildings were reported to have been demolished, an electric railroad line temporarily crippled, and there was a recurrence of the recent avalanche at Jackson, Wyo., but nowhere was any loss of life reported.

The Olympian, fast train of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad between Chicago and Seattle, is believed to be stalled between two of the avalanches in the vicinity of Three Forks, and two other trains, one a Milwaukee train and the other a Northern Pacific, are reported hemmed in by the slides.

A special train made up at Livingston is racing to the rescue, but there is reported to be little danger.

$100,000 Courthouse Collapses.

Reports of damage late tonight began coming in. The Meagher County Courthouse at White Sulphur Springs, Mont., collapsed and the damage is estimated at $100,000.

The convulsions of the earth shook two loaded cars of coal from their perch on an overhead dock at Boseman and they ran wild down the incline, piling up at the bottom and bottling up the exit of the roundhouse there. This made it impossible to bring engines out for either emergency or regular use.

Livingston was shaken four times and most of the cities in the danger area reported many shocks. Apparently the shocks began at 6:23 o'clock and lasted intermittently until well after 10. The quake was felt from Seattle east to the South Dakota line; from Spokane south to Thermopolis and Casper, Wyo. It left its trademark in Northern Idaho, and telephone company officials at Jackson shortly after 11 o'clock tonight declared that the recurrence of the avalanche across the Gros Ventre valley, near there, evidently was a part of the general disturbance.

Vacationists Reported Safe.

In spite of the delay caused to trains and the wide area covered by the quake, thousands of vacationists in and near Yellowstone Park are safe, Horace M. Albright, park superintendent, declared late tonight. He reported no material damage had been done in the park. Old Faithful geyser continued to spout serenely and at regular intervals.

Nearly two-thirds of the State of Montana was shaken vigorously by two series of earthquake shocks early tonight, the first at 6:23 o'clock and the second at 7:05. Panic seized thousands of people in Billings, Butte, Anaconda, Great Falls, Missoula, Livingston and Helena and they rushed clear of buildings, fearing for their lives.

Avalanche at Montana Town.

The Chicago Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad's electrified line between Harlowtown and Three Forks, was reported put out of commission by the quakes and an avalanche of unknown proportions was reported at Lombard, Mont. The walls of a hotel in Great Falls cracked, but the building withstood the shocks.

A report from Manhattan said two school buildings there had been virtually demolished and that a theater, a bank and other business structures were badly shaken. It estimated the property loss at $200,000. The entire Gallatin valley was shaken by the tremblors, according to the report.

The Lombard tunnel near Lombard, Mont., on the Chicago,

AMERICAN TRUST AND MILLSPAUGH SUED BY BANK

Republic National Blames Them For Forced Liquidation Last Year—Wants $80,744 Fees Returned.

DAMAGES, ALSO SOUGHT IN SUIT

Officer of American Trust Co. Says It Entered Into Contract at Request of Clearing House.

The American Trust Co. and Frank C. Millspaugh, former State Finance Commissioner, were made co-defendants yesterday in a suit filed in the Circuit Court by the Republic National Bank, which charged that its forced liquidation a year ago was due to a conspiracy between them and other unnamed persons. The petition asked for judgment for $80,774.88 fees received by the American Trust in the liquidation and for damages.

The "run" on the Republic National July 13, last year, which caused it to close its doors the following day, was charged in the petition to have been due to public knowledge that Millspaugh as Finance Commissioner had refused to permit it to change its corporate form to that of a trust company.

Because of the fact that "run" started on Saturday the Republic National was able to tide over that day, but in the realization that it had insufficient funds to meet the demands of depositors on Monday, it appealed to the Clearing House Association for help. There were conferences on Sunday, but the money required was not forthcoming from other sources and at an evening conference a contract was entered into with the American Trust to pay the Republic National's depositors in full and to liquidate the assets to that end.

Terms of Contract.

The petition set out that under that contract the American Trust was permitted to retain 2 per cent of all cash and 4 per cent of all other assets for its compensation in the liquidation. This amounted to more than $80,000, including money paid for attorneys' fees, according to the petition.

In its effort to recover the $80,000, and damages, the Republic National in its petition charged that the liquidation contract was "unreasonable and unconscionable and accomplished by duress and legal compulsion."

Millspaugh appears to have been brought into the suit as a result of negotiations which stockholders of the Republic National had with him prior to the liquidation in an effort to convert the national bank into a trust company, reducing its capital stock from $1,000,000 to $500,000 and providing for a $300,000 surplus. It was alleged that Millspaugh "wrongfully and illegally" refused to approve the plan of conversion.

Suspicion Was Created.

"That unsuccessful effort," it was alleged, "at once became widely known and had the effect of creating unfounded suspicion among its depositors, many of whom thereupon began to and did withdraw their accounts of deposit with plaintiff, and also made imperative the immediate liquidation of plaintiff's assets in order to prevent any loss to any of its said depositors."

In conclusion the petition charged:

"At all said times the said defendants, by and between themselves, and with others, conspired together to and did prevent this plaintiff from reorganizing as a trust company and force this plaintiff out of business, and, also, obtain the good will and business of this plaintiff, together with said $80,774.88, for the said corporate defendant."

S. Mayner Wallace, attorney for the Republic National in the litigation, refused to make a detailed statement of the details of the negotiations with Millspaugh or of the evidence on which he based the allegations in his petition.

"The evidence will be produced in depositions which will be taken soon," he said. "I am informed that Mr. Millspaugh said he appeared to have the privilege of exercising discretion in the approval of the plans for a trust company, and that he would not exercise that discretion to approve the plan.

"I also have been informed that of the business of the Republic National, something like $750,000 has remained with the American Trust Co."

Henry H. Hopkins, first vice-president of the American Trust Co., said today that the contract under which it liquidated the Republic National and paid its depositors in full, was entered into at the request of the Clearing House Association to which the Republic National had appealed for help.

"The liquidation of sufficient assets to meet the payments to depositors was accomplished in less than five months," Hopkins said. "We then turned back to the Republic National assets of several hundred thousand dollars and its building. We feel we performed a good service in clearing the matter up quickly.

"The fee we received was a reasonable one, much less than the costs which would have attended a liquidation through the courts. We feel that our bank earned the fee and we expect to retain it.

"I cannot understand how Mr. Millspaugh's name was brought into this business controversy. No officer nor director of the American Trust Co. ever discussed the matter with him."

Lawyers Retained to Defend Scopes

PHOTOGRAPH shows three lawyers who will be associated in the defense of John Thomas Scopes, the Dayton (Tenn.) high school teacher, who taught evolution in defiance of the Butler law. Darrow was invited to speak at a commencement in Memphis, but later the invitation was withdrawn. Conferences were held in Dayton between the three pictured above, and Dudley Field Malone, also engaged for the defense. The trial is scheduled to begin July 10.

lice car containing three detectives. Near Millbrae, Bliss Baker stepped into the road and folded his arms, an apparent signal for the driver.

The car stopped and Baker drove away in the taxicab. The plan of the police to follow the car to its ultimate destination was thwarted by the development of engine trouble. They were forced to cut short the persuit. Baker was taken out of the taxicab and brought to the Hall of Justice.

Liebowitz told the police that he had been called from his stand at Sutter and Sansome Streets by two men who had engaged him for the trip.

Neither of these men was Baker, the taxicab driver asserted.

Despite Baker's assertion that no actual kidnaping was intended, Mrs. Jackling told the police that she was watched and followed by strange men after receiving the fake telephone message. She said she saw a rough looking man standing nearby and watching her, as she left her home. She noticed a second man regarding her as she stepped into her machine with her maid and chauffeur. He was seated in a big car parked nearby.

Mrs Jackling's car was followed by this machine but she believes the strange car lost her in the traffic, for she did not observe it during the trip to the San Mateo Hospital. Instructions to her chauffeur, changing the course of direction, is believed by Mrs. Jackling to have fooled the driver of the big car.

Crawford was arrested at Redwood City, south of here. Formal charges of extortion are expected to be filed against them this week.

Baker recently won a scholarship entitling him to a year's study abroad. The Bakers live at San Jose, where the father is employed at various fruit-packing plants as a laborer. Mrs. Baker came to Berkeley three years ago, to be with her son and daughter while they attended college, and to earn money to assist them in gaining an education. The daughter is enrolled at a Berkeley business colleges. Bliss was attending summer school in an effort to complete a four-year university course in three years. Mrs. Baker attributed her son's plight to overwork and too close application to his studies. She is bordering on prostration today after visiting her son in jail.

Jackling is a former Missourian and was once an assistan professor at the University of Missouri School of Mines at Rolla. A story in the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine 10 years ago told how he used his knowledge of mining to work the "Highland Boy" copper mine near Bingham, Utah. Others had failed to make the mine pay, but Jackling was said to have realized returns as high as $3,000,000 annually. Mrs. Jackling before her marriage was Miss Virginia Joliffe of San Francisco. The Jacklings were married in 1910.

TENNESSEE BAR DELETES SPEECH FOR EVOLUTION

evolution of man from a lower order of animals is no longer regarded as a theory but as a fact. Scientists differ as to the contributing factors which entered into this progressive evolution of life, but not as to the fact itself."

Resolutions varying from one to declare it the sense of the association that the evolution law should be repealed to one deploring the Dayton case as an effort to advertise the town, and principles were relegated to the discard.

The latter resolution, introduced from the floor late yesterday by Giles Evans of Fayetteville, was expected to precipitate a determined fight today, but it was not called from the table for action when the parliamentary stage was reached for consideration of such matters.

Earlier in the day a telegram was received by Miles from members of the Rhea County Bar Association protesting against adoption of the Evans resolution.

Explains Action on Darrow.

President Miles told the association that his reason for withdrawing an invitation to Clarence Darrow to address the assembly paralleled that which brought about his ruling on Keebler's address.

The invitation was extended, he said, in the belief that such an address would prove timely and appropriate. Several members had made the point, however, that the presence of Darrow, member of the counsel for the defense in the Scopes trial—might be misconstrued and for that reason, Miles said, he withdrew the invitation.

With the evolution question out of the way the convention concluded its business and adjourned. F. M. Bass, Nashville, was elected president for the coming year.

Dayton Rejoices at Bar's Refusal to Take Action on Trial.

By the Associated Press.

DAYTON, Tenn., June 27.—Dayton was jubilant tonight over reports of the action of the Tennessee State Bar association in declining to take action on the Scopes evolution trial.

Dayton citizens and attorneys for both prosecution and defense were emphatic in their statement to the effect that the case was instituted in good faith and that no grounds existed for reports that a desire for publicity was the cause of its origin.

CAPT. NUNGESSER ARRIVES IN ST. LOUIS TODAY FOR VISIT

Famous French Ace to Make Flights Over City in Plane in Which He Shot Down 26 Germans.

Capt. Charles Nungesser, famous French flying ace, who is touring the country under auspices of the National Aeronautic Association in the interests of commercial aviation, will arrive here at 1:30 p. m. today for a stay of two weeks.

Nungesser is officially credited with 44 planes and is said actually to have brought down 105, is bringing with him the Hanriot pursuit ship in which he scored 26 of his victories. He will make flights over the city with the plane during the coming two weeks. He will also address civic and military organizations here on the necessity of developing commercial aviation.

Nungesser is accompanied on his trip by George B. Robeson of Philadelphia and Lieut. Maurice and Sergt. Gaston Cateline of the French Air Service. He will make his flying headquarters at the Lambert-St. Louis Field.

Nungesser will appear at two local theaters next week in a motion picture in which he is starred.

WOMAN POSING AS A. E. F. HERO HOAXES MANY

Weighing 175 Pounds, She Deceived Many in Duplicity Role as Laborer, Adventurer.

FEMININE SCREAM BARES MASQUERADE

Led New Jersey Youth to Believe That Fame and Fortune Were Waiting Them in Sultana, Ill.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 27.—Rene Humbert, a young automobile salesman in Summit, N. J., went West three weeks ago to find a fortune in farm land promised by Frank O'Brien, a strapping person of 175 pounds and 6 feet, who displayed a silver head-plate, supposed to repair wounds from service in France, and talked alluringly of his wealth. It was the long-sought chance, Humbert thought, to assure his mother financial ease in her old age.

Humbert is back at his job as salesman. When he walked into his home in Smmit it was not to tell the waiting mother of wealth, but to tell this:

"Mother, Frank O'Brien turned out to be a woman instead of a hero of the A. E. F. Not only that, but a penniless one, seeking only adventure. Police of half a dozen towns now are seeking him-her. It was all a hoax."

Humbert today told a reporter for the New York World a remarkable story of duplicity by O'Brien. It included the report, unverified, that O'Brien actually was in the army at one time and obtained the service record of a real Frank O'Brien who died.

Fooled Others Too.

The woman-O'Brien, the New York World found, had deceived scores of persons during several years, working as a telegraph lineman a good part of the time and juggling 150-pound coils of wire as easily as the huskiest of men.

"O'Brien came into the Park Garage, where I work, about a month ago," said Humbert. "He said he wanted to buy a car. I gave demonstrations and soon we got to be pretty good friends. He—I'm going to keep calling him Frank—said he had no relatives, but owned a big farm at Sultana, Ind.

"I took him to my home for dinner to meet my mother. He said he wanted someone to run his farm at Sultana and that if mother and I would go out to it he would see that we were fixed for life and establish a trust fund of $10,000 for us. Finally, I agreed to go to Indiana and look it over, it sounded so good.

"We went in my car. When we reached Indianapolis—Sultana was supposed to be six miles away—Frank said he had to go to Fairbury, Ill., to transact business. We went there and stopped at the home of Tom Blakesley, 18 years old, living with his mother.

"Frank" a Woman.

"Frank knew Tom. We had been there four days when Tom told me Frank was a woman. It was not hard to believe, though it astounded me at first. I remembered he had broken into tears during a near accident enroute and had screamed. I noticed then that, despite his terrific strength and his size, there wasn't a whisker on his face.

"I said nothing, waiting to see what his game was. He was well known in Fairbury, Hoopeston and Gibson City, Ill., claiming membership in American Legion posts in all three places. Blakesley told me Frank had told him of service in France and being wounded, and hinted that the army papers he possessed might be someone's else. Frank kept hinting to me of a great secret he held.

"A few days later we went to Indianapolis. On the way we picked up a friend of Frank's, Harold Steavens, 17, of Melvin, Ill. Frank had shown me a letter on stationery of an American Trust Co. at Sultana, signed by a Harry Larsen, and promising to send $2000.

Suddenly Disappeared.

"In Indianapolis Frank disappeared with Harold. I tried to find Larsen, and found there was no town in Indiana named Sultana. I notified the police. They notified Harold's parents and the latter have sent out a general alarm for their son."

O'Brien, both said, always carried an army gun and, reports quoted by Humbert indicate, had made a specialty of luring young men on trips through promises of great reward. Blakesley was promised a college education. In Fairbury and other Illinois towns O'Brien was known as "Frank the Lineman," said Humbert.

In the Western Union cars on a siding at Summit, workers said O'Brien was one of their best linemen.

Humbert said that once O'Brien mentioned serving under a Capt. Grocen of Fowler, Ind., in the Second Division. A telegram to The World from Ralph McNeely, American Legion Post Commander at Fowler, said neither Grocen nor O'Brien was known there.

MOB IN SHANGHAI STONES PARTY OF JAPANESE SAILORS

Police Rescue Visitors Riding in Automobile and Disperse Other Crowds Molesting Foreigners.

FOOD SUPPLIES ARRIVE AT CANTON

Defenses at Shameen Strengthened and Precautions Taken to Prevent Possible Attack.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, June 27. — Five Japanese sailors riding about Shanghai in an automobile were stoned by a Chinese mob today. Police rescued the sailors.

There have been other cases of stone throwing at foreigners today and several times the police have dispersed Chinese crowds hurling missiles at foreigners in street cars.

Police in the French concession have been informed that communists plan attempting to persuade Chinese police in the international settlement to mutiny. The authorities, however, express full confidence in the loyalty of the native police.

20 British Vessels Tied Up at Hongkong as Result of Strike.

By the Associated Press.

HONGKONG, June 27.—The shipping situation continues to be serious here as a result of the strike and desertion of Chinese crews. More than 20 British coasting steamers and ocean liners are tied up in Kowloon Bay. The city generally is calm, although the general strike has disorganized living conditions.

The food situation, so far as the foreigners are concerned, is satisfactory. Meat is plentiful, although vegetables are scarce. The Chinese are worse off. No supplies of fish or vegetables are arriving and the prospect is that none will arrive for some time.

U. S. Consul Tries to Mediate Troubles of Foreigners.

By the Associated Press.

CANTON, June 27.—The American Consul here, accompanied by the commander of the U. S. S. Asheville, called on the Chinese Civil Governor here yesterday, upon invitation of the latter, to attempt mediation of the difficulties between Chinese and foreigners.

The American Consul did not see the Chinese Civil Governor, but was received by his secretary instead. No results were obtained from the conference and the Consul was invited to call again.

The French and British are making further defenses at Shameen, the foreign settlement. The positions occupied by troops and machine guns are well protected. Practically all foreign women and children have left Canton. No further firing has been reported.

Stores at Shanghai Reopen—Customs Revenue Suffers Loss.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, June 27.—With the exception of shipping, the strike situation was improved here today. Eighty per cent of the stores, closed during recent disturbances here, have reopened. Those remaining closed are apparently bankrupt.

The shipping strike is causing heavy loss to the Chinese customs revenues and is severely affecting British and Japanese trade.

Fifty representatives of Chinese students' unions from various parts of the country, meeting here yesterday, adopted resolutions urging the Canton government to take military possession of Shameen, the foreign settlement at Canton.

Protest in Hankow Against Borah's Statement.

HANKOW, China, June 27.—The American Chamber of Commerce here has adopted a resolution depreciating the recent utterances of Senator Borah on the Chinese situation as calculated to embolden the disruptive elements "at a time when the Moscow international is concentrating in the east with a view to creating chaos."

Borah Says C. of C. in China Part of Imperialistic Combine.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Replying to a resolution adopted by the American Chamber of Commerce at Hankow, criticising his recent utterances on China, Chairman Borah, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, declares today that the Chamber was "a part of the imperialistic combine which would oppress and exploit the Chinese people and charge the result of their offenses to someone else."

"They are perfectly willing," he asserted, "to continue, in connection with others, these exploitations and they care very little if it drags the American people into war and sacrifices thousands of our people."

"In making the former statement, I expressed my personal views, but I am prepared with the facts to disclose a condition of affairs which would be exceedingly distasteful, in my opinion, to the American Chamber of Commerce."

New York-Chicago Night Air Mail Orders by Radio

Wireless Masts Are Located at Each of Five Stations to Be Used in Service Starting Next Wednesday.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 27.—Radio will figure prominently in the opening Wednesday of the first New York-Chicago overnight airmail service, postal officials announced tonight following conferences here. The five main fields on the route, Hadley, at New Brunswick, N. J., Bellefont, Pa., Cleveland and Bryan, O., and the Maywood field near Chicago are equipped with radio masts, and all ships of the air mail service are dispatched in and out by radio. Formal service orders are handled in the same fashion. An experimental radio set has been carried for some time on one of the planes operating out of Omaha, but it is not known yet whether the Chicago-New York planes will be similarly equipped in the near future.

Each emergency field is connected by direct telephone wire with the nearest terminal field. Should it become necessary to warn a pilot or call him down from one of the emergency fields, he will be signalled brilliant red magnesium flares; two flares mean "alight and wait further instructions;" one means "bad weather ahead; exercise caution."

On the opening night a radio program will be broadcast by station WHT in the Wrigley Tower. Col. Paul Henderson, assistant postmaster general, will deliver a radio address at 10:30. He will be at the field at 8:30 to supervise the departure of the planes.

Fifty thousand candlepower beacon towers have been placed along the route, especially in the 30 miles of heavily timbered Blue Ridge mountains west of New Tripoli, Pa., reported to postal authorities to be the most dangerous flying country in the world.

Mail arriving at New York by air will be already sorted for the various postal stations. Sorting will take place on a truck between the Chicago post office and the flying field.

To expedite further the transit of mail, letters may be sent special delivery. But all should be marked "via airmail" or bear red and blue lines, postal officials have warned.

FIVE WOMEN ARRESTED IN FIGHT BETWEEN NEIGHBORS

Grandmother, 68, Among Those Charged With Assault to Kill in County Case.

Troubles of the residents of a two-family flat at 6344 Etzel avenue, Wellston, which terminated in a free-for-all fight yesterday afternoon in which a 68-year-old grandmother was one of the participants, will be aired this week in a Justice court at Clayton.

Just what started the encounter, in which women predominated, is a question. Mrs. Fannie Blanton, one of the participants, said while being booked in the Sheriff's office at Clayton last night on a charge of assault to kill, that repeated singing on her back porch by the residents upstairs of a parody on "Oh, What a Pal Was Mary," brought on the trouble.

Mrs. Lizzie Trimble, leader of the opposition and the only one to suffer other than minor scratches in the fight, said it resulted from her taking the side of another neighbor of Mrs. Blanton in a similar affray last week. She has a possible skull fracture.

Besides Mrs. Blanton and Mrs. Trimble, those arrested on cross-charges of assault to kill were Mrs. Mary West, 68, mother of Mrs. Blanton; Miss Mary Blanton, 16; Mrs. Anna Prete, Bud Harris and Oliver Noonan. The last three named are neighbors and are alleged by Mrs. Blanton to have assisted Mrs. Trimble.

OPENING OF "WHITE WAY" ON NORTH GRAND CELEBRATED

Lighting Project Costing $9000 Financed by Business Men; City to Reimburse Them.

A public celebration was held last night in recognition of the installation of a "White Way" on North Grand boulevard from Harper street to Montgomery street, 12 blocks. Electric lights were turned on for the first time at 8 p. m. by Director of Streets and Sewers Brooks, who addressed the gathering.

The project is a part of the street lighting program made possible by the voting of $8,000,000 for that purpose in the $87,000,000 bond issue in 1923. Cost of installation of the lights, which are about 60 feet apart, was approximately $9000. Property owners in the district financed the installation and will be reimbursed by the city.

Last night's program was in charge of the North Grand Avenue Business Men's Association and was held on Grand between Dodier street and Sullivan avenue. The street was roped off and dancing followed the speeches.

"SLIPPERY SOPHIE" BECKER AGAIN JUMPS HER BONDS

"Slippery Sophie" Becker, who has jumped bonds in Baltimore and New Orleans, has slipped away again and is sought by St. Louis police and her local bondsmen, who will have to forfeit $5000 bond unless she appears before Judge Gayer in the Court of Criminal Correction July 22 to answer two charges of stealing purses from women in a downtown department store May 18.

"It is our opinion that she will not appear," Chief of Detectives Kaiser wrote yesterday to the Chief of Police of Baltimore, who had written that $500 had been spent to bring her to trial there on seven charges of stealing purses from women. She jumped bond on those charges.

A patrolman and a policeman were sent from Baltimore to await her release last September from a jail sentence in New Orleans. Against the instructions of a Federal Judge to whom application had been made for a writ of habeas corpus, she was admitted to bail and jumped bond again.

NEW YORK, June 27.—Twenty boys, chosen from 11 States by the Young Men's Christian Association, today sailed on the steamship Adania for Europe on a "world friendship tour." The boys will have audiences with President Von Hindenburg of Germany and the Presidents of Poland and Czecho-Slovakia. They will visit most of the European countries in the three months' tour.

MACMILLAN'S EXPEDITION SAILS FOR LABRADOR

First Stop Is to Be Battle Harbor, Where Explorers Will Take on Supplies for Aviators.

By the Associated Press.

SYDNEY, N. S., June 27.—Commander Donald B. MacMillan's American Arctic expedition on the schooner Bowdoin, which since Tuesday has been taking on fuel here after completing the first lap of the journey from Wiscasset, Me., today sailed for the north.

The steamer Peary, held back while her glass port holes are being covered as a precaution against ice jams, probably will follow the Bowdoin tonight.

The next stop for both ships will be Battle Harbor, Labrador, where native Eskimo clothing and boots for the naval aviators in the expedition will be taken on.

Aboard the Bowdoin is Dr. Wilfred Grenfell, founder of a chain of missions on the Labrador coast. Dr. Grenfell had intended returning to his missions by way of Newfoundland when invited by Commander MacMillan to sail with him.

Peary in Wake.

Before sailing, MacMillan said the Bowdoin would be followed by the steamer Peary, "fully equipped for exploration and scientific study of new northern lands, with the aid of new methods, such as airplanes, radio and color photographs and with a support which places all of us on our mettle." He asserted that the expedition expected to be at all times in contact with civilization by radio.

"The splendid co-operation of the United States Navy and our preparations had a dramatic climax when the U. S. Putnam overtook us at Sydney with additional radio apparatus sent us by the personal order of Secretary of the Navy Wilbur," said Commander MacMillan. Commander R. E. Byrd, in charge of navy planes and personnel, and his associates of the navy, have accomplished a work in preparation which challenges admiration for their technical ability and superb efficiency and enthusiasm.

Appreciates U. S. Aid.

"We are conscious of a high responsibility when the United States Government gives us its support and when we set out under the auspices of the National Geographic Society, with its world-wide membership of a million enthusiasts for geography and exploration and when its president, Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, honors us by his presence and aid in our final preparations.

"Our experimental work with the radio under the direction of Commander Eugene F. McDonald Jr., president of the National Association of Broadcasters, has shown splendid results and indicates we will at all times be in daily contact with civiliaztion.

"We are also grateful, as many American Arctic expeditions have had cause to be, for the co-operation and hospitality of the people of Sydney and Cape Breton Island."

MELLON REPORTED PLANNING TO QUIT CABINET POST

Congressman Burton of Ohio Is Mentioned as His Successor as Head of Treasury.

ACTION TO AWAIT TAX LEGISLATION

Leaders Oppose Move, but Secretary Is Said to Feel He Should Devote Time to Private Business.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon plans to resign as soon as the new revenue bill is passed, according to rumor current in Washington. Representative Theodore E. Burton of Ohio is listed to succeed him, according to the same report which is credited on Capitol Hill.

This is the only cabinet change under contemplation at the present time. Reports that Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg would resign after a short period in the office are denied upon excellent authority and Kellogg plans to remain in his present post indefinitely.

The change affecting Mellon is one that has been under consideration for some time. Secretary Mellon is in his seventieth year and is one of the richest men in the United States, as well as one of the wealthiest in the world, he has many private interests which he has been compelled to neglect on account of his official duties.

Leaders Oppose Plan.

The Treasury chief, it was understood, planned to resign last year, but the inauguration of the Couzens investigation induced him to change his mind because he did not wish to retire under fire. The fact that the tax legislation which he inaugurated in the last Congress was not passed as he desired, also induced him to retain his post with the view of finally accomplishing the degree of "tax reform" to which he is committed.

His present plan to resign is being combatted by administration leaders. While the decision is tentative, it is understood that Mellon has told his friends he believes he has earned the right to retire and while he enjoys some phases of public life, there are others which do not appeal to him in the same degree.

Mellon's close friends point out the final passage of the revenue legislation of this year, provided it embodies the ideas which Mellon advocates, notably reduction of surtaxes and elimination of the Federal Government from the inheritance tax field, would furnish the logical time for Mellon to close his official career.

Burton Logical Choice.

It has been Secretary Mellon's ambition to meet the problems of the post-war period in financing the affairs of the Government, to reduce taxes and to fund the foreign debt.

The report that Representative Theodore Burton will succeed Secretary Mellon in the event Mellon carries out his desire to resign, is regarded as a logical choice. Although advanced in years, Burton is in good health. He was temporary chairman of the Cleveland convention which nominated President Coolidge. He is a member of the Debt Funding Commission and represented the administration at the recent Geneva conference. He "goes along" with the President. Burton was formerly Senator from Ohio.

BOOTLEGGER SEEKS WRIT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 27.—[illegible] Sisson, sentenced to three years in the penitentiary from Franklin County, on conviction of selling one-half pint of moonshine whisky, today filed a petition in the Supreme Court for a writ of habeas corpus, to obtain his release on bond, pending an appeal. Sisson was convicted on July 22, 1924, but was released on $1500 bond when he took an appeal. His bondsman withdrew later and Sisson was brought to the penitentiary early in March.

Italian Wheat Crop Forecast.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, June 27.—Estimates presented to Cesare Nava, Minister of National Economy, by the Foreign Statistics Office, place the Italian wheat crop for 1925 at 61,000,000 quintals, as against 15,000,000 quintals in 1924. (A quintal is equivalent to about 100 pounds). The estimate is about 14,000,000 quintals more than the average for Italian wheat crops.

U. S. AGENT RUNS INTO ROUGH TREATMENT

Alleged "Dope" Seller Bites Him in Arm and His Wife Lands Chair on Head.

Andrew Keehn is a Federal narcotic agent who does his duty sometimes by disguising himself as a drug addict and mingling with the users of narcotics. Last night he had an adventure.

Information had come to him a few days ago that narcotics were being sold at 1620 Wash street, so he let his beard grow and dressed himself in the typical rags of an addict and paid a call at that address. With trembling hands he passed two $1 bills to James Richey, a resident there, and received a package of morphine, he said.

Last night he paid another visit in an effort to learn where Richey stored the drugs. He paid $2 for more morphine, he related, and arrested Richey, opening the shabby coat to show his gold agent's badge.

Richey refused to stay arrested. As he was being led through an alley he turned on his captor and bit him in the left arm. The struggle continued and a crowd of negroes watched, without aiding either the ragged stranger or Richey. Then Richey's wife, Anetta, appeared with a chair, which she swung against Koehn's head. Richey released himself and heaved a brick at Koehn, then fled into the house with his wife.

When Koehn and other agents who had been waiting in the neighborhood entered the Richey home, Mrs. Richey was there, but professed not to know where Richey was. The agents opened a trap door leading to the attic and found Richey concealed there. He and his wife were arrested.

FUNERAL OF W. F. FUNSTEN TO BE HELD TOMORROW

Head of Wholesale Fur House Died Suddenly in Hotel Barber Shop.

The funeral of William F. Funsten, 70 years old, for many years president of Funsten Brothers & Co., wholesale fur house, who died suddenly of heart disease yesterday morning, will be held at 4:30 p. m tomorrow from the family residence, 5915 Cabanne place, with interment in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

He had entered the barber shop of the Hotel Jefferson at 8:30 a. m. yesterday and sat down to wait his turn. Barbers and customers noticed that he seemed to have fallen asleep. Dr. James Stewart, Secretary of the State Board of Health, who chanced to come in, at once examined Funston and found him dead.

Funsten was born in Alexandria, Va., and attended the Episcopal High School there. He came to St. Louis and began his business career in 1881 in the dry goods business. With his brother, R. E. Funsten, he founded the fur company bearing his name and served as its president until 1907 when he retired to devote his time to travel. In 1886 he had married Miss Alice Forbes, who died in 1921.

He is survived by his brother, a son, Kenneth M. Funsten, and a daughter, Mrs. Alfred W. Brown.

Skeleton Under Chicago Street.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 27.—A laborer working on the conversion of old South Water street into Wacker Drive today was digging in a 20-foot caisson when his pick struck something soft. He found a rotting oaken coffin containing a skeleton, buried beneath what has long been a teeming street of commission merchants in the heart of Chicago.

The skeleton was taken to the morgue. It is believed to be the body of an early homesteader, who until today has slept undisturbed beneath the tumult and traffic of one of the noisiest and busiest streets of the city.

ONE TO 10 YEARS FOR PLOTTING TO MURDER WIFE

Charles B. Davies of Concordia, Kan., Taken to Prison Immediately After Sentence.

GUILTY PLEA WAS URGED BY RELATIVES

Defendant Had Previously Contended Confession in Case Had Been Wrung From Him by Officers.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CONCORDIA, Kan., June 27.—Charles B. Davies pleaded guilty today in the Cloudy County District court of assault with intent to kill in connection with an alleged attack October 14, 1924 upon his wife, Mrs. Mabel Davies. After committment papers had been issued, Davies entered a motor car driven by an old friend, Dr. H. E. Doty, and started to the penitentiary at Lansing, Kan. He also was accompanied by his brother, Harry Davies of Omaha, and Sheriff A. J. Karsenbrock.

Davies arrived at the prison at 8 o'clock. He plainly showed the strain he has been under during the past week, appearing nervous and exhausted as the steel gate clanked behind him. He immediately was dressed in. Tomorrow Davies will rest. Monday he will be assigned to work in the twine plant. Generally when a prisoner is received he is given employment in the prison coal mine, but Davies' health and his advanced years were taken into consideration in assigning him to an easier task.

The sentence imposed by Judge J. C. Hogin was confinement in the State penitentiary from one to ten years. After he has served one year, Davies will be subject to action by the State Parole Board.

Davies informed the court he had nothing to say before sentence was pronounced. The prisoner was calm, and walked directly to the waiting motor car, entered and was taken away. Several persons were in the court room, men who had been closely associated with the accused man in the years he has been Secretary of the Elks Lodge. A few went to Davies and shook hands after he had been sentenced.

Plea Urged By Relatives.

Mrs. Davies had not seen her husband since he signed an alleged confession Monday. Relatives prevailed upon Davies to plead guilty to quiet the case probably because of his 83 year old mother. Davies attorney, Frank C. Baldwin, would not consent to a plea of guilty until the last minute, when he acceded to the request of relatives.

Davies declared he would stand trial until his brother, Harry Davies, arrived from Omaha. The brother cited the mother's age to Davies and convinced Davies he could not break down the confession he made.

So far as known, Davies had never admitted any absolute agreement between himself and Kansas City gangsters for them to kill his wife in return for payment of money. He has declared the negotiations with the gangsters started with a bootlegging scheme.

Dupe of Blackmailers.

The Davies home was known to be unhappy. He became the dupe of blackmailers, and gave them money to keep them from informing his wife of the negotiations. Davies has said he did not know the men who slugged his wife and himself, and robbed them. So far as known, no motive has been attached to the crime to which he pleaded guilty today. His wife had inherited about $17,000 from her father several years ago. If any motive could be attached, it would be the desire to obtain the money. However, Mrs. Davies had her property in her own name, and did not consult her husband in any business deals.

Davies had been a heavy drinker, Dr. Doty, his family physician, said Davies was drunk at 11:30 o'clock Monday, when he gave him treatment in his office. Davies took other drinks of alcohol mixture, and was called to the County Attorney's office at 1 o'clock for the questioning, which resulted in a confession.

Davies still declared last night that the alleged confession had been "wrung from him." His brother, Harry, ascribed his mental condition to excessive use of liquor.

Was Out on $5000 Bond.

Davies was arrested Monday night and lodged in the county jail. At a preliminary hearing Wednesday, he entered a plea of not guilty and was released on $5000 bond. His preliminary hearing then was set for July 14 when it was indicated that his attorneys might consider entering the plea of insanity.

Held in the county jail here are four men and a woman, arrested at Kansas City last Tuesday as alleged participants in the murder plot. They will be given a preliminary hearing July 1.

Pat Bird and S. M. ("Cotton") Jones, alleged bootleggers and gunmen of Kansas City, also are implicated in the affair. Bird was released on bond, while Jones is being held in the county jail there Both refused to waive extradition

Coolidge Visits Graves of Immigrant Ancestors

Motors From Swampscott to Cemetery Near Boston and Finds Markers of Couple Who Died in 1691

By the Associated Press.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., June 27.—Giving himself over today entirely to recreation and rest, President Coolidge made a pilgrimage to an old graveyard near Boston where three of his ancestors were buried more than two centuries ago, and paid a fleeting visit to historic points along the way.

By motor, leaving White Court early in the morning, he passed through Massachusetts towns whose early history is entwined with happenings during the Revolutionary war, and before. Skirting Cambridge common, where George Washington took command of the Continental army, the President drove on to Watertown and there spent half an hour inspecting weather worn tombstones in the old Arlington street cemetery.

In the graveyard the President found slabs marking the resting place of John and Mary Coolidg, who died in 1691. They were the first of his family, Mr. Coolidge told those who accompanied him, to settle in the United States. The other forbear buried there was Simon Coolidg, who died in the early eighteenth century.

The three stones showed by their almost undecipherable markings that a number of Coolidg's had been buried there but the President said that so far as he knew, none but three was of his direct line.

The President read with interest the various inscriptions on the grave markers, caling attention to a changed spelling of his family name. Starting off with Coolidge, it varies through succeeding generations to Colidg, Collidg, Coolidg, Coolig, Coolige and finally to Coolidge. He pointed out that some of the ancestors of the late President Garfield, were buried in the cemetery, the name on the tombstone being spelled Gearfield.

The President was accompanied on his trip by Mrs. Coolidge, Secretary and Mrs. Sanders, Dr. James F. Coupal, his physician, and the two White House aides, Col. Sacheney, and Capt. Adolphus Andrews, and more than a score of newspaper reporters and photographers whom he had invited to accompany him.

Returning to Swampscott, the President paid a brief visit to the Belmont Country Club, of which he is a member, and where he played the few games of golf he ever attempted.

Late in the day the President, accompanied by his friend, Frank W. Stearns, took another brief automobile trip.

EARTH SHOCKS IN FOUR STATES; THREE TRAINS HEMMED IN

Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway collapsed.

Preceding the first shock at Anaconda was a severe electrical storm. Six persons were stunned by lightning. No damage underground was reported at Butte from the mines.

Patients in a hospital at Three Forks were taken to a place of safety. Some minor injuries were sustained in the rush.

Willowcreek, a town of 300, near Three Forks, is on fire, says a report from Great Falls.

There was no material damage to Yellowstone Park, Superintendent Albright reported. He said reports indicated the quake diminished in intensity as it moved south.

Policemen in Livingston said the tower of a high building there swayed with an arc-like movement. Mony women fainted there.

Helena and Bozeman felt shocks at 8:37 and 8:40 p. m., respectively.

A telephone operator at Boseman reported that a school building and a bank building at Three Forks collapsed from the earthquake. Livingston was still reporting shocks at 8:40.

Pavements and buildings in Livingston were cracked, the openings varying from a crack to breaks nearly an inch wide.

Substations along the Milwaukee Railroad's line along the mountains were damaged. Most of this damage is believed to be in the vicinity of Three Forks.

By the Associated Press.

BUTTE, Mont., June 27.—The most violent earthquake in the history of Butte rocked the city at 6:23 o'clock this evening.

Before the first shock ceased hundreds of persons rushed into the streets. Numerous chimneys were toppled, clocks stopped and other damage was done to households. No damage was reported from the mines, where thousands of men are employed underground.

By the Associated Press.

HELENA, Mont., June 27.—Two distinct earthquake shocks were felt here at 6:23 and 6:25. The people poured into the streets and for a time excitement prevailed.

Most Severe Shocks in U. S. Since 1906 Recorded at St. Louis U.

The most severe earthquake shocks in the United States since the California earthquake in 1906 were recorded last night on the seismograph at St. Louis University, Brother George Rueppel announced last midnight.

Shocks were first recorded at 7:25 and the main shock occurred at 7:30. Vibrations continued until after 8 p. m. and a few tremor started at 8:13 and continued until 8:35 p. m.

The distance of the shock was recorded as about 1200 miles northwest of St. Louis.

Part of Mountain in Wyoming Is Rolled Into Valley.

BUDAPEST, June 27.—Two violent earthquake shocks were registered this morning at Nagy Kanizsa, 120 miles southwest of Budapest. Several houses were wrecked and a number of people were injured.

PLAN FIGHT TO BAR CAPITAL K. K. K. PARADE

Foes of Hooded Order Unite to Protest Against Permit Issued at Washington.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Spirited Ku Klux Klan developments are expected here from before Aug. 8, the date fixed for the grand rally, and demonstration of 200,000 nights under the very shadow of the Capitol. A great deal of resentment over the granting of the permission for a parade is being manifested here.

Today foes of the "Invisible Empire" got together and decided to make a fight to have the permit given by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia withdrawn. The anti-Ku Klux Klan League of America, formed under the auspices of the Protestant Knights of America, and comprising four divisions—Roman Catholic, Protestant, Hebrew and Colored—is ready for a determined protest against the program of "Imperial Wizard" Evans.

Thomas L. Avaunt, founder of the Protestant Knights of America, is directing the opposition. He said today that a bullet, fired from ambush at him here the other night, was from the gun of a klansman and that klan leaders are trying to "get" all enemies of the klan. It is understood that Avaunt was once a trusted klansman. No shooting, as he mentioned, was reported to the police.

Onlookers here believe that trouble is brewing between the hooded order and its opponents. Much feeling has been engendered over the announcement of the purpose to rally the klan in the national Capital.

Efforts have been made by William H. Anderson, former superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, to interest high officials of the Ku Klux Klan here in the new dry and Protoestant organization, which he launched in the Empire State recently. It was learned today that the former New York dry chief has directed several communications to the propagation department of the klan, suggesting that the aims of the two organizations parallel and soliciting aid from klan officials in promoting his latest adventure.

HOCKING VALLEY OPPONENTS OF BIG RAIL MERGER LOSE

Minority Stockholders Tried to Prevent Amalgamation With the New Nickel Plate System.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., June 27.—Minority stockholders of the Hocking Valley Railway Co. lost today, in their action to prevent that company from entering the Van Swerингen-Nickel plate merger, when Judge Daniel H. Sowers of the Franklin County Common Pleas Court sustained a demurrer to the petition they filed several months ago to prevent the merger.

The minority stockholders, in their petition, maintained that the amalgamation of the Hocking Valley with the new Nickel Plate system, as proposed by the Van Sweringens, was for the purpose of "milking" the Hocking Valley road of its profits for the assistance of the Erie and other "lean" roads included in the proposed combination. In this connection they asserted that the Hocking Valley had earned 21 per cent on its capitalization last year.

AMUNDSEN DUE TO ARRIVE HOME ON WEDNESDAY

Great Celebration to Be Given in Honor of Norwegian Explorer and Aids at Oslo.

ELLSWORTH WILL SAIL SOON FOR U. S.

Explorer's Lecture Tour in America to Follow Soon After Welcome in Homeland.

By the Associated Press.

TROMSOE, Norway, June 27.—Capt. Roald Amundsen and Lincoln Ellsworth, and their colleagues on the North Pole airplane expedition are homeward bound from King's Bay, Spitzbergen, aboard the Norwegian steamer Albr W. Selmer. Although the vessel is able to make 10 knots, it is not likely she will reach her destination, Greaker, near Fredrikstad, before Wednesday. She is heavily laden with a cargo of coal, in addition to Amundsen's plane and the two relief planes, which were taken to Spitzbergen after nothing had been heard from the expedition.

Beyond a brief call at Loedingen, Northern Norway, there has been no halt en route and no intermediate welcomings to detract from the great national reception awaiting Norway's popular hero in the capital.

The moment the Albr W. Selmer weighed anchor, after taking the explorers aboard at King's Bay, a salute was fired by the Government steamer Heimdal. All the spectators joined in singing the Norwegian national anthem. Amundsen stood bareheaded on the bridge of the steamer.

Memorial Stone Planned.

Up to the moment of sailing he had been busy replying to hundreds of congratulatory messages. He also insisted on supervising the transfer of the expedition's property from the hold of the steamer Hobby to the Selmer. On his last day at King's Bay he tramped with Coal Manager Knudsen to the spot from which he made his first start toward the North Pole. Knudsen proposes to mark the spot with a memorial stone.

Public receptions and a dinner at the Royal Palace await him and his companions upon their arrival. The airmen who were to search for the expedition, by a change in the program, have been deprived of the coastwise flight they intended to make from Tromsoe to Horten. Instead, they will reach Oslo with Amundsen to share in the popular enthusiasm.

Great popular festivities have been arranged for July 5, on the grounds of the old fortress of Akershus. Amundsen will give a brief account of his airplane journey over the polar waste. All the speeches will be broadcast. A male chorus of thousands of voices, drawn from the various singing societies, will give a concert.

To Lecture in U. S.

In a message by wireless to the Aftenposten, Amundsen says he will give his first lecture on the expedition in Oslo, after which he will leave for the United States on a lecture tour.

Lincoln Ellsworth, the American member of the expedition, will leave immediately for the United States, while Hjalmar Riiser-Larsen and Leif Dietrichson, who piloted the two planes of the expedition, will lecture in European cities.

Amundsen, in his message to the newspaper, characterizes long-distance flying in the Arctic as too risky, because of the chances of meeting such ice conditions as he encountered. But, he adds, observations by means of instruments were not difficult to obtain correctly.

He declines to state as yet whether he will be a member of the proposed German airship expedition to the North Pole in 1926, under Dr. Hugo Eckener, who piloted the United States Navy dirigible Los Angeles across the Atlantic from Germany to the United States.

Norways' King to Decorate Members of Amundsen Party.

OSLO, Norway, June 27.—A royal welcome is being prepared by the capital of Norway for Capt. Raold Amundsen and the members of his North Polar expedition July 4. They will be brought here from Horten, some 50 miles south of Oso, with an escort of naval planes.

The explorer and his party will be received at the so-called "honor pier," where members of the royal families usually land. In open carriages they will be driven through gayly decorated streets to the Royal Palace, where they will have an audience with the King. All of them, except Amundsen, will be decorated with the Royal Order of St. Olaf, of which Amundsen has the highest degree, this having been awarded after his discovery of the South Pole. From the palace balcony they will review a parade of athletic societies.

In the evening, King Haakon will give a special dinner in honor of the explorers, to which the highest dignitaries have been invited.

AMERICAN PRESBYTERIANS IN PULPITS OF WALES TODAY

Plea for Church Unity to Be Topic of Visiting Delegates at Convention.

By the Associated Press.

CARDIFF, Wales, June 27.—The plea for unity among the Presbyterian churches, which was voiced strongly by the sessions of the Presbyterian Alliance during the week, will be carried to the congregations of all the churches in Wales, tomorrow by the visiting delegates, who have been assigned to fill the pulpits throughout the country.

More than two-thirds of the assignments have been given to American delegates, but not until after a warning that they must speak slowly and with emphasis, for the Welsh are entirely at a loss to understand the American accent, which they have had to listen to throughout the past week.

Although the speakers are allowed freedom of choice of their subjects, they have been asked to explain the benefit of the unification of the churches.

Today the delegates were taken on a tour of the country.

TO HEAD MAYFIELD COLLEGE

The Rev. W. C. Ferguson of St. Joseph to Take Post Aug. 1.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., June 27.—The Rev. W. C. Ferguson, pastor of the Savannah Avenue Baptist Church of St. Joseph, has been elected president of Will Mayfield College at Marble Hill, Mo. The Rev. Mr. Ferguson, who will succeed the Rev. A. T. Hendricks, has announced his intention of accepting the offer, and will assume his duties at the college Aug. 1.

The president-elect, who is 43 years old, was for six years financial director and business manager of William Jewell College at Liberty, Mo., of which he is an alumnus.

CAILLAUX WINS APPROVAL OF HIS FINANCE PLANS

Measures Authorizing Printing of 6,000,000,000 More Paper Francs To Become Law.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 27.—M. Caillaux's financial measures, which were adopted by the Senate this afternoon, 273 to 11, will become law upon their publication in the official journal tomorrow. The measures had been previously passed by the Chamber of Deputies earlier in the day. They authorize the printing of 6,000,000,000 more paper francs, making a total of 10,000,000,000 francs within the last three months.

This inflation of the currency was scored by all the opposition speakers in the Senate and even by Premier Painleve himself, who, however, excused it as a measure to avert national peril.

Senator Henry Berenmer, reporting the Caillaux project for the Senate, declared it was certain that if the deficit in the circulation of the national defense bonds was not checked, the newly-authorized 6,000,000,000 francs owuld be rapidly absorbed.

After the inflation feature had been voted 226 to 29, the opposition, led by M. Cheron, former Minister of Agriculture under Poincare, decided not to abstain from voting on the financial question as a whole thus responding to Premier Painleve's appeal for the largest possible majority from the Senate in order to reassure the country. A delegation of public employes demanding to see M. Painleve, caused the doors of the Senate to be precipitatly closed and the Republican guard reinforced. They dispersed without trouble after M. Painleve had promised them an interview at the Ministry of War this evening.

'ABIE'S IRISH ROSE' CLOSES AFTER RUN OF 13 WEEKS

"I want a large slice of rye bread with mustard on it!"

That is what Papa Sol Levy should have said to the assembled company producing "Abie's Irish Rose," closing its thirteenth week run at the Shubert-Jefferson Theater, last night. Instead, the lines were unfinished at the fall of the curtain, when the company, led by the orchestra, broke into song—"Auld Lang Syne."

It was the closing night of the theater for the season, as well as the closing night of the play, which now is in its fourth year in New York, with five road companies on tour. The 13 weeks' run was unrivaled in length here save by that of Blanche Bates in the "Darling of the Gods" at the Imperial Theater, Tenth and Pine streets, during the World's Fair in 1904.

Manager Leighton announced last night the theater would reopen in September. As has been published, the Shuberts' lease there will expire in November, and a new location is being sought.

SHEPHERD FREE, TO RESIST FIGHT TO BREAK WILL

Contest to Probate Document Giving Him Bulk of $1,000,000 Estate to Begin This Week.

STATE WILL DROP SECOND CHARGE

Action in Case Based on Death of Heir's Mother Decided on After Acquittal Verdict by Jury.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 27.—Freed yesterday of the charge that he murdered his youthful foster-son, William Nelson McClintock, and assured today that he would not be prosecuted on a charge of having killed Mrs. Emma Nelson McClintock, young McClintock's mother, William Darling Shepherd is making plans to fight for probate of McClintock's will leaving Shepherd virtually all of the $1,000,000 estate.

The contest over probation of the will is slated to be resumed in Probate Court July 1, with cousins of young McClintock, most of them from Iowa, and Miss Isabelle Pope, McClintock's fiancee, who was left an $8000 annuity, fighting to break the will, which was drawn up by Shepherd himself.

Cousins of the dead youth and Miss Pope have indicated that they expect to enter into long and bitter litigation over legality of the will.

Olson to Continue Fight.

Shepherd, who had been in jail since March 13, was with his wife, Mrs. Julie Shepherd, at their Kenilworth home today. He had spent last night at a downtown apartment, where, with his wife and a party of friends, he celebrated his acquittal with a banquet. Chief Justice Harry Olson, of the Municipal Court, who instigated the investigation into McClintock's death that resulted in Shepherd's indictment, said he expected to continue to investigate the case, and to prosecute if that is possible.

He criticised the conduct of the State's case by Robert E. Crowe, State's Attorney, and his staff. Mr. Crowe ignored Judge Olson completely today in a brief comment on the outcome, in which he said that the verdict spoke for itself and indicated his intention of asking a "no bill" of the grand jury, on the charge that Shepherd had slain Mrs. McClintock.

The juror who held out for five hours for a guilty verdict against his 11 associates, today told reporters that "the verdict of not guilty is the only one the jury could have given honestly because the State did not present sufficient evidence."

"I say this," he added, "after sleeping on it for a night and believing it is true."

Faiman Going to Europe.

What action, if any, will be taken against Charles Faiman, indicted for murder with Shepherd, is problematical. Faiman, proprietor of a school of science which doctors discredited, said he had given Shepherd typhoid germs to administer to McClintock and had been promised $100,000 for his part in the alleged plot. The State asked the Court to call Faiman as a witness, refusing to vouch for him.

"If I get out of this with a whole hide," Faiman told reporters today, "I intend to leave Chicago. I've broken my connection with my school and think I shall go to Europe and complete my studies in medicine. I am through with bacteriology."

MARSHALL HALL FUNERAL AT 2:30 P. M. TOMORROW

Services for Late Grain Dealer Will Be Held at Delmar Baptist Church.

The funeral services for Marshall Hall, 50 years old, former president of the Merchants' Exchange and president of the Marshall Hall Grain Co., the Marshall Hall Milling Co. and the Burlington Elevators Co., will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow at Delmar Baptist Church, Skinker road and Washington boulevard. Interment will be in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

Hall, who was one of the best informed men on the St. Louis grain market, died Friday afternoon of angina pectoris at his home, 6362 Waterman avenue. He was a member of the Noonday, Contemporary, Bellerive and Sunset Hill clubs and of the Missouri Athletic Association.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ines Bethune Hall; a daughter, Inez, and three sons, Sydnor, Bethune and Marshall Hall Jr.

Man Shot by Policeman Dies.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., June 27.—Fred Fauqua of Tulsa, Ok., died in a local hospital this morning as a result of being shot by Motor Cycle Policeman J. D. Hillyer of the Champaign police force. Fauqua had been arrested for vagrancy last night and taken to the police station. Fauqua escaped from the station and Hillyer started in pursuit and ordered the fleeing man to halt. Fauqua failed to stop and Hillyer fired one shot which penetrated the back and abdomen.

Union Market Building, Latest Bone of Contention in Miller Administration

THIS $1,000,000 structure is the latest bone of contention at City Hall. It is the new Union Market, construction of which is nearly completed. The three upper floors are for a public garage, to produce revenue for the city, relieve traffic congestion and give shoppers at the market on the main floor a place to park their cars. It was built from bond issue funds on the site of the old Union Market, Broadway, Lucas avenue, Sixth and Morgan streets. This photograph was made yesterday at the Broadway and Morgan street corner. At the extreme left, at Broadway and Lucas avenue, may be seen the entrance to the ramp leading to the garage floors, while in the foreground the wide space shown indicates the width to which it is planned to widen Morgan street in other blocks.

A. BURT CHAMPION JR. TO STAY WITH FATHER

Court Denies Mother's Petition for "Fifty-Fifty" Custody of Son.

Webster Groves, as an environment for a 15-year-old boy, is as desirable as the Eastern educational centers, Circuit Judge Falkenhainer decided yesterday at a hearing on the custody of A. Burt Champion Jr., whose parents are divorced.

Mrs. Gladys Sell of 142 East Forty-ninth street, New York, his mother, had filed a motion to have custody of him "fifty-fifty," as she expressed it, with his father, A. Burt Champion, 456 Belleview avenue, Webster Groves. She testified yesterday she is financially well-to-do, that her son has expressed a desire to go away to school, and that she is willing to pay for his education at the Staunton (Va.) Military Academy or some other preparatory institution if the Court so orders. Under present conditions, she said, the boy is likely to be weaned away from her.

Champion, the father, testified the son is doing well in his present environment, and should be permitted to go two years to the Webster Groves High School, after which the father plans to send him to Hill School at Stamford, Conn., a preparatory school for Williams College.

Boy Is Satisfied.

Young Champion testified he is satisfied to remain as at present. He admitted he had mentioned to his mother a desire to attend a "prep" school, but said he did not want to go to New York, preferring to remain around St. Louis.

In praising the quality of the Webster Groves public schools, Philips Moss, attorney for Champion, said Webster Groves has the highest school tax rate of any community in the United States. Moss added that the boy exhibited good judgment in not wanting to live in New York. Thomas L. Anderson, attorney for Mrs. Sell, objected to this statement, saying the many art museums and educational facilities of New York would be of advantage to a person of impressionable age, like young Champion.

Visiting Periods Restored.

When she obtained a divorce from Champion, seven years ago, the mother was allowed custody of the boy for three months each year, but this privilege was revoked after she removed him from jurisdiction of the Court until forced by contempt proceeding to return him. After this, her visits were confined to the month of November each year, such visitations being in the presence of a representative of Champion.

Yesterday Judge Falkenhainer restored her privilege of three visiting periods a year, without Champion's representative attending. But the Court refused to permit young Champion to be removed at this time from the custody of the father, stating that the boy appeared to be enjoying the proper training and environment.

Champion is connected with the General Motors Co. He said he has established a trust fund and endowment insurance to provide for the son's education. The mother, now the wife of William H. Sell, told the Court she owns several valuable parcels of realty here and has other sources of income enabling her to care for the son.

Offered College of Mines Post.

By the Associated Press.

HOUGHTON, Mich., June 27.—William O. Hotchkiss, Wisconsin geologist and chairman of the Wisconsin State Highway Commission, has been offered the presidency of the Michigan College of Mines, at Houghton, it was learned today. He will reserve decision. The presidency was left vacant a year ago by the death of F. W. McNair, following a railroad accident.

MOORS LAUNCH A TERRIFIC DRIVE

Riffians Opposing French Burn Several Villages in Advance Near Holy City of Fez.

By the Associated Press.

FEZ, French Morocco, June 27.—Facing an alignment of Riffian shock troops and Abd-El Krim's best regulars, surpassing in numbers and violence of attack anything heretofore attempted by the Moors, the French in a series of combats have succeeded in preventing the Fez-Taza line of communications from being severed. Abd-El Krim's warriors, however, were repulsed only after every French unit available had been called into action.

Although driven back, Abd-El Krim's troops retain the initiative in the operations, the French, in spite of the free hand given by the Government to conduct military operations in Morocco to a prompt and successful conclusion, remaining on the defensive.

French Admit Loss.

The force of the Moors thrust may be realized when the French official communique admits that the tribesmen penetrated south of the strong French posts at Ain Matouf, reaching nearly to El Arba de Tissa, only about 27 miles from the Holy City of Fez.

The offensive was launched on both flanks of the French position, and the Moorish attack on the left flank continues with unabated fury on a line just east of Ouezzan. The tribesmen, also attacked the Spanish front between Ceuta and Tetuan, and military experts assert that, with the harvest all gathered, the Moors are now making a supreme effort to drive the Europeans from the Riff.

Several Villages Burned.

Only prompt defensive action permitted the French troops to maintain their positions along the Ain Aicha and Ain Matouf fronts. The attack has been conducted up to the present with unknown fury by the tribesmen led by Abd-El Krim in person. The troops first made their appearance in the gap to the right of the main road from Fez to Taounat, then started to descend into the Leben Valley burning several villages on their way. French mobile troops were rushed to the scene of battle in auto trucks and quickly engaged the Riffians. In many places there were hand-to-hand conflicts.

Airplanes, which began operating with daylight, were greatly instrumental in dislodging the advance guard of Moors, numbering 3000 men. These troops were digging themselves into the south on the Fez-Taza road.

ROBBER MAKES 2 BROTHERS, 2 SISTERS, LIE ON FLOOR

Then He Takes $350 From Cash Register of Grocery at 3908 Blair Avenue.

Twin sisters and their two brothers were forced to drop flat on the floor of the brothers' grocery, at 3908 Blair avenue at 1:45 p. m. yesterday, by a lone robber, who had loitered in the place, posing as a customer, until several legitimate customers departed. The robber obtained $350 and $75 in checks from the cash register while the quartet lay on the floor, behind the counter.

Miss Nana Gregory and Mrs. Nina Lampe are the sisters. They are clerks in the grocery, which is owned by the brothers, Russell and Benjamin Gregory.

The robber bought a bottle of soda and drank it. Some customers remained, so he bought a nickel's worth of cakes and ate them slowly, till he was alone with the grocery people. Then he drew a revolver and made them raise their hands, but, not satisfied with that position, he ordered them to the floor. Departing, he ran north to an alley in which he boarded a Cadillac touring car kept waiting by a companion, and they drove east.

KANSAS CITY THEATER BLAST LAID TO BROKEN GAS MAINS

Three Known Dead as Result of Fire and Explosion—Search for Bodies Continues.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, June 27. — A theory that earth tremors, caused by blasting nearby, may have broken antiquated gas mains and caused the explosion that resulted in the destruction of the Gillis Theater here Thursday night, was advanced today by L. R. Toyne, inspector of detectives, who has completed questioning witnesses. Toyne expressed the belief that this theory was strengthened by an explosion early today in the same neighborhood.

A hill near the theater site is being cleared and there has been frequent blasting this week to remove huge rocks. The force of these blasts is said to have made buildings on the north side tremble.

To support his theory, Toyne said the piping on the north side is among the oldest in the city, and that the rock stratum runs directly from the hill, where the blasting has been in progress, into the north side district.

A second body was found late today from the ruins of the Gillis Theater here which was destroyed by an explosion and fire Thursday night. The body is believed to be that of Fred Warner, a waiter, in a restaurant in the building. The body of Harry C. Likely, a cook, was found. Searchers continued their hunt for bodies tonight with the aid of searchlights.

Firemen late tonight took a third body from the debris, believed to be that of a dishwasher in the restaurant.

Engineers of the local gas company inspected gas connections in the ruins of the Gillis Building and announcement was made that they found all pipes tight.

Idle and Ill, Woman Takes Poison.

Miss Stella Murray, 23 years old, of 1834 Mullanphy street, swallowed a poisonous compound in Fairground Park yesterday and was removed to city hospital in a serious condition. She said she was out of work and ill, with no money to pay doctor bills.

CASHIER OF CLOSED BANK FACES CHARGES

Shortage in Closed Oak Ridge (Mo.) Depository Estimated Now at $20,000.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., June 27.—Four criminal informations against Ray B. Duncan, cashier of the defunct Bank of Oak Ridge, near here, were filed in Justice Court today.

The informations charge that Duncan accepted deposits in the institution the day before it was closed by the State Finance Department, and when he knew it to be in a failing condition. Bond was fixed at $5000. No warrants were issued, but it was announced that Duncan would appear and make bail.

Affidavits were signed by four depositors, who allege that they made deposits June 16. The bank failed to open its doors next day.

The shortage now appears to be about $21,000, and the examiner says he has not learned whether the money was actually taken out or was lost through bad loans. However, there is one overdraft for approximately $4000.

Blasted Rock Goes Through Roof.

HARRISBURG, Ill., June 27.—An 8-year-old daughter of Albert Appel, a farmer living one mile southeast of Stonefort, was severely injured in a peculiar accident Friday. Construction crews are using dynamite in large quantities on the Edgewood-Fulton cutoff of the Illinois Central Railroad, which passed through Stonefort. A large rock from one of the blasts came crashing through the roof of the Appel home and into a room where members of the family were in conversation. The rock hit the girl on the head.

TRIO IN AUTO TAKEN IN EXCITING CHASE

Occupants of Car Recognized as Police Characters by Detectives.

Recognition was mutual when a police automobile containing detectives passed a new Studebaker touring car driven in the opposite direction on Vandeventer avenue near Page boulevard at 1 p. m. yesterday.

While the police machine was being turned the driver of the Studebaker, who was accompanied by two other men, turned his car into an alley and increased speed. A chase at 55 miles an hour followed, ending at Grand boulevard and Cote Brilliante avenue, where the police car overtook the Studebaker.

Records of Three Prisoners.

The detectives arrested the three occupants, all of whom are known as police characters. They are described as Ben Bethel, 19 years old, arrested 40 times and paroled from the Boonville Reformatory in 1923 after serving part of a four-year sentence for robbery; David Klegman, 20, arrested 14 times, awaiting trial on a charge of carrying concealed weapons, and William Kahrhoff, 20, arrested 12 times, with a record of having been fined for petty larceny.

In the chase the detectives saw two of the men throw something into a vacant lot. A search of the place disclosed two loaded revolvers. In addition the detectives reported finding an extra cap and top coat in the tonneau of the Studebaker. The license on the car had been issued to Kahrhoff for a Ford. The car and the men are being held.

Willard French, 22, was arrested at his home, 3100 North Newstead avenue, by detectives yesterday as a result of the unsuccessful attempt by two men to steal the Cadillac automobile of James L. Ford Jr., 54 Westmoreland place, on the night of June 11.

Auto Theft Suspect Taken.

A policeman, who noticed the men attempting to start the car, arrested William Dufor following a chase in which the policeman fired several shots. The other man escaped but from the description given by witnesses detectives set a watch on French's home. Following his arrest French said he had been out of town. He is also charged with having stolen a Ford automobile June 6, abandoning it in University City. A letter addressed to him was reported found in the Ford.

Other police activitiy yesterday resulted in the arrest of 12 negroes charged with operating a policy game and raids on two residences in which quantities of "homebrew" was seized. The negroes were arrested by members of the gambling squad under Detective Sergeant Mulcahy at 2340 Adams street. A number of alleged policy books and $20 in cash was seized.

A report that a man had been shot at Garrison avenue and Olive street took a patrol wagon load of policemen to the scene at 4 p. m. yesterday. None of several hundred men attending a union meeting in a hall at the corner reported having heard a shot fired and no disturbance was found. Police are investigating the source of the report as a similar call was received from the same vicinity Friday night.

Policemen, acting on an anonymous letter saying that whisky was being manufactured at 505 Calvary avenue, raided the premises yesterday afternoon, and reported finding Clarence Roberts, 22 years old, in the upstairs apartm oring several bottles of home ufactured whisky. They three gallons of liquor.

At the saloon of Joseph C nesky, 2501 Dodier street, the lice reported finding three of beer on the bar. They arr the bartender, Herman Bock and also the proprietor searching his upstairs apartm where they confiscated 34 cas home brew.

At 1421 Benton street, the raided the home of William K on the second floor, and repor finding 75 quarts of beer in a box, and 35 quarts and 22 pint home brew in a closet.

Six negroes were arrested in house at 1700 Division street, pected of gambling.

Studebaker will have no annual announcement of new models to make July cars obsolete in August

YOU may buy the new Studebaker Standard Six Coach today—or on any day of the year—with the confident assurance that no act of ours will stigmatize it as a "last year's model."

The new Studebaker Standard Six Coach is vastly different from the ordinary type of coach.

Coach price—Sedan quality

Compare it with other coaches and you will realize its difference in materials and craftsmanship. Doors are broad, seats full-width. There's room to enter or leave without causing occupant of folding seat to get out.

Its 50 horsepower engine is the most powerful in any car of its size and weight. Lightning in pick-up — unusually flexible — and dependable with all of the in-built stamina and sturdiness of every Studebaker.

Another "One-Profit" Closed Car

Above all, this Standard Six Coach is different in the value offered. Its price—$1295 f.o.b. factory—is exceptionally low. This is because it is a "one-profit" car, built complete—body as well as chassis—in Studebaker plants. Thus Studebaker saves the extra profits which other manufacturers have to pay to outside parts and body makers and gives the benefit to purchasers.

In July we will build nearly six times as many Standard Six Coaches as we made in February—an increase of 458%.

Month after month, all records have been broken, until today the Standard Six Coach is one of the most popular cars in our line.

Buy now—No need to delay

Now you can buy this new Studebaker Standard Six Coach with positive assurance that its value will not depreciate through annual announcements of new Studebaker models.

Come in NOW and see the value Studebaker offers in this sturdy, dependable, "one-profit" car. Today, more than ever, a Studebaker is a big money's worth.

TEAPOT DOME CASE APPEAL MAY BE HEARD IN ST. LOUIS

Likely Will Go Before Appellate Court Here if It Is Not Carried Direct to Supreme Court.

WALSH ASSAILS KENNEDY'S DECISION

Points Out It Says There Was No Secrecy and Then Justifies Secrecy as Military Necessity.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 27. — St. Louis may be the scene of the next legal battle over the leasing of the famous Teapot Dome naval oil reserve by former Secretary of the Interior Fall to Harry F. Sinclair.

Attention is called to this fact by Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, the man who blew the lid off the oil scandals, in an article appearing in the current issue of the National Democrat, a new weekly organ of the National Democratic organization.

Walsh deals caustically with the recent decision of Judge Thomas B. Kennedy of the Federal Court of Wyoming, who, in an opinion diametrically opposed the that of Judge Paul J. McClintock, in the Doheny-Elks Hills case, ruled against all points of the government's contention that the Teapot Dome lease was executed in fraud and corruption and ought to be cancelled.

"In his (Judge Kennedy's) desire to uphold every view advanced to support the lease," writes Walsh, "he has no work of criticism for the basic executive order transferring control of the reserves from the Navy Department to Fall, the legality of which no member of the Senate had the hardihood to defend.

Decision Unpopular.

"Fortunately there is an Appellate tribunal to which the cause goes. The country can well afford to await patiently the judgment of the jurists, of learning, probity and courage, who comprise the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit."

Both Wyoming, where the case was tried, and Missouri are in this circuit, and some of the sittings of the court are held at St. Louis. United States Supreme Court officials said today that if the case, as suggested by Senator Walsh, should go to the Appellate Court, instead of direct to the United States Supreme Court, it was highly probable that the hearing would be at St. Louis. The choice of a place would rest with the judges composing the Appellate Court.

Judge Kennedy, according to Walsh, appraised public opinion correctly when he introduced his remarks on the Teapot Dome case with the observation that his decision would be unpopular and disappointing.

Pretext for Secrecy.

The Senator is especially critical of the court's acceptance of "The shallow pretext of military exigency as an excuse for the secrecy that attended the Teapot Dome negotiations."

"Talk of the necessity for or wisdom of secrecy from the standpoint of military strategy is silly, to speak plainly," writes Walsh. "Unquestionably, Judge McCormick is right that the secrecy which characterized the transaction was observed to forestall opposition in and out of Congress, it being realized that publicity would be fatal to the project and the purposes of those who conceived it. It does not seem to trouble the learned Judge, whose decision, as he surmised it would, has occasioned so much disappointment, to sustain every contention of the defendants in the case, even when the acceptance of one negatives or annihilates another.

"He combats the idea that there was any secrecy, he tells how many other oil companies knew of the purpose to lease the dome, how many of them negotiated for a lease, how the pendency of negotiations or at least of the plan to lease was known so far away as Denver, and then he justifies the policy of secrecy on the ground of military necessity."

$3,000,000 Hidden Treasure Of Russian Prince Found

Soviet Uncovers Jewels Secreted in Steel Vault Behind Brick Wall in Home of Felix Youssoupoff.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, June 27.—Soviet government agents today discovered a secret treasure valued at $3,000,000, hidden away in the former home of Prince Felix Youssoupoff, member of one of the oldest and wealthiest of Russian royal families. The Prince recently gained wide public notice in the United States by a suit to recover two Rembrandts which he smuggled out of Leningrad (Petrograd) in 1919.

The Youssoupoff treasure found today was carefully concealed in a steel vault behind a brick wall. It consisted of hundreds of gold, silver and platinum articles of great beauty, many of them adorned with diamonds, pearls, sapphires and rubies. The riches were hidden by the Youssoupoff family prior to their flight from Russia following the revolution, say soviet officials.

The caretaker and janitor of the Youssoupoff house which has been used as a historical museum since the family fled abroad, will receive the equivalent of $1250 from the soviet Government for assisting in finding the treasures.

Among the articles found were the two gorgeous necklaces weighing a pound and a half each and consisting of a multitude of diamonds and rubies.

Several similar discoveries of hidden jewels have been made since the revolution, and the soviet authorities say that undoubtedly many more such stores of wealth will be brought to light. All such articles, it is stated, become state property and will be turned over to soviet museums.

Small Signs Road Refund Bill.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 27.—Gov. Small today signed the Meents bill appropriating $2,704,818.95 to refund to counties the cost of constructing hard roads which have been adopted as part of the State system. Among other bills signed today was one requiring all vehicles to stop before entering State hard roads from side roads.

1,215,000 ENROLLED ON LAST DEFENSE DAY

281,000 More Men Than Needed for a Major Emergency Volunteered.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—A detailed analysis of final reports of the first defense test, Sept. 12 last, made public tonight by the War Department, showed that a total of 1,215,520 one-day volunteers were enrolled for that day with regular National Guards and organized reserve units of the army, or 281,693 men in excess of the number that actual mobilization plans for a major emergency would call to the colors during the first four months of the mobilization.

The volunteers were exclusive of the millions of persons who participated in patriotic exercises attending the test. They brought the army up to a strength of 1,549,332 men for the day while the mobilization plans for the first quarterly period call for a strength of 1,267,639.

"Better Understood."

The report showed that the ceremonies last year in small communities exceeded proportionately those in large population centers and that the demonstrations were the most uniformly successful "where natural political channels were followed, i. e., where the Governor appointed a supervising State committee and the Mayors of the cities appointed the committees which were directly in charge of the local demonstrations."

The department found that the nature and purposes of the national defense policy was better understood by the people, "from sixteen to twenty-five million Americans" having gone to some trouble to show their interest and that it could therefore proceed with increased confidence in development of that policy since its plans had been proven to be "based on sound principles."

"All defects noted are of a minor character and readily corrected," the report said.

Military Value.

Success of the decentralized mobilization plans was found to depend on "the high average of intelligence, the common sense, patriotism and the spirit of co-operation to be found among our citizens," and it was added that future tests would "assure the fullest degree of local co-operation."

Of outstanding military value was the fact that the first test brought about development of detailed plans for the local mobilization of about 75 per cent of the units inactive in peace times which was classified as "something definite and tangible in mobilization plans," permitting a general revision to bring them nearer perfection.

"The time and cost that will be saved and the confusion during an emergency that will be eliminated by this revision, cannot be estimated but will be considerable," the report stated.

One immediate effect of the first test was the adoption of a policy under which ranking reserve officers assigned to command units of the organized reserve will be held personally responsible for completion of local assembly plans for their commands. Failure to comply with this requirement will result in delinquent reservists being relieved if they cannot give a satisfactory explanation.

BANKS ARE URGED TO AID TAX REFORM

U. S. Searching for Policy to Serve Other Nations as Model, Treasury Official Says.

By the Associated Press.

BAR HARBOR, Me., June 27.—The Treasury is endeavoring to establish a fiscal policy that will stand as a model for other governments in the avoidance of friction with, and disturbance to business, Undersecretary Winston declared here tonight, in an address before the Bankers' Association of Maine.

The Treasury official explained the operation of the policy for dealing with the gigantic public debt, a legacy of the war, and sought to show how the vast refunding was done without upsets in the money market. It was possible, he believed, to handle all Government finances with the same freedom, and on that basis urged the bankers to support what he regarded as the next step—reform in taxation.

"The future policy by adoption of which," Winston said, "we can obtain less friction in Government's relation to its people, and, therefore better government, is that of reform in taxation.

Source of Income Strained.

"The most important principle of taxation is, then, a taxing system that will preserve and not destroy the sources upon which it must feed. With estate taxes which confiscate 40 per cent of the capital, we are overcropping our land; with income taxes that reach 46 per cent, we are not letting our crops come to maturity. In both lines we destroy the sources of revenue by killing the incentive to production of more wealth or more income to replace that taken by taxation.

"In other words, we want a taxing system which operates with the minimum of friction and still meets the money requirements of the Government. As we approach the realization of such an ideal, capital will get out of unproductive investments; industry will return to normal channels; and taxation, unburdened by waste of collection, will produce for the Government, more nearly what the taxpayers give up. When such a reform is accomplished we will indeed be able to give you better government by less government."

Contrasts French and English Tax.

Winston digressed to discuss fiscal policies of the French and British Governments. The latter, he said, has lifted itself from the postwar financial mire, has its currency on a sound basis and its taxations reduced to a scientific and orderly basis. He compared that with the tax rates in France, absorption of more than half of that Government's income for payment of interest on its public debt, and a generally strained financial condition.

"We must look forward," he continued, "to France balancing its budget, refunding its foreign debts and stabilizing its currency, and so re-establishing its credit as actually to save money in the transaction. Through a sound policy, and only through such a policy, England has been able to command the unexcelled credit necessary to protect it on the restoration of the gold standard. Such a policy pays."

LOWER RANGE OF FRANC AND LIRA FEATURES MARKET

New Low for Year on French Exchange While Rate on Rome Is Down to Near 3½ Cents.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 27.—The Evening Post in its weekly copyrighted Foreign Exchange review, today, says.

"The necessities and financial entanglements of the three debtor continental nations made the movements in their exchanges the most important features of the foreign exchange market all through the week. Action of the French exchange, which ranged from 4.70 to 4.53, again lowering its level for the year, was apparently directed by interests concerned in governmental affairs and was looked on as being in anticipation of formal announcement of an intention to rearrange the money standard of the country by creating a gold basis of 4½ cents to the franc. The market for Italian exchange toward the end of the week was in a state of collapse, lira checks falling from 3.75¼ to nearly 3.50, and as the downward movement progressed banking interest here had as much to say about the necessity of Italy to obtain dollars and establish credits in this country.

"Belgian naturally followed French exchange, falling from 4.66 to 4.53. In contrast with these movements brisk advances occurred in Scandinavian exchanges. Norway moved up from 17.01 to 17.50 and Denmark from 19.22 to 19.83, both new high records for the year. Sterling made a gain of ¼ to $4.85¾ for demand. Greek exchange was distributed to some extent by the forcible change in its government affairs, drachmae falling 10 points to 1.57, but after the change was effected it recovered this loss.

"Dealing in Chinese exchange came almost to a standstill, only checks on Hongkong and Shanghai being quoted. After nominal rates were advanced in the first half of the week, they were reduced to moderate extent yesterday, when confidence prevailed over the outlook. Spanish exchange alternated between strength and weakness, but was in moderate supply on advances. Southern American exchanges were generally steady and showed little net change.

"Heavy selling of exchanges on Italy in the London market was accompanied by a break here Saturday to a new low record for all time in quotations on the lira just above 3½ cents. Inasmuch as most of the business was transacted abroad local bankers were at a loss to determine whether the Government was supporting the market. French authorities supported the French franc, however, and rates on Paris rallied strongly from the record low for the year reached in yesterday's late trading. Before the end of trading, however, there was an increased supply of bills in the market and quotations slipped back. Sterling ruled firm, while the remainder of the European list with the exception of Norwegian and Danish crowns, held steady.

Steel Industry

NEW YORK, June 27.—A fair business is reported in the steel industry, but the price level continues unfavorable, especially in sheets and wire products. It is estimated that shipments of rolled products for the first six months of the year will exceed by over 2,000,000 tons the same time last year. Operations in steel mills of the Pittsburg district average between 60 and 65 per cent of capacity and it is expected that July will show no important reduction from that of June. Reports from Youngstown mention the possibility of a giant steel merger to rival that of the Steel Corporation.

Pig iron was less active, but as production is smaller, a more stable market is suggested.

Copper as quiet. Having covered immediate needs, buyers withdrew and recent activities has been followed by renewed dullness. Some of the larger producers are supposed to be well sold up for July and August, and are not seeking business, but prices have been shaded by other sellers and small sales have been reported at the 13¾ level for electrolytic. Rather a better inquiry developed at the lower price, but business was restricted by reports that German interests were reselling in the European markets below parity.

Tin was firm, with larger purchases by consumers than for some weeks past. Little Straits tin is available for nearby delivery, but Chinese continues in poor demand despite the discount under straits.

Lead showed a further reduction in price, but was steady at the decline, and as requirements are understood to be large, the trade does not anticipate much additional price concession.

Zinc showed little change during the week. What little domestic demand was in evidence was for nearby requirements and no export business was reported, as buyers' ideas were still below asking prices of producers.

The continued unsettled Chinese situation has restricted trading in antimony and buyers are only purchasing for nearby delivery.

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 27.—American Can, in a sensational advance of 10 points to a record high, was the feature of the two hour session on the Stock Exchange. There was a rush of short covering as the rumor spread that American Can directors next Tuesday would split up the stock on a basis of four or five for one and declare dividends on the new shares which would be the equivalent of a higher rate than is being paid regularly on the present share capital. It took only 16,000 shares of American Can to send it up to $200 as compared with the final price of 190 the preceding day. When the scramble to cover shorts had abated American Can fell back several points, subsequently rallying again. The expectation of a split up when the directors meet next Tuesday was not generally shared, however.

Many were inclined to discredit the report and described the Can's big advance as highly speculative. Nevertheless, the report that the long awaited split up would be voted soon was regarded seriously enough in Wall street circles to induce a large portion of the short interest to take fright.

The Bond Market

Attention of bond traders today was focused on the foreign list, where the feature was the comparative indifference manifested by holders of foreign bonds to the unfavorable financial developments abroad which have been such a disturbing factor in the exchange markets.

French bonds, which were off fractionally for Friday, opened higher and there was a remarkable lack of offerings such as have appeared in other crises. The Belgian list, too, was fairly steady. The Greek 7s declined only a fraction from Friday's close, the so-called revolution not appearing as serious as from first reports.

Trading in the general list quieted down largely because interest was absorbed by the advance in stocks. There was, however, no weakness anywhere. United States Government obligations were firm around the high points of Friday's recovery, the Treasury 4¼s being in especial demand. New York Central 5s went higher today. Railway junior issues were neglected. Speculative interest so evident in rubber stocks did not extend to the bonds.

The weekly statement of the member banks of the Federal Reserve showed an increase in holdings of investments other than United States Government obligations and a decrease in commercial loans, indicating that at the date of this report, which was June 17, the banks were still buying bonds.

In the last hour the Government bond list was strengthened and the Treasury 4s made a new high record for all time at 104.

ST. LOUIS STOCKS

ST. LOUIS STOCK EXCHANGE, June 27.—Mixed price changes marked trading on the Exchange during the past week but the net alterations for the period were not material for most part. The volume of trade showed some improvement over previous week, but still it did not compare with total of several weeks ago.

Total sales of stocks on the Exchange during the week amounted to 5488 shares, compared with 4816 the previous week. Bond sales were $8000, against $21,000 a week ago.

Following is a complete list of securities traded in on the Exchange during the past week, sales, highest, lowest, closing prices and net changes being given:

NEW YORK, June 27.

The Missouri Pacific improved its earnings in May, compared with the same month last year, surplus of $310,227 after charges showing a gain of $57,710. Gross revenue gained $413,766. For the five months of 1924 surplus after charges was $1,824,926 against $1,048,854. The Texas & Pacific reported surplus of $66,757 for May, in contrast to a deficit of $169,493 in May, 1924.

The crude rubber market continued its display of strength today, sellers of June ribbed smoked sheets asking 97 cents; July 85, September 79, and October-December 71½.

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad's report for May earnings shows a decline of $204,643 in net operating income, compared with May last year, although gross revenues gained $327,389. Operating expenses increased $409,310, the cost of maintenanc eof equipment having been $839,467 greater. Net operating income of $12,379,808 for the five months of 1925 declined $245,003 under the same period of 1924.

The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway reports a net operating deficit of $315,108 for May, against net operating income of $365,034 for the same month last year. Gross revenues dropped $632,305. Net operating income for the first five months of 1925 was about $189,000 less than a year ago.

The New York Central, the Chicago & Northwestern, Erie and the St. Louis-San Francisco, were additional roads to report larger earnings for May than for the same month last year. The Central's net operating income gained $246,173; Chicago & Northwestern made a big jump to $2,011,300 from $388,652; the Erie gained $222,479 and the Frisco's surplus after charges increased $315,505.

The Atchison, Tepoka & Santa Fe increased its net operating income in May to $2,009,528, compared with $1,437,823 in May last year. Although gross revenues fell nearly $319,000, net operating income for the five months this year gained more than $2,000,000 to $12,261,833.

WIDE PRICE CHANGES IN UTILITIES DURING WEEK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 27.—The market on the Curb Exchange maintained its strength in today's early dealings, although considerable profit taking was induced by the vigorous advances that had been in progress during the last half of the week. The outstanding movement was in Miller Rubber, which quickly rose 19 points to 180. This advance followed a similar upturn on the previous day of 11 points. Price changes in other issues were mostly fractional, although the demand continued in sufficient volume to offset selling pressure that usually develops at the week-end. Radio and baking company shares were slightly higher. Serv-El rose to a new high, selling to 20. In the closing period some weakness was shown in several higher-priced shares. National Tea and National Power sustained losses of about 5 point.

The features of the Curb market all through the week were the bullish activities in a number of industrial groups and a resumption of wide and violent fluctuations in public utilities. The result of these movements was to carry a large number of stocks up to new high records, and in some cases the position of the securities traded was essentially changed. Electric refrigerator stocks came into greatest prominence during the last half of the week. Nizer Corporation sold at the new high record of 53¾, trading in the stock being influenced by statements that the "B" shares would be traded on a when-issued basis next Tuesday.

In the public utilities, one of the widest movements was in General Gas and Electric, which rose 30 points to 180. Power Corporation of New York moved up over 16 points, and National Power, after a reduction to 322, advanced to 349. Libby Owens Sheet Glass was exceptionally heavy, falling from 200 to 182. The character of the market may be inferred from the fact that about half a dozen issues had a range of 30 to 50 points during the week.

Petroleum stocks were irregular, but most of them showed a strong tone. Some of the pipe line stocks showed moderate declines. Gibson Oil continued the feature of the low-priced group, making a new high record on the announcement of an important increas ein production.

Boston Wool Market.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, June 27.—Interest in the wool market was centered largely in the foreign wool markets today in anticipation of the London auctions. Texas 12-month wools however sold at $1.30 to $1.35 clean and prices on a grease basis shot up to 48c at Mertzon. Fine stable territory was quoted around $1.30 to $1.35 clean with scoured Pennsylvania and Ohio delaines 5c higher.

HIGHER RANGE TO COTTON PRICES AT NEW YORK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 27.—After selling up to 24.03c for October contracts on continuance of yesterday's buying movement, the cotton market today lost part of its advance under realizing. Selling otherwise was restricted and the close was steady, with October quoted at 23.84c and the general list showing net advances of 2 to 14 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 15 to 22 points on relatively firm Liverpool cables, dry weather news from the Southwest and reports of a more active demand for cotton goods in the domestic markets.

All months made new high ground for the movement in early trading, July advancing to 23.97c and December to 24.16c, or about 24 to 28 points net higher on active positions. These prices representing an advance of nearly 2½c per pound from the low levels last month, attracted a good deal of week-end realizing, but offerings were restricted by predictions for continued dry weather in the Southwest over Sunday, although there were rumors of showers in some sections of Texas late in the morning.

Liverpool attributed the advance there to buying on the critical position of the Texas crop.

WHEAT PRICES BREAK AFTER EARLY UPTURN

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, June 27.—After selling higher early wheat reacted on profit taking and closed sharply lower. The market lacked support on selling. Corn went down with wheat. The fear of hedging pressure was a factor in wheat.

In the local cash grain market soft wheat was 5c to 7c lower. Offerings were small but the demand was quickly satisfied. Hard was steady to 2c lower. Corn was 2c to 2¼c lower. Demand was fair. Oats were steady to ¾c lower. Demand was fair.

Strength of the Liverpool market were prices closed 1¼d to 2⅜d higher was a dominating bullish influence in wheat. The Winnipeg market was up, corn fell back to previous close after rise.

July wheat opened at $1.50; September wheat $1.50½; December wheat $1.52, and September corn $1.03½.

The three Northwestern markets combined had 513 cars of wheat, compared with 966 last year, Minneapolis receiving 171 cars, Duluth 74 and Winnipeg 268.

Local wheat receipts, which were 36,400 bushels, compared with 52,000 a week ago and 44,200 last year, included 15 cars local and 13 through. Corn receipts, which were 58,800 bushels, compared with 43,400 a week ago and 64,400 last year included 27 cars local and 15 through. Oats receipts, which were 76,000 bushels, compared with 96,000 a week ago and 62,000 last year, included 22 cars local and 16 through. Hay receipts were 13 cars local and 6 through.

Primary receipts of wheat were 911,000 bushels, compared with 614,000 a week ago and 835,050 last year. Corn receipts were 383,000 bushels, compared with 418,000 a week ago and 398,000 last year. GRAIN PRICES BREAK LATE ON THE CHICAGO BOARD

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 27.—Lack of courage on the part of bulls in the wheat trade was responsible for the downward trend of prices not only today, but most of the week. There are many in the trade who expressed bullish convictions, but they confined their activities to talk rather than deeds. Corn and oats were affected by the action of the wheat market. Provisions ignored grain and showed independent strength.

At the opening of the wheat market today confidence seemed to be uppermost among the bulls. Liverpool gave them encouragement by showing unexpected strength and this led to some commission house buying. The buying, however, was much smaller in volume than news of the day would warrant and this discouraged leaders into unloading their lines. The weight of this pressure was not felt until the last hour when there was a collapse in prices to the lowest of the week. Trade would like to see a higher market in order to revive confidence among consuming buyers. There was a little export business today, but mostly in Canadian varieties. A local house, however, sold 55,000 bushels to the seaboard. The great fear in the minds of the bulls is the hedging pressure in the offering. The movement of new wheat is beginning to develop volume as indicated by the 228 cars received at Kansas City today.

The spring wheat situation could not be better and this is a discouraging factor to the embryo buyer. It will take crop damage to start a buying stampede again. Reports from the Southwest are more encouraging as to yields and quality. Most all of the new wheat arriving is testing high in protein. Millers took 17000 bushels of wheat out of this market today. Closing prices were 3⅛ to 3¾c lower, making a net loss for the week 6⅞ to 7⅝c. July wheat $1.48¼ to ½; September $1.46¼ to ⅜; December $1.48 to 1.48¼.

Corn started higher, due to a heavy cash demand, and followed early strength in wheat. Commission houses bought moderately and locals were inclined to take hold. After the opening pressure increased from early buyers and prices simply crumpled away for lack of support. Argentine corn crop is officially estimated at 186,000,000 bushels, compared with 270,000,000 a year ago. This provides an exportable surplus of 110,000,000 bushels, compared with 190,000,000 exported last year. Shipping demand for corn was a little better, with sales of 150,000 bushels reported. Weather continues favorable for the growing crop. Closing prices were ¼c to ⅝c lower, and showed loss of ⅜c to 4½c for the week. July $1.00⅝ to $1.00¾; September $1.02 to $1.02¼; December 88¼c to 88¾c.

Oats followed other grains. There is a strong element favoring the bull side, but they are curtailing their activities so long as other grains continue their downward trend. Demand has improved and shipping sales were 154,000 bushels today. Advices from the Seaboard indicated a large volume of business, but failed to give figures. Crop news is improving, but at the most the yield will be small in comparison with recent harvests. Closing prices were 1c to ¼c lower, and for the week 2⅜c to 3c lower.

Provisions were firmer on support from packing interests. Lard closed 5c higher, ribs 10c higher, bellies unchanged. For the week lard was unchanged to 2½c higher, ribs 5c to 10c higher, bellies 5c to 10c lower.

W, $13; X, $13@13.10.

DULUTH, Minn., July 27.—Flaxseed strengthened on better buying and light offerings, but later weakened in sympathy with wheat. July fell 1¼; September 2¼, but October rose 1 cent.

DULUTH, Minn., June 27.—Flax close: July, $2.53½; Sept., $2.45; Oct., $2.44.

Dry Goods Market Review.

NEW YORK, June 27.—Cotton goods closed the week firm. Print cloths, sheetings, heavy cottons, and many of the fine combed goods were so well sold that extensive curtailment in July will be unnecessary. Leading lines of fine and novelty wash fabrics will be opened on Monday, price ranges running from 27½c to $1.17½ a yard. Rush mill orders for silks for summer delivery were slackening. Fall prospects are good. Wool goods for the hot weather wear were bought liberally for spring 1926. Wool markets were steadier. Linens showed little improvement. Burlaps were firm, some buying being done in anticipation of an unfavorable crop forecast in jute next month. Cotton and silk lines in retail channels were very active.

LIVESTOCK PRICES HIGHER FOR WEEK

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.	Last week.	Prev. week.	Year Ago.
Cattle and calves	23,892	20,032	[illegible]
Hogs	55,345	59,188	[illegible]
Sheep	20,071	19,621	[illegible]
Horses and Mules	320	191	[illegible]
Totals	99,628	99,032	114,148

Under moderate to light receipts and a generally active demand, livestock prices again ranged upward at the St. Louis National Stockyards during the week just ended. Most cattle, hogs, sheep and lambs shared in the upturn, which, in many instances, assumed considerable proportions. Horses and mules, the exception, remained unchanged. Combined receipts for the period were 99,628 head, compared with a similar run the previous week and 114,148 fo the corresponding period [illegible]. The cattle market showed considerable activity throughout the week and advances of 50c to 75c were recorded in fed steers, light yearling steers and heifers and beef cows, with the better grades showing the greatest gain. Stocker and feeder steers, also canner and cutter cows [illegible] 25c to 50c and the bull market strengthened 25c. Veal calves effected a [illegible]. A new top for the year was established by the sale of a consignment of [illegible] Johnson County, Mo., steers at $11.[illegible] cwt. The bulk of all native [illegible] brought $8.50 to $11. Light [illegible] steers topped in this class at $11.[illegible] steers and heifers mixed reached [illegible] an equal of the year's best price in [illegible] class. Texas and Oklahoma range [illegible] numbering 100 cars, varied in price [illegible] $5 to $9.25, the latter figure [illegible] the season in this department. [illegible] advanced to a $5 to $6 bulk. The [illegible] was quotable at $4.25 and [illegible]. Cutter cows passed the scales at [illegible] $4, and canners at $2.50 to $3.[illegible] logna bulls sold in a range of $4.[illegible] $5.25 and weighty beef animals [illegible] to $6. Thin, light-weight bulls [illegible] the $3 column. Improved pastures [illegible] country, together with the sharp [illegible] in beef cattle prices influenced the advance in stocker and feeder steers. [illegible] bulk brought $5 to $6.50 and the [illegible] available drove made $7.05. Stock [illegible] were quotable at $3 to $4, heifers [illegible] $3.25 to $5.50 and bulls at $3.50 to $[illegible]. Veal calves made their $1 ascent on top of a $1.50 rise the previous week. The closing top was advanced to $11, compared with a high of $10.25 at the close of the previous week and $8.25 two weeks ago. Southern canner yearlings advanced [illegible] $3.25 to $3.50 bulk.

Hog Receipts Lighter.

With hog receipts lighter both locally and elsewhere the market showed stronger tendencies throughout the greater part of th week, buyers however fighting any advance hard and bearing down on prices at every opportunity. The demand was good from both shippers and killers and salesmen succeeded in forcing the top up to $18.85 Tuesday, this being the highest figure paid at these yards for hogs since March 27. The market developed weakness during the following sessions, Thursday's top dropping to $13.70, reactions on Friday and Saturday closing the week with a top of $13.80 for best butcher kinds. The week closed with the hog market on a basis 40c to 45c higher on butcher hogs from 190 pounds and up, sales of these weights in a spread of $13.[illegible] to $13.80. The lighter hogs and shipping weights show a corresponding advance, the spread in prices of these weights and the killing grades being very narrow. Sales of the hogs from 160 to 180 pounds bulked at the end of the week at $13.70 to $13.75 with medium and plain kinds at $13.60 to $13.70. The better weight grades of pigs closed the week at sharp advances, light kinds, however, due to losses suffered toward the close showing little better than steady prices. Offerings from 130 to 150 pounds average quotable at $13.25 to $13.60, [illegible] to 60c higher than last Saturday. Medium and light weight pigs from 130 pounds and down quotable at $12 to $13 mostly, some of the trashy kinds at lower figures. The demand for light pigs as stockers was good throughout the week with hardly enough of this class arriving, however, to furnish a true criterion of the market. Packer sows closed the week at 15c higher prices, sales of this class at $11.90 to $12 largely. Stags show a like gain, sales at $10.50 to $11 mostly, according to weight and quality. Closing quotations for the week were as follows: Best butchers 190 pounds and over $13.[illegible] to $13.80; lighter hogs 160 to 180 pounds $13.60 to $13.75. Strong-weight pigs 130 to 150 pounds, $13.25 to $13.60; medium weights 110 to 130 pounds $12.25 to $[illegible]; lighter kinds $11.50 to $12. Sows $11.[illegible] to $12, and stags $10.50 to $11 largely.

Lambs Highest Since April.

Advances scored by lambs during the past week put prices on a basis that was the highest since early in April, top reaching $16 for full loads and one bunch of ewe and wether lambs noted upward to $16.25. Receipts, while running [illegible] than the previous, showed no great [illegible] locally, 11 markets, however, showing a material drop in volume of supplies. Offerings here were comprised mainly of [illegible] natives this week, although early [illegible] saw a fair proportion of Southwest [illegible] included. Quality for the week [illegible] about on an average. The week's first two session found lambs selling [illegible] $15.25 to $15.50, but the [illegible] strengthened steadily and closing [illegible] the week bulked at $16. These [illegible] compared with the previous week's [illegible] show a gain of 50c mostly. Cull [illegible] came in for th ir share of the advance [illegible] week, prices on this class showing a corresponding gain. Bulk of the offerings [illegible] this class cleared at $9, occasional [illegible] noted above these figures. There was a firmer tone to the market for [illegible] light kinds steady to 50c higher. [illegible] were noted up to $6, with the bulk clearing at $5.50 to $6. Medium and heavy kinds failed to show any change, [illegible] continuing to take these grades at $4 to $4.50 mostly. Receipts in this department were modest throughout he entire [illegible] period.

Good to choice lambs quotable at $15 to $16, medium to good $14 to $15, plain to medium $13 to $14. [illegible] common $9 to $11, and skips $5 to $[illegible]. Good to choice ewes $5 to $6, medium to good $4 to $5. Choppers and bucks [illegible] $3, and canners $1 to $1.50. [illegible] $2.50 to $2.75, fat kids $4 to $5, [illegible] and common goats $1 to $2.

Rate on Loans Tighten as Month-End Nears—French Franc and Italian Lira Sell at Decline During Week.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 27.—The Evening Post in its weekly copyrighted financial review, says:

"Easily the most interesting event of the week has been the tightening of the rate for call money to the highest level recorded in three months. All year cheap money has been a stimulant to the market, and confidence that funds would remain plentiful is one thing that has led so many people of late into the security marts of Wall street. At the first sign of an advance in money this week stocks were unloaded and prices declined, but the recession did not extend far. For a day it seemed that selling on a fair scale might develop. Disappointed were the bears early in the next session, however, when they awoke to the fact that securities were becoming more, rather than less, valuable. The rate for call money held to its firmer levels, but a more cheerful attitude toward the stock market developed late in the week than had been seen in some time.

Money Tightens.

"That money will become somewhat dearer as the autumn approaches, even if it does not actually reach a high level, is the general expectation. On the appearance of a 5 per cent rate for call money at this particular season, however, we must not conclude that a permanently higher basis has been reached. Several reasons may be stated why money naturally might tighten now but which will not apply to the situation in another 10 days. Belief that the Controller of the Currency soon may call for a statement of condition from national banks makes the banks anxious to present as good an appearance as possible. They want to have on their best dress when the Controller comes around. Accordingly, national banks are calling in their loans and selling securities to get money into their vaults, operations which, of course, tend to lessen temporarily the supply of available funds. The usual flow of funds to the interior at the end of the month and the cleaning up of Treasury operations in connection with income tax collections have helped to make money dearer. The seasonal demand for currency next week in anticipation of the holiday may be expected to have a tightening influence also, of course, until after the Fourth of July.

Prices Rise Moderately.

"Stock market prices have risen slightly, despite the shrinkage in call funds in anticipation of the heavy July reinvestment demand that is certain to develop this year and in anticipation of a moderate improvement at least in business after the summer lull. Seldom if ever in the history of the country have the funds from dividends, interest and semiannual commercial payments at midyear been so large as they are likely to be next month. A part of the present increased activity in the securities markets is traceable to this seasonal factor. That prices do not move forward faster in the circumstances must be clear to anyone who measures the advance that the market already has had. The public is in the market. Brokers' loans have increased smartly, but with prices high they do not indicate that the margins are as slim as they were early in March.

Industrial Situation.

"With the steel industry operating at about 70 per cent of capacity, a level to which it has held for something like a month, the likelihood of a decline to even 60 per cent this summer becomes more and more remote. Last year operations fell to about 40 per cent. Demand continues good and scrap steel prices, which usually are looked upon as an index, remain firm. The automobile industry continues active, although the peak has been passed. A short crop in winter wheat seems probable, but predictions of the crops necessarily must be unsatisfactory this early in the season. Commodity prices generally have reached a degree of stabilization that is encouraging. Employment holds up better than had been expected. Hand-to-mouth buying is still the rule, but a large volume of business is being done. Profits are not what they were in war days, but in general they are adequate.

European Crop Outlook.

"Conditions overseas leave something to be desired, but we on this side of the water are disposed to take a rather cheerful attitude toward the general situation, since our own position is strong. European crops are apparently likely to be good. Great Britain is suffering an industrial crisis. Demoralization of the French franc again this week, yesterday's quotation having fallen to a new low at 4.53 cents, has followed Finance Minister Caillaux's request for a six billion issue of paper francs. Uncertainty over what will be the final solution has encouraged heavy selling abroad. Likewise, Italy's plea for leniency, as the formal negotiations start between Premier Mussolini's mission and the American debt funding commission, has weakened the position of the lira.

Saturday's Close Irregular.

"Easily the most interesting event of the week has been the tightening of the rate for call money to the highest level recorded in three months. All year cheap money has been a stimulant to the market, and confidence that funds would remain plentiful is one thing that has led so many people of late into the security marts of Wall street. At the first sign of an advance in money this week stocks were unloaded and prices declined, but the recession did not extend far. For a day it seemed that selling on a fair scale might develop. Disappointed were the bears early in the next session, however, when they awoke to the fact that securities were becoming more, rather than less, valuable. The rate for call money held to its firmer levels, but a more cheerful attitude toward the stock market developed late in the week than had been seen in some time.

Money Tightens.

"That money will become somewhat dearer as the autumn approaches, even if it does not actually reach a high level, is the general expectation. On the appearance of a 5 per cent rate for call money at this particular season, however, we must not conclude that a permanently higher basis has been reached. Several reasons may be stated why money naturally might tighten now but which will not apply to the situation in another 10 days. Belief that the Controller of the Currency soon may call for a statement of condition from national banks makes the banks anxious to present as good an appearance as possible. They want to have on their best dress when the Controller comes around. Accordingly, national banks are calling in their loans and selling securities to get money into their vaults, operations which, of course, tend to lessen temporarily the supply of available funds. The usual flow of funds to the interior at the end of the month and the cleaning up of Treasury operations in connection with income tax collections have helped to make money dearer. The seasonal demand for currency next week in anticipation of the holiday may be expected to have a tightening influence also, of course, until after the Fourth of July.

Prices Rise Moderately.

"Stock market prices have risen slightly, despite the shrinkage in call funds in anticipation of the heavy July reinvestment demand that is certain to develop this year and in anticipation of a moderate improvement at least in business after the summer lull. Seldom if ever in the history of the country have the funds from dividends, interest and semiannual commercial payments at midyear been so large as they are likely to be next month. A part of the present increased activity in the securities markets is traceable to this seasonal factor. That prices do not move forward faster in the circumstances must be clear to anyone who measures the advance that the market already has had. The public is in the market. Brokers' loans have increased smartly, but with prices high they do not indicate that the margins are as slim as they were early in March.

Industrial Situation.

"With the steel industry operating at about 70 per cent of capacity, a level to which it has held for something like a month, the likelihood of a decline to even 60 per cent this summer becomes more and more remote. Last year operations fell to about 40 per cent. Demand continues good and scrap steel prices, which usually are looked upon as an index, remain firm. The automobile industry continues active, although the peak has been passed. A short crop in winter wheat seems probable, but predictions of the crops necessarily must be unsatisfactory this early in the season. Commodity prices generally have reached a degree of stabilization that is encouraging. Employment holds up better than had been expected. Hand-to-mouth buying is still the rule, but a large volume of business is being done. Profits are not what they were in war days, but in general they are adequate.

European Crop Outlook.

"Conditions overseas leave something to be desired, but we on this side of the water are disposed to take a rather cheerful attitude toward the general situation, since our own position is strong. European crops are apparently likely to be good. Great Britain is suffering an industrial crisis. Demoralization of the French franc again this week, yesterday's quotation having fallen to a new low at 4.53 cents, has followed Finance Minister Caillaux's request for a six billion issue of paper francs. Uncertainty over what will be the final solution has encouraged heavy selling abroad. Likewise, Italy's plea for leniency, as the formal negotiations start between Premier Mussolini's mission and the American debt funding commission, has weakened the position of the lira.

"Early strength in stock prices which resulted in many new high figures for the current movement, was followed by rather general profit-taking before the end of today's short session on the stock market and the close was irregular, but rather steady. A sudden jump in American Can to a new high record, apparently due to extensive short covering, was instrumental in starting covering operations in other stocks and for a time gave the market a firmer tone in which the general list continued its advance. Outside of this flurry and good buying of several motor and industrial stocks, there were few developments of interest. Rail shares were well supported, however, Southern common holding up well in anticipation of a favorable court decision in the preferred dividend controversy.

American Can At Record High.

"Overshadowing the movements of other prominent stocks was the sharp rise in American Can to a new high record for all time. Heavy buying orders at the start of the day effected an opening advance of 3 points and from this point the stock started a steady climb of 10 points to 200. Here profit-taking checked the rise for the time being. The sensational advance which carried the stock to the long heralded goal was accompanied by suggestions that the much predicted stock split-up would be ordered at Tuesday's meeting of directors. Considerable doubt as to the likelihood of this event was cast on the situation, however, by the fact that the company is unusually busy at this season of the year filling orders for canning companies which necessitates tying up large sums of money in financing sales. For this reason many believed directors would defer action until a quieter season at the end of the year, when the surplus would be available for distribution in the form of stock.

Rest of Market Irregular.

"If the demonstration in Can was designed to bring about the resumption of a general forward movement, it was not altogether successful. Although the start was featured by strength in a broad list of favorites in the motor and utility groups, the market ran into profit taking before the close and net changes in the final hour were irregular. General Motors and Yellow Cab were strong on unconfirmed reports of negotiations looking toward the acquisition of Yellow Cab's motor bus and taxi business by General Motors. So far as could be learned, officials of the two companies had not met during the week, the General Motors group being in Detroit and the head of Yellow Cab arriving here from Chicago. The suggestion apparently had no more basis than the generally accepted view that General Motors would like to add another motor bus link to its chain.

New Low for Lira.

"Heavy selling of exchange on Italy in the London market was accompanied by a break here to a new low record for all time in quotations on the lira just above 3½ cents. Inasmuch as most of the business was transacted abroad, local bankers were at a loss to determine whether the Government was supporting the market. French authorities supported the French franc, however, and rates on Paris rallied strongly from the record low for the year reached in yesterday's late trading. Before the end of trading, however, there was an increased supply of bills in the market and quotations slipped back. Sterling ruled firm, while the remainder of the European list with the exception of Norwegian and Danish crowns held steady.

Weekly Bank Statement.

"The weekly statement of the Clearing House revealed a decrease in surplus of $21,209,800. Aggregate reserves amounted to $613,673,000 and the excess reserve was $22,482,980. Loans, discounts, etc., increased $30,852,000, while circulation showed a small increase.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 27.—In the following table will be found a list of sales, highest, lowest and closing prices of bonds traded in on the Stock Exchange today, sales being in $1000 lots (000 omitted).

Quotations on all United States Liberty Bonds are in dollars and thirty-seconds of a dollar, that is, for instance, a sale printed 99—24 means $99 and twenty-four thirty-seconds of a dollar and not $99.24.

Total sales today were $5,173,000, against $10,292,000 yesterday, $11,224,000 a week ago, $8,610,000 a year ago and $5,387,000 two years ago.

From Jan. 1 to date sales were $1,875,582,000, against $1,763,925,000 a year ago and $1,563,933,000 two years ago.

SAYS SENATE POLL FAVORS WORLD COURT

Swanson of Virginia Confident Plan Will Be Adopted at Coming Session.

Post-Dispatch Bureau
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, June 27. — The Senate will act favorably upon the proposal to have the United States enter the World Court, according to Senator Claude Swanson (D.) of Virginia, who has just completed a poll of the Senate on the subject.

Sen. Swanson is the author of the Harding plan resolution which was before the Senate at the last session. For some time, he has been doubtful of the success of the plan in the coming session, but his poll reassures him.

"I have been informed," he said today, "that sufficient Republican votes will be obtained to put through this non-partisan issue which now has been avoided by the Senate Republicans for the last two years."

Sen. Swanson believes the plan will go through, just as President Harding proposed it. Despite his optimism, there is every indication that it will require a hard fight to put the world court plan over the top.

Sen. Borah, favoring reservations which would divorce the court from the League of Nations, is prepared to fight for his own conception of the plan. He was recently quoted as saying that consideration of the resolution will require considerable debate. Those familiar with Senator Borah's ability to conduct a vigorous fight for his ideas in the Senate realize that this means a struggle.

TWENTY PERISHED IN TYPHOON

Thousands of Livestock Drowned in Philippine Provinces.

By the Associated Press.

MANILA, June 27.—The recent typhoon in Central Luzon caused more than 20 deaths and heavy property damage, according to reports received here today. The heaviest losses occurred in the provinces of Bulacan, Nueva Ecija and Nueva Vizcaya, where floors overtook the residents and drove them into the hills.

Thousands of head of livestock were drowned and many homes washed away. Roads were washed out and irrigation systems damaged. Forty inches of rain fell in 24 hours in Nueva Vizcaya.

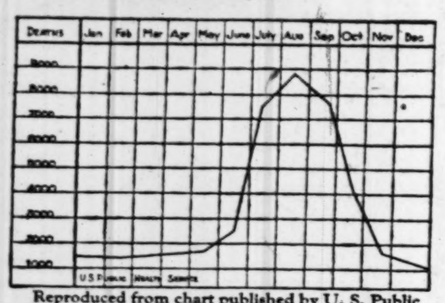
WATCH BABY'S HEALTH CLOSELY IN SUMMER

U. S. Public Health Reports Show Terrific Increase in Infant Mortality From Intestinal Disease During Hot Weather

"Summer is the purgatory of motherhood," according to Assistant Surgeon General W. C. Rucker and Surgeon C. C. Pierce of the United States Public Health Service, in a Supplement to the Public Health Reports.

From 12 to 20 out of every 100 babies born in the United States die during the first year, and the majority of these deaths occur during warm weather.

The principal contributing causes are given as improper feeding and intestinal disorders. Many valuable suggestions are made for proper feeding, sanitation and general care of children in summer.



Reproduced from chart published by U. S. Public Health Service to show appalling increase in the number of infant deaths from intestinal diseases during hot weather period.

The mother should nurse the child for the first year if possible; if not, modified milk is the best substitute. Keep baby cool during hot weather, especially by proper clothing and frequent bathing in tepid water. Give plenty of boiled water. Keep flies away from baby and all utensils used in preparing its food. Never consider any disturbance of baby's bowels as unimportant, or "only summer complaint."

At the first sign of bowel disorder the disturbance should be immediately remedied. In thousands of homes Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is relied on to correct and regulate the bowels. This mild, pleasant laxative, free from injurious drugs, can be given to even the tiniest babies with perfect safety. It can be bought at any drug store.

PEACE MEETING OF DEMOCRATS HERE TOMORROW

Gathering Not to Discuss League of Nations or World Court but Party Harmony.

By CURTIS A. BETTS.

Democratic leaders, who have arranged a State-wide conference of the party workers at the City Club tomorrow, hope and expect to get through the day without an inharmonious note. And it may be said that if they succeed there will have been accomplished a real achievement in Democratic politics.

For the past several campaigns a Democratic meeting in Missouri was generally a signal for a row, and the onlookers and eager participants seldom were disappointed.

But now it is proposed to change all of that. It is said there is to be no mention of the League of Nations or of the World Court, of of the Reed-Long primary fight of three years ago, or of any of the other fights dear to the hearts of the belligerents.

Soothing Speeches Expected.

Instead, there are to be get-together speeches, prepared with a view to solidifying the party organization and bringing the several factions into working agreement. There being no primary this year, the leaders considered this an opportune time to get everybody within the organization to agree on the method of reaching the desired end, which incontrovertibly is the polling of more votes than the Republicans poll in Missouri in 1926, and in the years thereafter.

While every Democrat in the State is invited to the meeting, which convenes in the City Club Auditorium at 10 o'clock, invitations have been mailed to several hundred members of the Democratic committees, and nearly 200 acceptances have been received.

Senator Reed will be one of the speakers, having the subject: "The Hypocrisy of the Coolidge Administration." Those in charge of the meeting, being partisan Democrats, express the belief that the subject will not only fit in with the Senator's mood, but will be handled by him in a way to arouse the Democrats of the State to organization efforts.

Other Speakers to Be Heard.

Among the other speakers will be Isaac H. Lionberger, former United States Senator Xenophon P. Wilfley, National Committeeman Kemper, the National Committeewoman, Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, former Gov. Dockery of Gallatin, former State Senator Hostetter of Bowling Green, Stephen Hunter of Cape Girardeau and Elmer E. Jones of La Plata.

Congressman Oldfield of Arkansas, chairman of the Democratic National Congressional Committee, will attend the conference and will discuss with the Democrats the plans for the congressional campaign in the State next year.

The St. Louis meeting is the second in the State this year, the first having been held in Kansas City several weeks ago and attended by Democrats from the western half of the State. It had been planned that the St. Louis meeting be for those in the eastern half, but it was changed to a State-wide meeting because of the desire of Oldfield to get into touch with Democrats from every congressional district.

Joshua Barbee of Kansas City, chairman, and Mrs. Katherine Halterman of Joplin, secretary, of the Democratic State Committee were occupied yesterday with arrangements for the gathering.

AMERICAN GIRL TO MARRY A PRINCE OF BOHEMIA

Miss Lihme Betrothed to Lebkowicz, Who Worked 4 Months as Department Store Clerk.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 27.—Mr. and Mrs. C. Bai Lihme, formerly of Chicago, today announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Anita, to Prince Edward John Lebkowicz, son of the late Prince August Lebkowicz of Bohemia. Prince Lebkowicz, son of the Countess Palewry of Vienna, bears one of the oldest titles in Europe.

The wedding will be at the summer home of the Lihmes in Watch Hill, R. I. Prince Lebkowicz returned to America on the Aquitania yesterday with the Lihmes, who had been his guests during part of their stay in Europe.

The Prince came to New York about a year ago and worked for four months as a department store clerk, but fled back to Europe, embarrassed because people continually pointed him out.

Miss Lihme is well known as a golfer in western and national competition.

CITY HALL JANITOR FREED OF CHARGE OF BOOTLEGGING

Judge Gayer Rules That George Arnold, Negro, Acted Only as Messenger for Detectives.

Charges of selling liquor against George Arnold, a City Hall janitor, and Warren Smith, another negro, were dismissed yesterday by Judge Gayer of the Courts of Criminal Correction, who held that the defendants had acted as messengers for detectives and not as bootleggers.

The detectives told how they had removed their coats, in order to look like employes at the hall, and asked for a janitor who had been named to them as a bootlegger. Arnold told them that he was taking care of that janitor's trade and was induced to send Smith to a saloon for a half-pint of whisky.

A Highly Efficient, Economical, Gas Water Heater Free with the
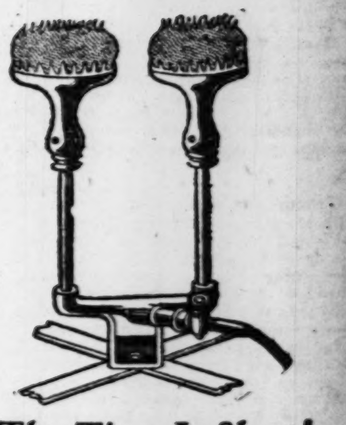
CATARACT
ELECTRIC WASHER

Take advantage of this opportunity to get a celebrated washer (with a 28 year successful career) and an efficient WATER HEATER FREE that will boil the clothes and sterilize them, too, right in the washer.

The 1900 Cataract owes its great success to its "Cataraction" principle of washing, by which the double oscillation of the big copper tub thoroughly cleanses every thread of fabric. With all of its superior washing ability it is guaranteed not to injure anything pure soap and water will not injure.

You have choice of a very low priced copper tub model 1900 Cataract or the de Luxe model with the new Safe-tee wringer, one of the greatest improvements on electric washers in years. We install the Water Heater free on either model during this special sale. It is a great convenience to have.

Have a free demonstration at home before you decide, if you like—no obligation. But don't delay. If you haven't read the announcement we mailed you recently, look it up right now and decide—TODAY—for this special offer may end any day.



The Time Is Short!

By special arrangement with the factory, we are giving away a limited number of these Water Heaters with 1900 Cataract Washers. We cannot tell how long this sale will continue—so DON'T DELAY.

LATONIA, Ky., June 27.—Fast, plucky and ridden with marvel- skill, Broadway Jones of the Idle Hour Stables, won the Latonia y from a field of the best in Eastern and Western stables. It a race during which 30,000 track fans—a colorful and lusty g—shouted and yelled as first one and then another horse the lead.

roadway Jones had to run the and a half in 2:31, just four- of a second under the record, in by a neck from King Nadi. rogress, a maiden, from the e Respess Stable, spurted home t open lengths behind King l for show money, leading Ca- us by another eight lengths.

t the barrier, Captain Hal took lead, closely followed by Broad- y Jones, King Nadi, Flying ony and Millwick, with the rest the field strung out behind.

Swope Takes Early Lead.

In the first dash past the judges' nd, Swope held a half length ntage with Captain Hal, Step g, Broadway Jones and the ers trailing. Step Along went in front at the mile. Swope, d in restraint, was second, and adway Jones was nursing along third. Step Along and Swope out on the back stretch, where g Nadi began going strong, fall- into second place with Broad- y Jones at the rail in front.

King Nadi, running hard under whip, came up to within a neck the winner. From there on it a sprinting duel. The King ly crept up until at the eighth he apparently was about to ch the leader. Jockey Meyer his colt the gun and they e in under the wire not a neck rt. It was a thrilling finish be- n these two.

Progress was a tired horse at the h. He came into third place way back in the field after g off to a slow start.

Western Horses All in Money.

It was a day for Western horses. , place, show and stake all went stables this side of the Atlantic board.

The pari-mutuels paid Broadway $12.10 to win, $4.90 to place $3.50 to show. King Nadi col- ed $5.10 to place, $3.50 to show, ile Progress paid $4.00 to show. The race was worth $25,225 to winner, $3000 to the owner of second horse and $1500 to the d. The fourth horse saved his kes.

The Cincinnati trophy, the sec- ary feature of today's racing, won by Percentage, coupled in mutuel betting with Barbara the Cold Stream Farm and Par- entry, making a neck victory m Blockhead, while Alleghan, pled with Prince Charles was rd.

The masterful ride of Jockey ck Garner was a large factor in success of Percentage, who was y tired at the finish.

The race, a six-furlong event rth $9660 to the winner, was in 1:13 2-5. Sixteen horses ap- red at the barrier.

Mertz Is Victor Over Reeder in Illinois Tourney

St. Clair Star Wins Southern Illinois Title for Fourth Time.

By the Associated Press.

MOUNT VERNON, Ill., June 27.—William Mertz of St. Clair won the Southern Illinois golf tournament for the fourth time when he defeated George Reeder of Mount Vernon 2 and 1 in the finals here today.

Reeder led throughout the match up to the thirty-second hole, which the St. Clair star won, putting him 1 up. The next two holes were halved and then Mertz took the thirty-fifth and match.

Fred Merrills of St. Clair won the championship consolation, defeating W. F. McKelvey of Sparta.

Sheriff John Small of Harrisburg won the Class A flight and Joe Rainey the Class B. flight.

Canadian Eleven Defeats America

By the Associated Press.

MONTREAL, June 27—A picked Canadian team triumphed over an All-Star United States eleven here today, one goal to nothing, in the first soccer match between the two countries ever played on this side of the line. The game was played on a slippery field, following a heavy rain.

The lone goal for Canada was scored by McLane in the first half after 16 minutes of play. The visiting team then pressed vigorously to the attack, but in spite of the fact that their forward line included the pick of United States players, led by the record-breaking goal-maker, Archie Stark, of Bethlehem, the Americans were unable to push the ball through the posts.

CARDINALS TURN FOUR DOUBLE PLAYS; BLADES STARS WITH 2 TRIPLES

Rookie Hurler From Syracuse So Effective Only Three Chicago Runners Are Left on Bases

By Herman Wecke.

Arthur Reinhart, southpaw, recently obtained from the Syracuse club of the International League, made his first start in the National League yesterday and pitched the Cardinals to a 5 to 0 victory over the Chicago Cubs. It was the second successive conquest for the men of Hornsby over the Windy City club and gave the locals a finer hold on fifth place in the Heydler circuit's pennant race. The reverse dropped the Chicago team to seventh position.

Reinhart held the Cubs to seven hits and was helped along by brilliant fielding, the defense turning four fast double plays behind him. In only one round were the Bruins able to get more than one safety off Reinhart. That was in the fourth, when Freigau singled and Brooks bunted safely down the third base line.

In six of the nine rounds, Reinhart was forced to pitch to only three batters, and the enemy had but three men left on bases. Reinhart had almost perfect control. He walked only one man, Adams, the first batter to face him.

Percy Jones Batted Out.

As a result of Reinhart's great game the Cardinals finished the week with a record of 3 victories against 4 defeats for an average of .429. The record in the four weeks that Hornsby has been in charge is 18 victories against 9 defeats, a winning percentage of .667. That is at a pace faster than any other team in the Haydler circuit has traveled in the same space of time.

Opposed to Reinhart at the start of the clash was Percy Jones, the southpaw, who prior to his out against the Cardinals had won five games and lost only one. Jones was shelled off the hill in the fifth, when the Cardinals sent three runners across the plate.

In this round a bit of strategy by the Chicago board went awry. It came after Hornsby had been purposely passed and Bottomley followed with a triple between Weis and Brooks. It was a tremendous smash and proved once more the fallacy of the old statement that a southpaw batter cannot hit a lefthanded pitcher.

Two Triples for Blades.

The men of Hornsby reached Jones for seven safeties in the three rounds he was on the hill. Three more were added off Guy Bush, his successor, giving the home talent a total of 10 for the day. Included in this lot were a double and three triples. Each of the three wallops, two by Blades, and that crash by Bottomley figured in the scoring.

Blades waded into Jones' first pitch and drove the ball over Brooks' head in center for three bases. Shinners worked the call to 3 and 2, and then singled to center, putting across the first run of the game.

Strategy turned out to be tragedy for the Cubs in the fifth. With one out, Blades singled and advanced on Shinner's martyr death. Here the Cubs board of strategy decided to walk Hornsby to get at Bottomley. The first-sacker pounded Jones' next offering to left center for a triple and two runs went over. Flack walked and then Toporcer singled to drive in Bottomley with the third run of the inning. This outburst from the Hornsby sockers incidentally ended Jones' stay on the hill.

Another marker came off Guy Bush, Jones' successor in the sixth, when O'Farrell singled and was forced by Reinhart. Blades followed with his second triple of the battle and Reinhart counted.

Thereafter neither club got a man within scoring distance, but it mattered not to the Cardinals, as they already had the battle won.

Jess Haines, who has won four of his last five outs, and Bill Sherdel are scheduled to oppose the Cubs in the double-header today. The games will close the Cardinals' present at-home stand. John Blake and Wilbur Cooper are down to fling for the enemy. Play at 2 o'clock.

Following three open dates, which will be filled with exhibition games at Quincy, Ill., Bur-

U. S. Army Polo Team Beaten by The Maharaja of Jodphur's Four Americans, Fresh From Winning Championship in England, Drubbed 13 to 3 in Match With Quartet From India.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 27.—The championship United States army polo team was defeated today, 13 goals to 3, by the famous Indian team of the Maharaja of Jodphur.

The Jodphur Stars played rings around their opponents most of the match. They excelled particularly at long hitting. The Indian potentate polo aggregation is the finest team in India. It hails from Rajputana, which for untold generations has been noted for the polo stars it produces.

The overwhelming defeat of the American four today was due largely to staleness after their recent championship matches. The two teams were about evenly mounted, but the Indians displayed far greater skill and were vastly more accurate in their hitting.

The line-ups on the Hurlingham field were:

UNITED STATES: No. 1, Maj. A. H. Wilson; No. 2, Capt. C. H. Gerhardt; No. 3, Capt. Peter H Rhodes, and Maj. L. A. Bard, back

JODPUR: No. 1, Thakur Prithi Singh; No. 2, Dalpat Singh; No. 3, Rao Rannah Hanut Singh, and Thakur Ram Singh, back.

YANKEE DOODLE THIRD U. S. CHALLENGER FOR THE HARMSWORTH CUP

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., June 27.—The Columbia Yacht Club of New York, on behalf of H. Alex Johnson, has filed a challenge for the British International (Harmsworth) trophy, which will be defended by Gar Wood, representing the Detroit Yacht Club, Sept. 5-7.

Johnson, it was learned today, will enter the Yankee Doodle, a hydroplane he now is building, as his entry.

Three boats now have been named for the American team, the greatest number that can represent one conutry. Wood has named two boats. Horace E. Dodge of Detroit has intimated he soon will enter one or two boats, in which case an elimination contest to determine the three best boats will be held. Wood's boats have not been given names, but probably will be the Miss America III and the Miss Detroit VIII.

The Yankee Doodle is being built primarily to capture the world's straightaway record of 80.567 miles an hour.

MOBERLY SIGNS KERR TO PITCH ON SUNDAYS

MOBERLY, Mo., June 27.—Dickie Kerr, former Chicago White Sox star hurler, will pitch for the Moberly Signals in their game with Macon at Macon tomorrow in the Illmo League.

Kerr has been signed to play with the Signals every Sunday for the balance of the season. Wheatley of Kansas City is also on the Signal staff.

Champion Joe Smith Survives First Round of Junior Tourney

No Upsets of Form in Singles Play at Forest Park — Two Seeded Players in Boys' Division Defeated.

The annual junior and boys tennis tournament for the championship of the St. Louis District opened yesterday on the municipal courts in Forest Park near the Jefferson Memorial. Winners of the eliminations in various parts of the district are participating in the play.

Nineteen contests were decided in the first round of the Junior singles. The remaining first round matches will be played today. Opening contests in the junior doubles are also on the program.

There were no upsets in the singles yesterday although several matches were very close. Leon Nuemann, the Forest Park player, forced Richard Dietrich of the Ferris Club to a close contest. Dietrich won by scores of 11-9, 7-5. Melvin Zoellner, the O'Fallon entrant, won from Harry Bischoff of Fairgrounds in a three set battle. The score was 6-4, 4-6, 6-2. Joe Smith, the present champion, won easily from C. Harrison in the first round match.

Two of the seeded players were eliminated in the first round of the Boys' singles yesterday. Alfred Rothchild of Tower Grove Park surprised by winning from Herbert Steideman, the O'Fallon player, in straight sets, 6-0, 9-7. F. Wyman of Oakland eliminated H. Berkin, of Forest Park, one of the favorites for the title. The score was 6-4, 6-4.

William Bascom, another seeded player, will play his first round

LIVERPOOL, June 27.—The combined team of 22 athletes representing Oxford and Cambridge universities, who will compete against Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Cornell in a series of track meets in the United States, July 11-18, sailed on the steamer Caronia for New York today. The team is captained by D. G. A. Lowe, the half-mile Olympic champion, and includes Lord Burghley, the crack hurdler, who took part last April in the games of the University of Pennsylvania.

BUSH WEAKENS AND BROWNS LOSE TO TIGERS, 5-4

Deciding Run Made Off Wingard in Ninth; McManus Hits Homer

Cobb's Men Count One in Seventh and Two in Eighth to Tie Score—Lamotte Makes Three Hits, Two of Them Doubles.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., June 27.—The Detroit Tigers came up from behind in the eighth and ninth innings and made it three straight victories over the Browns today, when they nosed Sisler's men out 5 to 4. It was the ninth consecutive victory for the Tigers.

As in yesterday's game, it was Burke, pinch hitting for O'Rourke, who started things. His single in the seventh put Haney on third, from whence Haney scored. In the ninth Burke again singled and counted with the winning run, following singles by Wingo and Blue.

Joe Bush had all the better of the argument in the early rounds, setting Detroit down with a lone run and but four scattered hits until the seventh. But Joe weakened late in the contest.

Seven hits were made off Bush in the seventh, eighth and ninth. They were good for four runs and the ball game.

McManus Knocks Homer.

The Browns scored early off Wells and held a lead up to the eighth round. In the first frame Lamotte made the first of his three hits, a double to short left, and counted ahead of McManus when Marty socked the ball over the left-field fence for four bases.

Sisler's men got a pair of runners on again in the second with only one out, but Bush and Evans failed.

In the third, however, the St. Louisans looked worse. Lamotte led off with his second double. Sisler grounded out to Blue and the St. Louis shortstop was on third with only one down. This time McManus struck out. Williams walked, but Jacobson followed McManus' bad example, missing a third strike.

Jake and Robbie Hit.

A pass to Lamotte and singles by McManus, Jacobson and Robertson gave the Browns their other two scores in the fifth.

Off Rip Collins in the eighth the Missourians made three successive singles, but Evans was nailed at the plate trying to score from second and the rally was fruitless.

George Dauss pitched the ninth for Detroit and got credit for the victory. Bush was charged with the defeat, although the deciding run was made off Ernie Wingard. With the bases filled and one on, Lou Blue hit the southpaw's first pitch for a single.

"Dixie" Davis is due to hurl for the Browns in the final game this afternoon, while Cobb is expected to send in Dauss, after starting three left-handers in succession in the series.

"Sparky" Adams made a nice play on Toporcer's slow roller behind the pitcher's box in the first and retired his man with a good throw to Gonzales.

Heine Mueller, who was injured in sliding into the plate in the game on June 1, had the plaster cast removed from his leg and expects to play in a short time. Dr. Hyland, club physician, also has removed the cast from Walter Gerber's leg.

A good crowd, estimated at 9000, turned out to see the men of Hornsby make it two in a row over the Bruins.

"Mandy" Brooks, the Cubs' new center fielder, had another good day at the plate, with three safeties in three attempts.

Cliff Heathcote, former Cardinal, took an extra base hit away from O'Farrell in the fourth, when he leaped high for his line drive, and Toporcer was doubled off second to get Jones out of a tight place. It was one of the prettiest catches seen in some time and it cut off at least two runs.

The Cardinals' double play combination was working over time. Three were turned in the first four rounds. There was another later.

"Gabby" Hartnett tested O'Farrell's arm in the fifth and was out so far he did not even take the trouble to slide.

Reinhart knocked down Gonzales' terrific smash in the eighth and got his man at first base.

Bob O'Farrell started to hit again. He had two safeties and was robbed of another.

Soccer League Planned.

ROCKFORD, Ill., June 27.—Organization of a Rock River soccer league in time for play next fall is contemplated by devotees of the sport, who hope to establish a circuit with six or eight cities represented, including Rockford and Freeport, Ill., and Beloit and Janesville, Wis. A meeting is to be held in Beloit soon to complete organization of the league.

Pirates and Reds Split Double Bill

Babe Adams Wins, 3-2, but Donohue Takes Second Game, 6-2.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 27.—The Pirates and the Reds split even in a twin bill today. Old Babe Adams earned a 3 to 2 verdict over Dolf Luque but Pete Donohue mystified the Pirates in the night cap and had no trouble winning, 6 to 2 as his mates took kindly to the delivery of Aldridge.

The largest crowd which ever attended a ball game in Pittsburg was out for the bargain bill, the 12,000 new additions in right field being completely filled.

In the first game, Adams was touched for an even dozen hits, but he pitched in the pinches. Luque, although beaten, did not allow a hit in any inning till two were out.

Phillies Defeat Dodgers, 10 to 6

Score in Only Two Innings Off Grimes but Extra-Base Hits Win.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BROOKLYN, June 27.—In only two innnigs of their opening game here this afternoon were the Phillies able to score off the delivery of Burleigh Grimes, but those two innings were quite sufficient to give Manager Fletcher's hirelings the long end of a 10 to 6 argument.

Lew Fonseca's four-ply wallop in the sixth with the bases filled and Wrightstone's three-bagger in the seventh with two on were the big blows of the frames that gave Philadelphia five runs apiece.

Jimmy Ring, though slightly unsteady in the early chapters, outlasted the Brooklyn spitball hurler in the long run. After the sixth frame, Jimmy was all but invincible.

St. Clair Golfers to Oppose Park Stars in Match This Afternoon

WALTER "POACH" MURRAY, Forest Park amateur, and Earl Howell, assistant professional at the municipal course, will oppose Walter Kossman, St. Clair professional, and Bill Mertz, Southern Illinois champion, in a special match at Forest Park this afternoon.

Mertz and Kossman defeated Murray and Vincent Netteler, 1 up in 19 holes, several weeks ago and today's contest was arranged as a return match.

Bill Shrader, the fashion plate golfer, official starter and grand gallery roper, will officiate as referee. Bill will start the boys on their way at 2 o'clock.

WRAY'S COLUMN

A Step Backward.

A RULE of the new California Boxing Commission promises to do considerable harm to the game out there. It prohibits the use of bandages.

Under cover of this rule, boxers can "pull their punches" and have at hand a plausible explanation. They may complain, with reason, that the absence of bandages renders them fearful of breaking their hands.

Sammy Mandell, a high-class fighter, already was driven to this recourse. He said:

"Had I taken a chance against Salvadore without bandages I might have mashed my hands and been ruined for my profession. That is why I did not try for knockouts when openings presented themselves.

"The commission has made a mistake, because all boys today are sensitive about their hands and have been brought up to use bandages."

Bandages More Merciful.

TIME was when they fought with the "raw 'uns." Not even skin-tight gloves were used. History tells us that this was the period of bloody, brutal bouts in which the fighters slowly chopped one another to mincemeat, probably fearing to strike a blow with full force for fear of broken hands.

When gloves came, the knockout appeared; and then when bandages were used in connection with the gloves, knockouts became even more frequent, because the fighter feared less the effect of striking with all his force.

Because it shortens fights and is nearly always bloodless, the knockout is much more merciful than long fights, in which the principals slowly batter one another into exhaustion.

California, do we hear you calling, "Bring back those bandages"?

Rough on Paul.

PAUL BERLENBACH has won himself a world's light-weight championship. But keeping it is likely to cause him more anguish than winning it.

Mike McTigue, whom he defeated, was an innocuous safety-first man; but not so the gentlemen now lined up and awaiting their respective turns at Berlenbach.

First, there is Jack Delaney (Chapdelaine) who gets the first wallop at Paul on July 17. Jack already has knocked out Berlenbach.

Then we have Jimmy Slattery, the Buffalo meteor, who is cleaning up all the light-heavy-weight world as fast as its units step up.

Looking over Slattery's shoulder is Young Stribling, now rounding into efficient manhood, and a formidable light-heavyweight of great promise.

Then there is Jimmy Delaney of St. Paul, a product of Tommy Gibbons' camp and a very, very flashy fighter.

And back of all these, the grim figures of Tom Gibbons himself and his conqueror, the American light - heavyweight champion, Gene Tunney, loom up.

Pulling the Horatius stuff of holding the bridge against an army is nothing to Berlenbach's job.

However, taking on two per year will string out the ordeal for a period of three seasons. By that time Paul may have become a real champion, instead of just a hard hitter.

Selling vs. Claiming Race.

MORE and more racing programs are running to claiming races where, in the old days, selling purses were the vogue. With feed-box stuff absent from St. Louis for 20 years, long-range followers of the game have become confused as to the nature of the two events.

Inquiries reveal that a majority of newspaper followers of horse races think selling and claiming races are identical. There is a distinction:

SELLING RACES provide that the WINNER must be sold at auction immediately after the race is run, for the entry price, or more if the owner protects his horse. All other horses except the winner may be claimed by any person, except the owner, for the entry price within 15 minutes after the race.

CLAIMING RACES are those in which EVERY horse may be claimed by anyone except the owner for its entry price, AT or BEFORE post time of the race in which the horse claimed is to run.

Thus, the vital distinction is that there is no auction feature to the selling race.

Many bitter "selling race wars" resulted from owners trying to get big weight allowances by entering their horses to be sold for a low price and the race fell into disfavor with racing associations.

No Stadium, This Year.

YES, we have no stadium. While million dollar drives are smashing the alumni pocketbook heavily all about us, St Louis is without either drive or bowl.

But we have prospects.

The St. Louis Public School board is putting one over. And the public pocketbook will not be highly financed to do it. The structure will be made to pay its own way and pay for its own construction—which is more than many of the University associations owning bowls are able to boast.

Only One Like It.

NOR will it be at a high cost $3.30 per football game. Profits from high school sports (which involve about one one-hundredth the expense of collegiate football) and from renting the stadium for other uses are figured as sufficient to successfully put across the enterprise which is to give us eventually an arena seating over 60,000.

If completed it will probably be the only exclusively high school stadium in the United States.

It's Obsolete.

START on this structure has not yet been begun, although the plans are nearing completion. Ground will be broken in the fall and the first section will be ready for use for the base-ball season next year, in all probability.

In the meantime, to insure the financial success of the undertaking, the board might consider the advisability of rescinding a moss-covered, reactionary rule which prohibits games with teams from more than 25 miles outside the St. Louis limits.

YANKEES TAKE TWO GAMES FROM BOSTON; MEUSEL HITS 2 HOMERS

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, June 27.—The Yankees took both ends of a double header with the Red Sox today, winning the opener, 10 to 5, and the second 5 to 1.

Two home runs by Bob Meusel, which brings his season's total to 18, were responsible for all the New York runs in the final contest, one coming in the opening inning with two on base and the other in the sixth with one on. Boston has now lost nine straight. Babe Ruth sat on the bench except for a few innings' work in the first game.

CLARENCE WOLFF WINS TRANS-MISSISSIPPI GOLF TITLE

St. Louisan Sees 7 Up Lead Wiped Out; Then Beats Iowan, 2 and 1

Bartlett of Ottumwa, 7 Down After Wolff's Record-Breaking 70 in Morning, Shoots Brilliantly and Squares Match at 30th Hole.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OMAHA, Neb., June 27.—Clarence Wolff of Sunset Hill Country ub, St. Louis, is the new Trans-Mississippi golf champion. The St. uis stylist won the championship today, defeating Arthur Bartlett Ottumwa, Ia., 2 up and 1, and in capturing the title, Wolff displayed urage to the utmost degree.

To win the twin title Wolff set course record of 70 for the re-structed links and gained a lead 7 up in the forenoon round, ly to see his large margin vanish mentarily while Bartlett made a w record of 69 in the second und. The contest furnished prob-ly the most spectacular scoring at ever marked the finals of any jor championship, and it was y by returning to better than r shooting that Wolff managed nose out a victory.

Wolff never had been regarded a great match player. Always brilliant medalist, he was said to ve a tendency to falter in a man man contest, and that he could t sustain his brilliant game in face of a fine performance by opponent. But Wolff proved to-y that he had the style, the abil-y and the stout heart.

It is easy to play brilliantly hen the other man is off his me. It is easy to buckle down d fight gamely when the other an has a lead. But Wolff fought urageously under the most de-ralizing conditions. Seven up er the morning round of eigh-en holes, which he shot in a rec-d-breaking score of 70, three un-r par, he saw his opponent crack r and bag birdies after lunch un-l the St. Louisan's lead was whit-d down and finally wiped out.

Stopped An Irresistable Rush.

And then with the match all uare and only five holes to play, th his opponent occupying the tter position of having beaten k and squared the match—noth-g gives a player more confidence Wolff checked that brilliant ral-y the five-time Iowa champion d won the match

Wolff deserved the victory. He ed up the Missouri State tour-ent to come to the Omaha Club a week ahead of the s-Mississippi and he practiced ntly over the course, until he w every bunker, every hazard, roll of every fairway and the of every green. And through-the tournament he reaped the d of his practice. He knocked ball around near par in every h and capped off the week his brilliant 70 this morning his all-sufficient score near par afternoon.

The Morning Round.

Wolff was 7 up on Bartlett at end of their first 18 holes. ff was in the greatest form of tournament. He shot the in-nine holes in 33, a new e record and four strokes be-par. On this nine he had four lies and five pars. He missed eagle on No. 5 by inches when drove the green, a distance of yards, and his putt rimmed the . However, he was still able et an easy birdie three.

Wolff was playing head and lders above Bartlett in every rtment of the game. He was istently outdriving him and on greens he was unbeatable. ever, it must be admitted that tlett was noticeably off his e and all the breaks were inst him. Bartlett himself went d this same outside nine only rday in 34, which is one e more than Wolff's record.

On No. 16 Wolff was handed a a dozen telegrams from his Louis friends telling him that y were with him, but that he s not to fail in bringing back championship cup which Jim Manion left behind when he put out of the running on first match.

Birdie on First Hole.

Wolff started his great game by g on No. 1. However, he was n two and sank a birdie three. n No. 16 Wolff demonstrated of his crack shots. After go-into a bunker he used his put-to get out of the trouble. He d the cup but the effort was mendable one. Bartlett rolled r the cup on his try but laid a mie for Wolff. After carefully erating Wolf took a putter h had a freak face on it and enough english on his ball to around Bartlett's lie and into the cup. It was a great and Wolff was applauded for Bartlett ended the morning d by taking the eighteenth with some clever work. He pped over a stymie laid by ff for a par four and the hole, went to lunch seven down.

No Weakening by Wolff.

With an overwhelming lead of 7 and still playing par, Wolff saw tables reversed in the second d, for Bartlett, showing the ling game that had netted him Iowa State titles, bagged five s and scored 33 for the first leaving him only two down. the scintilliating work of the wa player gave him two s and a par at the start of the home stretch, or six under par for 12 holes, to square the match. Then the Iowan halved the thirty-first in par, making the match still even with five holes to go. He had shot 13 holes in five under fours.

This brand of golf was too good to be maintained by anyone, and Bartlett slipped into a trap on No. 32, taking five, while Wolff got home in par four to be one up again. Bartlett made no error on the thirty-third, but Wolff sank a long putt for a birdie three and was two up and only three to play. Bartlett had the advantage at the next green but failed to get down a six-foot putt for a birdie, and Wolff was dormie two.

No one ever weakened in this match, no matter what the difficulties, and Bartlett gave an example of fine playing under adverse conditions at the thirty-fifth. Both had good drives but the Iowan pushed his second behind two trees, 150 yards from the green. He had to choke the shot to keep from hitting one tree with his club and to play exactly to get the ball between them, but he dropped the pellet on the edge of the green. He could get no better than par five for the 561-yard hole, however, and Wolff clinched the title with a half that made him 2 up and 1 to play.

Record-Breaking Golf.

They played out the bye hole for the benefit of the large gallery, which had gone wild over the thrilling contest, and Bartlett got a par 4 for a 36, giving him a record of 69 for the links, which is 623 yards from the new back tees. Wolff got a birdie 3 on the thirty-sixth hole, making him even with par 73 for the last 18.

Low medal score in the qualifying rounds was 150, shared by Walter Murray and James Manion of St. Louis, while Wolff today, after a week of severe golf and under the strain of a final bout for the title, scored 143, and Bartlett, with a 78 this morning, tallied 147.

The match disclosed no really poor shots during the whole 36 holes. Wolff half-topped a couple of shots and he shanked his approach once, but he more than made up for these few slight errors by sinking putts from all over the green on a dozen holes. Bartlett was slightly outdriven most of the time but his chip shots were deadly most of the way. There were only two sixes, Bartlett getting 6 on the 432-yard fourth in the morning and Wolff the like on the same hole in the afternoon.

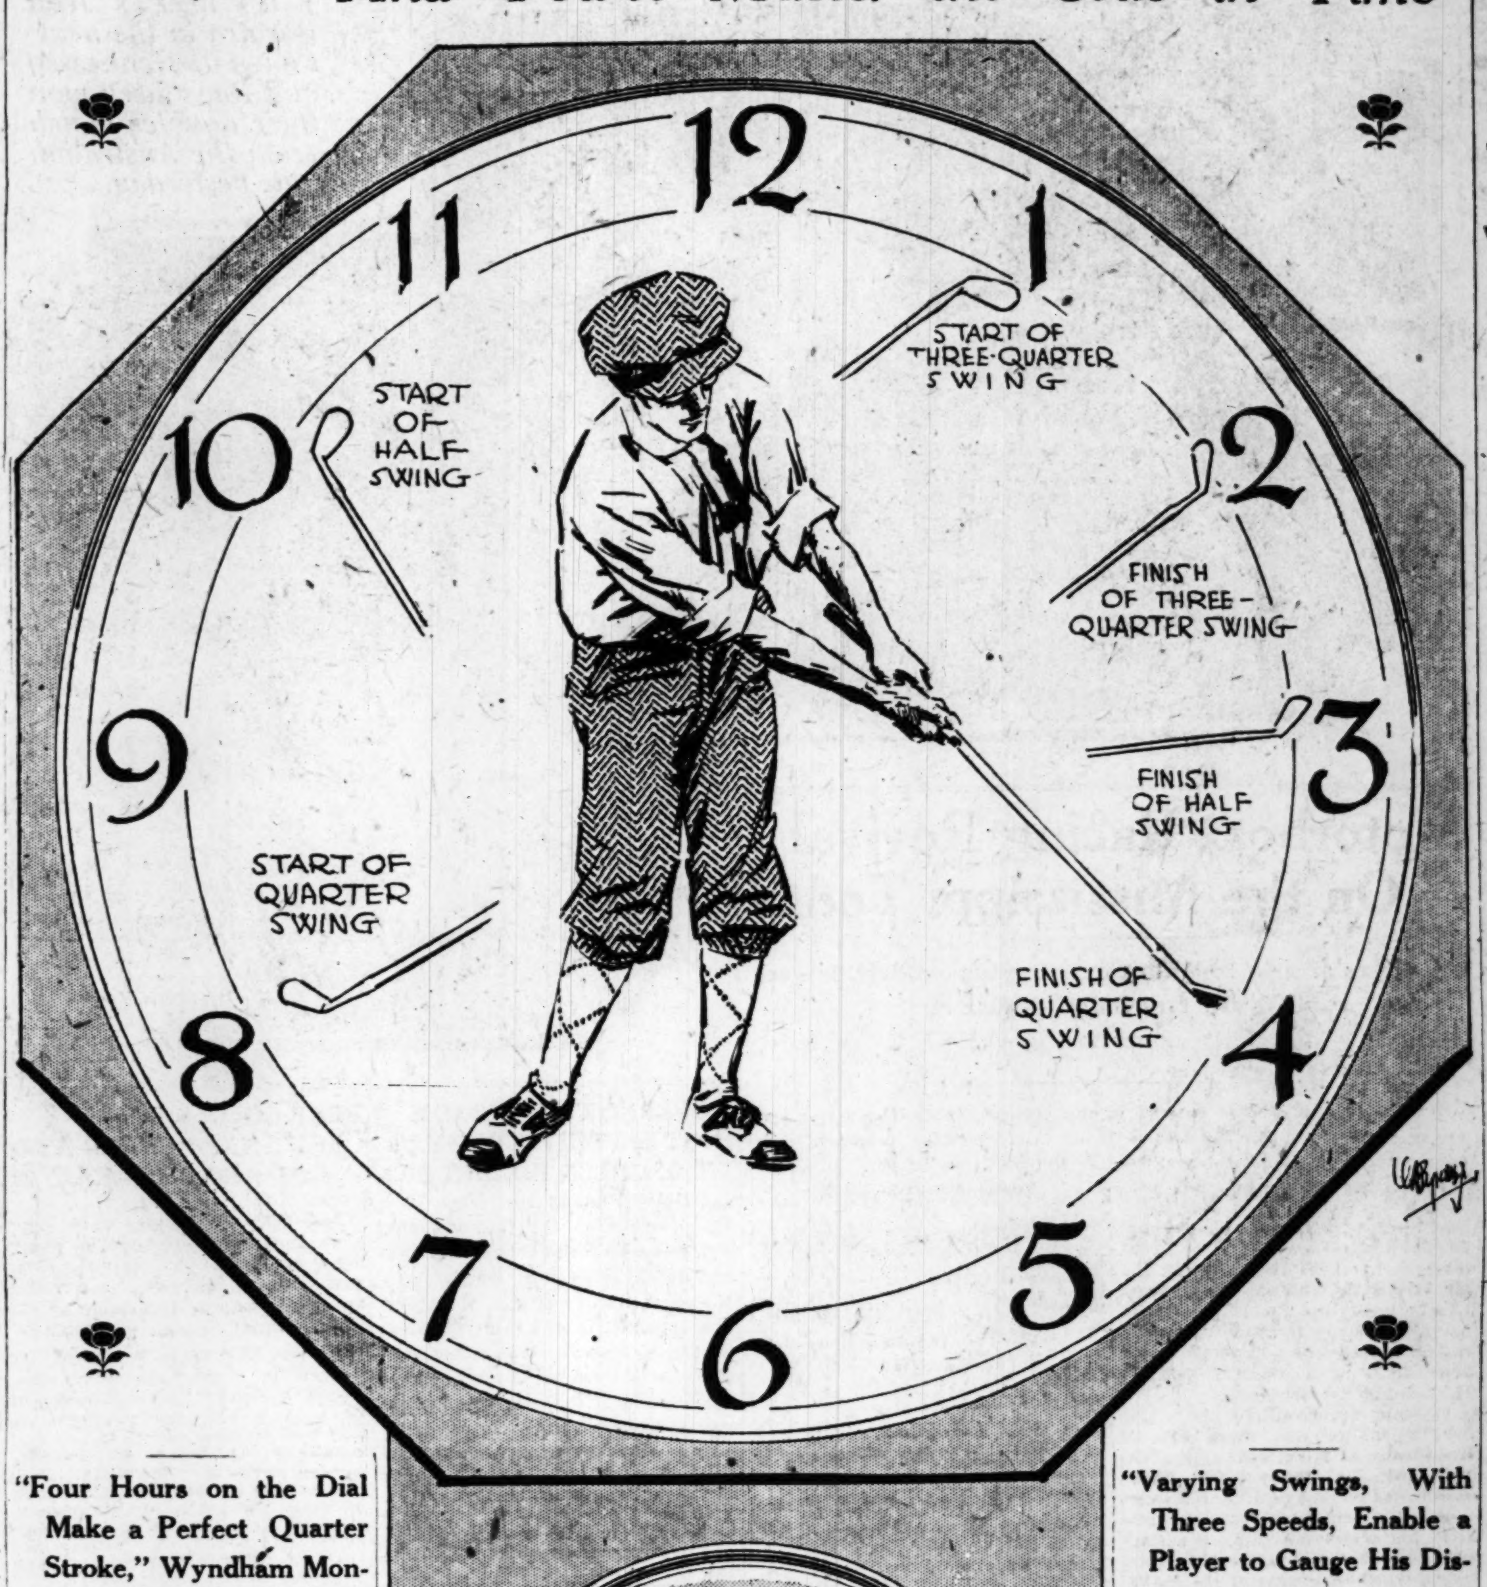
Iowa Team Wins Polo Match.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., June 27.—The Wakonda Country Club team of Des Moines, Ia., won the first match in the second circuit elimination handicap polo tournament at Fort Leavenworth today from the Second Cavalry team, Fort Smith, Ark. The score was 14 to 4.

"Swing Your Mashie From 8 O'Clock to 4 -:- -:- And You'll Master the Club in Time"



"Four Hours on the Dial Make a Perfect Quarter Stroke," Wyndham Monroe, Professional, Tells His Pupils.

By J. Roy Stockton.

"TAKE your club head back to 8 o'clock and in making your shot, carry it through to 4 o'clock. That's your quarter swing.

"Now try it again. Back to 8 o'clock and through to 4 o'clock. Remember, 8 o'clock to 4 o'clock."

That sounded like a rather long swing, from 8 o'clock to 4 o'clock. Many a time the writer had played 36 holes in that time and as the conversation was between a golf professional and a pupil at Midland Valley and not at the Cracked Nut Country Club, he decided to stop and determine what it was all about.

Wyndham Monroe, Midland professional, was giving a lesson, a lesson on how to use the mashie, that most useful but most tantalizing of clubs, and after he had finished with the pupil the pro was asked to go through it again from the beginning.

"From 8 O'Clock to Four."

"MANY persons find golf lessons difficult, because they don't know what the professional is talking about when he uses technical terms familiar to experienced golfers," Monroe explained. "For instance, if I take a beginner and tell him to use a quarter swing, I might as well tell an infant to take the co-efficient of the tangent.

"But when I tell the beginner to visualize a large clock and to take the club back until the head is opposite the figure 8, he sees it 'right now.' And when I tell him to swing and stop the club head so it will be opposite four on the imaginary clock, he gets it immediately.

"I teach the mashie in three phases, with three speeds to each phase. But first I get the player familiar with the phases, the quarter swing, where he takes the club back to 8 o'clock and takes it through to 4 o'clock; the half swing, where he takes the club head back to 10 o'clock and carries it through to 2 o'clock, and the three-quarter swing, where he takes the head back to 1 o'clock and takes it around to 2 o'clock.

Three Speeds.

"AFTER he has mastered the three swings, which he can use for short, medium and long mashie shots, I take up the speeds.

"The quarter swing is used for shots from 15 to 35 yards, the half swing to carry from 35 to 65 yards and the three-quarter for distances from 65 yards to 105 yards.

"Varying Swings, With Three Speeds, Enable a Player to Gauge His Distance From 15 to 105 Yards."

"When the golfer has the three swings well in hand, he makes the quarter swing in slow speed for 15 yards, second speed for 25 yards and high speed for 35 yards.

"Slow speed with the half swing is the same as fast with the quarter swing, 35 yards. Second speed, half swing, is for 50 yards, and high speed, half swing, is for 65 yards.

"In the same way, high speed half swing or slow speed three-quarter can be used for 65 yards. Second speed, three-quarter, will take you 85 yards and high speed, three-quarter, is good for 105 yards.

Value of the Mashie.

"WHEN the golfer has mastered his three swings and the three speeds with the mashie, his game with the mashie is grooved. He measures the distance, decides which swing he must use and makes the swing with the speed selected.

"The mashie is one of the most useful clubs in the world. The man who can pitch his shots accurately to the green is the man who can win tournaments, and there is no club that should receive more attention from the player than the mashie."

Just then another pupil came along and Monroe, the scholar of the professional ranks, began explaining again how, if you take the club head back to 8 o'clock and take it through to 4 o'clock, you will make a dandy little pitch to the green, 15, 25 or 35 yards away.

De Mar Is Victor In Marathon Run

Big Week of Golf Sees Ten New Golf Champions Win Titles

Jim Barnes, Once a Professional at Sunset Hill, and Clarence Wolff, an Amateur From the Same Organization, Among the New Titleholders.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 27.—While Long Jim Barnes of Detroit put in a busy and successful week in Scotland in dealing with all who challenged the supremacy of American golf, a host of satellites trudged over homeland links in competition which brought a new crop of regional and class champions into the roll of golf celebrities.

Many new names are in the list of the week's victors.

Here is the list:

Jim Barnes annexed the British open title at Prestwick with 300 for 72 holes. It was his last unconquered world for he had previously held every other major crown for which he was eligible.

Fred Lamprecht, Tulane University student from Cleveland, O., won the national intercollegiate title at Mont Clair, N. J., after Dexter Cummings, twice winner, had been upset in the first round by Lauren Upson of California.

Clarence Wolff, St. Louis, took first honors in the Trans-Mississippi tournament at Omaha by defeating Arthur Bartlett of Ottumwa, Ia., 2 and 1, in the final round.

Mrs. S. L. Reinhart, Dallas, Tex., triumphed for the second consecutive time in the Women's Western Golf Association medal play championship with 250 for 54 holes.

Mrs. A. Schill, playing on a home town course at Kansas City, took the Missouri Valley women's championship.

Kenneth Hisert, University of Chicago, upset Mode Holdsworth, Michigan, the title holder, in the Western Conference competition, 3 and 2.

Allen Oakley of Quincy won the Central Illinois Country Club championship, played at Peoria.

Eldridge Robinson, Chicago, took the Illinois amateur crown for the second consecutive time at Chicago.

Eddie Hassman, 21, of Cleveland, is the new Ohio amateur champion.

John Marshal Jr. made off with the Kentucky amateur honors at Louisville for the third consecutive time.

H. Chandler Egan, Medford, Ore., formerly national amateur champion, won the Pacific Northwest amateur title at Tacoma.

What for $10 a Year?

GOLFERS won't object to paying $10 a year for the privilege of playing over the Forest Park course, if the fairways are well cropped and the putting greens are kept in good condition. The golfers have wanted a fee measure passed for several years. But now that the golf fee is a fact, the public course golfers are beginning to wonder what the future will bring. There's nothing modest about the public course golfer, especially when it comes to dreams of the future. Here are a few of the things the Forest Park golfers hopes:

That the $10 a year fee will keep the course in condition and leave a surplus with which to buy, in a few years, a tract of ground in the county for another public course.

That the greens will all be made as good as Nos. 13, 18 and 9. The Forest Park Golf Club paid for the rebuilding of 13 and 18, which were opened today.

That a man or group of men familiar with golf and what the golfers want, be kept in charge of the public course.

That the $10 fee will eliminate from the course those golfers who have not the common decency to replace divots and in other ways protect the fairways and greens.

Paul Palmer, president of the Forest Park Golf Club, said yesterday that he hoped the $10 fee would enable the city to buy more ground for golf purposes. He estimated that there would be an annual surplus of $20,000.

Chicago Has the Idea.

PERHAPS the $10 fee is a starter that eventually will enable St. Louis to catch up with other cities in the matter of public golf facilities. In Chicago there are numerous public and semi-public courses. Ground under the control of the Forest Preserve Commission is being turned into golf courses. A tract is given to corporations and syndicates for a specified period of time. The corporation builds a golf course, charges a daily or yearly fee and makes a substantial profit during its tenure of the land. Then after the period elapses, the ground reverts to the Forest Preserve Commission and the people of Chicago have another public course.

St. Louis might take the tip and buy acreage in St. Louis County. Many fine tracts are available. The time is not far off when it will be dangerous to play golf in Forest Park. Apartments are going up like mushrooms west of the park and the time will come when it will be a question of barring the children, for their safety, or barring the golfers.

Greens No. 13 and 18 are an argument for keeping the course under the supervision of men who know golf and golfers. The Forest Park Golf Club footed the bill on the two greens and employed a company which does nothing but build golf courses. The greens are beautiful in their texture and they are scientifically banked.

New Triple A Record.

ALBERT BOHN, the red-haired caddie master at the Triple A Club has set a new course record of 31 for the nine-hole course. Red started with a deuce on No. 1, shot a par four on the second, par three on the third, par 4 on the fourth and then knocked off a birdie three on the fifth. He was even with par on No. 6, bagged another birdie on No. 7, a birdie four on No. 8 and finished with a par four on the ninth hole.

"Red" hits a whale of a ball from the tee and when he is straight can beat par on any old course. The kid should be playing in the pro tournament at Glen Echo tomorrow.

Have You a Trophy?

A YOUNG lady at one of our country clubs took up golf several years ago. Each year she practiced assiduously. Each year she entered the club tournaments. But whether blind bogey, scratch or handicap she could not win a thing. Several times she came within a few strokes, but always she saw somebody else packing home the silverware.

Now she has bought a trophy and presented it for competition. It is engraved: "The Miss Olga Schultzworth Trophy. To be played for by Miss Olga Schultzworth and to be won by Miss Olga Schultzworth. To become the permanent property of Miss Olga Schultzworth after being won by her three consecutive times."

Not a Bit Reckless.

RECENTLY an Associated Press dispatch told of two women, engaged in England in a golf match, making the same hole in one.

"It is believed to be the first time," the correspondent wired, "that the same hole was made in one by two women playing each other in a match."

Women, men, amateurs, professionals, gods or what have you?

Pikers to Meet Six M. V. Fives Next Campaign

New Plan, Adopted at Last Meeting, Forces All Teams to Play 12 Contests.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LINCOLN, Neb., June 27.—The 1926 Missouri Valley basketball schedule, arranged in accordance with the new plan adopted at the last annual meeting, was announced by H. D. Gish, chairman of the committee appointed to arrange the games. W. T. Edmunds of Washington U. and T. N. Metcalf, Iowa State, are the other members.

The schedule shows that each school will play 12 games against six conference rivals. The new plan is for a double round robin to be played each three seasons.

The Pikers will open the 1926 championship season against Oklahoma, Jan. 8, while the season comes to a close March 6 against Nebraska.

Washington's opponents next year will be Oklahoma, Drake, Kansas Aggies, Oklahoma Aggies, Iowa State and Nebraska. In 1927 the Pikers meet Oklahoma, Drake, Oklahoma Aggies, Kansas and Grinnell, while in 1928, Iowa State, Nebraska, Missouri, Kansas Aggies, Kansas and Grinnell will furnish the opposition for Washington.

WILLS AND GREB FAVORED TO WIN, NEXT THURSDA

Weinert and Walker Can't Concede Weight To Experienced Foe

Size, Tonnage and Past Records All in Favor of Both Negro Heavyweight and Middleweight Champion in July 2 Show.

By John E. Wray.
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

On July 2 in New York one of those strange boxing shows such as only New York and Shelby can originate, will be put on at a staggering cost, in Mr. Charles Stoneham's Polo Grounds, already celebrated for its baseball successes and ring failures.

Big Fight Facts

Main Event—Harry Wills vs. Charley Weinert, 15 rounds to a decision.

Semiwindup—Mickey Walker, welter champion, vs. Harry Greb, middleweight champion, 15 rounds, decision.

Best Preliminary — Jimmy Slattery, Buffalo, against Dave Shade, six rounds.

Promoter—Italian Hospital Association, New York.

Battleground—Polo Grounds.

Date of Bout—July 2, at night.

It requires a vivid promotion imagination to picture even gullible New York, in its most complaisant mood, digging down for its $15, $20 and $25 portions to see Harry Wills, a 32-year-old negro, with broken hands and a rabbit disposition, oppose Charley Weinert, 30-year-old cabaret frequenter, whose best fighting for 10 years was done against John Barleycorn and whose claim to recognition now rest upon a point victory over the obese and untrained Luis Angel Firpo.

There is nothing more at stake in this bout than a piece of change; and only the airy persiflage of that master word-distiller, William McCarney (who manages Weinert), ever won the Cabaret King a fight of such monetary promise.

Everything Favors Wills.

As to the outcome Wills will have to lose an arm and a leg for Weinert to defeat him. Everything, except doubtful hands, will battle on the side of the gigantic and powerful black.

Inches in height and reach, not less than 15 or 20 pounds in weight, vastly superior strength and a sound constitution one not undermined by years of dissipation, are all with Wills in this struggle.

Weinert has waged a commendable struggle to shake off his past habits and apparently has succeeded. But in his prime he was only a promise, an in-an-outer, knocked out by little Jack Dillon and by the rabbit-hearted Fred Fulton, and beaten by others.

The years frittered away along the primrose path have taken a toll that even conscientious effort cannot restore.

Thus we have a dubious physique and inferior boxing ability pitted against a perfect specimen of manhood, highly tried in the fire of numerous desperate encounters against the very best men in the world.

It is not necessary to name the winner—the facts speak to heaven of what will happen.

Why the Greb-Walker Bout?

To this unsatisfactory bit of match-making the promoters of the July 2 show have added another unequal affair—at least the facts make it appear so. This will be the bout at 15 rounds between the diminutive Mickey Walker, weight normally 147 pounds, and that rough, tough, foul but efficient fighter, Harry Greb, weight at fighting prime 160 to 165 pounds.

Here is one for the Joe Miller book. Each man is a champion in a different class; and there are opponents in each class for each fighter, especially Greb if he cares to enter the light heavyweight division.

And yet they bring this ill-assorted pair together with no title at stake and no purpose apparent in the match except one of cold blooded gold-digging.

As for the outcome of this bout, the facts favor Greb over Walker almost as strongly as Wills over Weinert.

Walker Overrated?

Walker is a good welterweight, but he won the title from a 37-year-old foe and has done little since but side-step welterweights with whom the commission has sought to match him.

If he has a devastating punch he has not been able to land it against men of any class. On the other hand on July 2 he will be conceding 10 to 12 pounds to a fighter who is as dangerous as a cobra. Greb has been deadly poison to all middleweights and has beaten nearly all the light heavyweights of note. He trimmed Tom Gibbons before Thomas stayed 15 rounds with Dempsey at Shelby.

He is a difficult target for the fastest marksman and his style is and has always been a puzzle to foes. He cuts and slashes rather than punches. With his weight, long experience and peculiar style, there seems no hope for Walker. For Greb is no Mike McTigue to flee to cover when crowded.

This ring program, in short, appears to have been devised because all of the principals had previously been widely advertised, rather than because the bouts were logical and would lead somewhere toward Championship Trail.

Weissmuller and Other World Champions to Open Coliseum

Sybil Bauer, Bob Skelton, Caroline Smith, and Best Local Swimmers Appear on 2-Day Program Dedicating Huge Indoor Tank.

The finest collection of swimming talent that has been in St. Louis in many years, including world's champions, national titleholders, Olympic stars and the leading local lights, graces the program of events which will be held Wednesday evening at the opening of the new Coliseum pool.

Headed by Johnny Weissmuller, champion of champions, and the greatest swimmer of the age, the Illinois A. C. sends a team including Miss Sybil Bauer, Miss Caroline Smith, Robert Skelton, Conrad S. Mila and Stubby Kruger.

Weissmuller, who has made only one previous appearance in St. Louis, will attempt to lower his world record for the 50-yard dash.

Records May Fall.

Miss Bauer will try to smash her world record for the 200-yards and the 200-meters.

Bob Skelton will attempt to improve upon his world record for the 200-yard breast stroke.

Miss Smith, who holds the Olympic championship for high diving, will give an exhibition of her art.

In addition there will be competitive events for St. Louis swimmers, including a 200-yard relay, 100-yard back stroke and a 100-yard free style event for women.

There are 13 events on the program, Wednesday:

The dedication ceremonies will be spread over two days, it has been announced by Major Pickering, manager of the New Coliseum.

On Thursday afternoon the same star swimmers will engage in a series of exhibitions and attacks on the records. On Thursday evening another varied program will be offered.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT'S SWIMMING PROGRAM

Motorboat Racing Revival On the Mississippi Today

Air Circus at 2:50 P. M. to Open Program on River Between Eads and Free Briges—Plane to Race Boat.

With 18 power boats entered in the various events, the motor boat racing regatta on the Mississippi River this afternoon promises to be one of the most successful ever held in the St. Louis harbor.

Edwin Koenig, who has promoted the affair, said last night that he expects between 30,000 and 50,000 persons on the river front to view the races and to watch the air circus in which planes from Lambert Flying Field will take part. A special feature will be a race between the fastest motor boat of the meet and Maj. William H. Leininger's airplane.

The air circus will be started at 2:50 p. m. and the races will be under way at 3 o'clock.

There are three speed boat races on the program: A five-mile event for cruiser type, a 10-mile race for runabouts and a free-for-all race of five miles. The final event will be the special match between the airplane and the fastest power boat. This special feature is scheduled to start at 5:30 p. m.

Triple A Wins The Werner Cup

Defeats Oakland Club Tennis Team, Four Matches to One, on Forest Park Courts.

By Davison Obear.

The Triple A Club tennis team defeated the Oakland Club players, 4 to 1, in the final match of the Interclub tennis tournament yesterday afternoon. As a result of the victory over Oakland the Triple A Club gained the Joseph Werner trophy for the second successive year. The matches yesterday were played on the Forest Park courts.

In the singles matches, Triple A had no difficulty. Oakland gained its only point in the contests by winning the second doubles event. The Oakland team of Jack Forester, Washington University tennis captain, and Bert Hopkins, former County High champion, surprised with a straight set victory over Karl Hodge and Forest Stuckman, the Triple A combination.

The Oakland team took the lead early and retained it. Forester and Hopkins were somewhat steadier than their opponents. Hodge and Stuckman continually netted balls in attempting to return lobs and also shots near the baseline.

Wray Brown Wins.

John Gustfason played a good game for Oakland against Ed Serrano, the Triple A veteran, in one of the singles contests yesterday. The Oakland player took the lead in the first set, but Serrano became steadier and won the set. In the next set Serrano outplaced his opponent for necessary points and won this set with the loss of only one game. The score was 6—3, 6—1.

Wray Brown, captain of the Triple A team, had an easy time with Charlie McMillan, Oakland singles leader. McMillan showed good form, but did not have much power behind his strokes.

Arthur Reppert, another veteran of the Triple A team, defeated Clifford Beutel, in straight sets in the third singles match. The Washington U. regular put forth his best efforts, but the strategy of Reppert was too much for him.

The summary:

Triple A. 4; Oakland, 1.

Wray Brown, Triple A, defeated Charles McMillan, Oakland, 6—1, 6—1; Arthur Reppert, Triple A, defeated Clifford Beutel, Oakland, 6—2, 6—3; Ed Serrano, Triple A, defeated John Gustafson, Oakland, 6—3, 6—1; Forester and Hopkins, Oakland, defeated Stuckman and Hodge, Triple A, 6—4, 6—4; Barnes and W. H. Brown, Triple A, defeated Beutel and Gustafson, Oakland, 6—4, 6—1.

O'Neil's Home Run Beats the Giants

Barnes Outpitches Bentley, Brilliant Support Holding Score to 8 to 3.

NEW YORK, June 27.—The Braves bunched a home run by Mickey O'Neill and five singles off Jack Bentley in the ninth inning today and won the first game of their series with the Giants, cutting down the lead of the New Yorkers over the Pirates to a few percentage points. The score was 8 to 3.

Barnes outpitched Bentley, the only runs scored off him being due to home runs by Walker and Meusel. The Braves hit hard and only brilliant support by Kelly, Frisch and Jackson kept the score down.

HISERT WINS BIG TEN GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

CHICAGO, June 27. — Kenneth Hisert of Chicago won the Big Ten golf championship today, defeating Mode Holdsworth of Michigan, 3 and 2, in the final at Sunset Ridge.

GOVERNOR OF ILLINOIS NOT EXPECTED TO VETO THE GREEN BOXING BILL

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 27.—Final action on the Green boxing bill, passed by the General Assembly, is expected next week.

Representative Green, Rockford, its sponsor, said he is confident that the Governor will either sign it or let it become a law without his signature, in view of the fact that it carries a referendum clause which provides that cities must vote their approval of the sport before it can be legally carried on.

Because of the mixup which attended the close of the session, it is not certain when the bill came to the Governor.

BERT COLIMA TO MEET NAVY CHAMP AT LOS ANGELES, JULY 21

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 27.—Jack Doyle has arranged an open-air show for July 21, featuring Bert Colima, local favorite, and Eddie Huffman, Seattle champion of the navy in the light heavy class. Huffman has made a record for himself in a short space of time, having defeated Jimmy Delaney of St. Paul, Bob Roper, Tony Fuente and Floyd Johnson. He has had 37 fights, 24 of which he won by knockouts. He won the light heavyweight title in the navy, while cook on board the battleship Mississippi. He will have a weight advantage of 12 to 15 pounds over Colima, but the latter hopes to overcome this handicap by his cleverness.

Americans Beat Australians in British Doubles

Casey and Hennessey Require Four Sets to Defeat Taylor and Heath.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 27.—Ray Casey and John Hennessey of the American tennis team, kept the United States to the fore here, today, by winning the doubles match with the Australians A. H. Taylor and R. W. Heath, taking four sets to accomplish the victory. After winning the first set, they lost the second at 8-10 but came through with victories in the next two sets.

John Hennessey the only American survivor in the singles did not compete yesterday in the individuals.

The sixth day's play of the all England tennis classic began today with a large gallery on hand. In the men's singles H. S. L. Barclay of Tasmania beat H. G. Mayes, 6—2, 1—6, 6—3, 6—1. Barclay goes into the last eight along with John Hennessey of Indianapolis and the French stars, Borotra and La Coste.

Brugnon Puts Up Stout Game.

The big match of the day was that between Anderson, ranked by the experts after Tilden and Richards, and the volatile Frenchman, Brugnon. The Australian was picked to win easily, but Brugnon took the first two sets, 6—3, 9—7, and was within a stroke of 5—1 in the third when Anderson pulled himself together and won the set, 6—4.

The fourth was a tremendous battle, Anderson winning, 7—5, after Brugnon had led 4—2. Anderson won the first game of the fifth set, then the games went with service to 2—2, after which Anderson got the upper hand and won easily at the net, 6—3.

Williams and Fenno fought an almost even battle with Sherwell and Eltringham, winning after five sets of straight careful play.

Dailey and Jarvis were not expected to defeat Turnbull and Gilbert, for although the New Jersey player won acclaim in the earlier singles matches, he was not expected to make much of a showing in the doubles with Jarvis, who is only an average English club player. However, their service was better than that of the veteran and they played a much better game at the net.

Hard Match for Americans.

Casey and Hennessey found the Australian pair a very di proposition during the first sets. The Americans had to their very hardest until the ning of the third period when they easily became the ters.

They played their usual the forecourt, Casey being cially swift with his across the net. Hennessey, ever, played indifferently at displaying very weak work.

J. O. Anderson of Austr feated Jacques Brugnon of 3—6, 7—9, 6—4, 7—5, 6—

Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen Mrs. Beamish of England 6—0.

H. C. Fisher, a young player, went into the final by defeating the Indian, H 7—5, 6—4, 7—5.

John Hennessey and Ray defeated A. R. Taylor and Heath, 6—4, 8—10, 6—3, Lucien E. Williams of and J. B. Fenno of Boston G. R. Sherwell and H. C. ham, 6—4, 6—3, 5—7, 7— in the men's doubles.

Mad Play Beaten in Brookdale

Son of Fair Play Only a Head Behind the Winner; Sarmaticus Loses by a Like Margin.

By G. F. T. Ryall.
Of the New York World Staff.

NEW YORK, June 27.—Two of this season's turf idols were toppled over at Acqueduct this afternoon. Sarmaticus, up to today considered closest to Friar's Carse among the two-year-olds, and Mad Play, winner of the Brooklyn and the Queens County Handicaps, were beaten by the margin of heads.

Probably the largest crowd that ever passed through the gates of the Queen's County Jockey Club track saw two of the best races of the season; but they went away with mingled feelings.

Whetstone, a mare whose running moods are thoroughly feminine, beat Mad Play in the Brookdale handicap. It is the custom to cheer the winner, but the applause was faint for her as she came back to the scales. Rather the cheers were for Mad Play, which ran the greatest race of his career, though beaten.

Mad Play Concedes Weight.

The little brother of Mad Hatter was picking up 130 pounds and was giving 18 to Whestone as much to Aga Khan, which was third and 21 to Catalan, the other starter.

Whetstone was a good horse this afternoon. Breaking well, she led from start to finish and ran the mile and a furlong over a track that was dead from the recent rains in the amazing time of 1:49 only two fifths behind the record held by Grey Lag, which is a world's mark. Mad Play chased her all the way and wore her down in the stretch, but lacked a stride or two at the end.

Whetstone stepped the quarter in :24, the half in :47, six furlongs in 1:11 3-5; (the track record is 1:36) and the mile and a furlong in 1:49 2-5.

Breuning, the boy who rode Sting to victory in all his races, rode a fine race on the mare, keeping her together all through the last furlong.

It was a two-horse race all the way, the other starters never being close. Thanks to the victory, Whetstone, the winnings of the Glenn Riddle stable weer enriched $6850.

Earl Sande Rides Winner.

The Greentree Stable's Navigator, with Earl Sande in the saddle, won the thirty-fifth running of the Great American Stakes at five furlongs and broke the winning streak of Sarmaticus.

A week ago, with Harvey in the saddle, Navigator ran R. L. Gerry's fast colt to half a length but today, though he was favored with a 10-pound switch in the weights and with the leading rider in the saddle, he was backed only by his stable connections and those who go strictly by the figures.

Powhatan, which ran so impressively a few days ago, was about equal choice with Sarmaticus, which was picking up his penalty today. The son of Brown Prince-Steplightly may have been best, too, for he, after breaking well enough, went very wide at the elbow and then was beaten two heads for all the money.

Quite the best field of 2-year-olds of the meeting went to the post for this event, which had a value of $7600 to the winner.

Sarmaticus Tires.

Sarmaticus, as usual, jumped off in front and in spite of his impost of 125 pounds, set the pace to the eighth pole. Centrifrugal, a fast one unde rlight weight, and Post Time, which was heavily backed, fought it out with him most of the way while Powhatan was going wide and Sande on Navigator was saving his mount for the last challenge.

Sarmaticus began to hang in the last sixteenth and Navigator closed with a great rush with Powhatan only a stride back. The others were beaten off. The time for the five furlongs was 1:00.

JOE SUGDEN: Who Has Worn Big League Uniform 32 Years

THE worst looking hand in baseball is Joe Sugden's right mit, on which every finger has been broken at least once, as a result of many years of activity as a catcher

Sugden, 55 and a Grandfather, Still Wears Big League Uniform

Cardinal Coach Who Broke Into the Majors 32 Years Ago, Says There Are More Fast Men Today and That All Clubs Now Play "Inside Baseball."

By Herman Wecke.

Thirty-two years ago, Joe Sugden drew on his first major league baseball uniform. Today, after all these years, Sugden, now a grandfather, is still in the uniform of a major league club daily as coach of the Cardinal pitchers. Sugden, who was born July 31, 1870, and will be 55 years old on his next birthday, thus gains the honor of being the oldest man in the big leagues to go through the task of getting in baseball paraphernalia each day.

Those 32 years have left their marks on this veteran. His fingers are gnarled. There is not a straight finger on his hands. This is the result of stopping foul tips during his day as a regular catcher. But even time has not dimmed Sugden's interest in baseball. He is still as enthusiastic as when he first started in the big show, away back in 1893, as a member of the Pittsburg club.

Baseball has changed since Sugden first made his appearance behind the bat. He admits that much.

"The biggest change I note in the game of today is that there are more fast men in the game. However, we had our stars in the '90s as well as today.

Day of "Inside Baseball."

"When I was a regular only a few of the clubs played what is called "inside baseball." Today they all do it.

"That is the principal change I have noticed in my 32 years. But as far as batters, fielders and pitchers were concerned, we had them in the old days, just as they have today."

Sugden's present duties do not take him behind the plate regularly. But as a coach of pitchers he is forced to don the catcher's glove every day. Sugden can be seen at Sportsman's Park each day the Cardinals are home. He warms up the starting pitcher before each game, and then he hies himself to the bullpen to get another hurler in shape should the starter fail.

Concerning his present duties, Sugden has little to say. He admits that it is a worthy move, one that the old-time hurlers did not have the advantage of.

"Coaching will help a young pitcher. But that youngster to become a star must have natural stuff. If he does not possess that then all the coaching in the world will prove of little help to him," is the way the veteran puts it.

Coach Since 1918.

Sudgen has been a coach of the Cardinal pitchers each season since 1918. During that time he has helped in the development of many stars. The latest of the lot is Charles Flint Rhem. But Sugden is keeping his eye on another one who, he thinks, will make a name for himself in the big tent. He is Bill Hallahan, the little left-hander, sent to Syracuse for more seasoning. When Hallahan was with the Cardinals, Sugden often remarked:

"Let me take that kid and warm him up and he will stop all of them."

And before Hallahan departed, Sudgen saw his words come true. Other pitchers were being batted freely in a game at Pittsburg when Hallahan was called upon. He stopped the Corsairs and the Cardinals won out. And take Sugden's word for it, Hallahan will be back.

Joe Started in 1889.

Though he did not start in the big tent until 1893, Sugden made his debut as a player in 1889, when an athletic club was formed in Philadelphia, his home city. At that time Sugden was a first sacker.

"They had me batting in the cleanup position at that time, and when I show some of the present-day players the batting order of those days, they get many a good laugh.

"I first went out as a professional with the New Castle Club at the start of 1893. I remained there until July, when I was sold to Pittsburg."

Sugden was with the Pittsburg team in 1893-94-95-96-97. He played with the Cardinals in 1898. In 1899 he was with the Cleveland club, then in the National League. His next stop was the Chicago White Sox under Clark Griffith in 1901. Then came his stay with the Browns, from 1902 to 1905, inclusive. Thus he spent 12 years in the big tent as a catcher. Quite a record for any man.

ARGENTINE HORSES ARE EQUAL FAVORITES FOR GRAND PRIX DE PARIS

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 27. — Martinez de Hoz's Belfonds, winner of the French Derby, and S. J. Unzue's Chubasco, both Argentine owned, are equal favorites at 3 to 1 to win the Grand Prix de Paris tomorrow.

This is the first time in the history of the event that the race has had such a distinctly South American flavor. Heretofore horses from England and the United States have been favorites.

Seventeen starters, 15 colts and two fillies, will probably go to the post for the 3000-meter race, worth 664,000 francs to the winner. Baron Robert de Rothschild's sweet filly, Aquatinte, winner of the French Oaks, is third choice at 6 to 1, while the United States registers, with A. K. Macomber's The Sirdar, who ran third in both English and French derbies and is quoted in tomorrow's event at 10 to 1.

J. D. Cohn's Ptolemy, Paul Wertheimer's Coram, Madame Edmond Blanc's Terreneuvier, J. E. Widener's Mountapha and M. P. Mouline's Faraway are next in demand in the order named.

Another Workout For Boy Runners

Marathon Practice at Fairground This Morning—Entries Coming in Fast

The regular weekly workout of the boys training for the junior maarthon of the Tuberculosis Society will take place in Fairground Park this mroning at 10 o'clock. Boys desiring to run with the squad should report at the baseball dressing room in the northwestern corner of Fairground Park.

Entries are coming in fast, and the race this year promises to excel all previous events.

Irvin Biel, former local distance runner, has reported to the committee, as an addition to the training staff, and will assist Levison, Probst and Forshaw in the handling of the boys today.

The committee urges all those who intend to compete in the race July 15 to report for training, in order that they will be in proper shape for the race. Many former contestants are reporting each week. The actual race this year will be around Fairground Park and south on Spring avenue to Sportsman's Park. Only three blocks of the course this year is on streets.

All boys are invited to the workouts, and there is no fee or charge connected with either the practice runs or the actual race. Runners should bring their own towels. The shower bath is free.

Verne Lacy is chairman of the committee in charge of the event.

Lamprecht 11 Up On Title Foe in Intercollegiates

Tulane Golfer Smothers Steve Berrien; Is 6 Under Par for 27 Holes.

By the Associated Press.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., June 27.—The portals of college fame unfolded today to admit a new golf champion—George F. Lamprecht of Cleveland — representing Tulane University, who only two years ago was eliminated in the first round.

Lamprecht was brilliant in his early combats but he exceeded himself in the last two days when he drove Steve Berrien of Wesleyan to defeat, 11 up and 9 to play, and then in the final round today actually romped away with the verdict over the great little Western star, Jack Westland of the University of Washington, 9 and 7.

Four Under Par for 27 Holes.

Sensational golf which at times bordered on the miraculous was furnished by the big, light-haired son of the mid-West in the 29 holes necessary to his conquest.

At the end of the morning round, during which he scored a pair of 34s, two under par on each nine, he had Westland 6 down and the Pacific coast hopes appeared to have been dashed on the rocks.

Then in the afternoon, starting away with his carefree, laughing style, Lamprecht continued to bear down and took the first hole, halved the second and won the third.

But at the end of the 27 holes the Tulane star stood 9 up and at least another was necessary for decision. Westland, in a last desperate effort, obtained the downhill tenth with a birdie three to his opponent's par four, but he himself experienced trouble on the eleventh and required a six, which ended the fray.

Will Play in National Amateur.

Lamprecht, who divides his time between Cleveland and New Orleans, said after the match that he probably would participate in the national amateur championship at Oakmont, near Pittsburg, late in August.

To cover nine holes in two under par in tournament play is regarded as a brilliant achievement for any veteran of the links, but to accomplish such a feat successively three times is extraordinary. This is just what Lamprecht did today. The cards follow:

FORMER BRITISH HORSE TRAINER IS HONORED

LONDON, June 27. — Richard Marsh, who retired at the end of last year from his position as trainer of King George's horses, has received the unique distinction among trainers of being appointed a member of the Royal Victorian Order, Fifth Class. This was included in the recent King's birthday honors.

College Net Title To Californian

E. G. Chandler Defeats Cranston Holman in Final Match.

PHILADELPHIA, June 27.—E. G. Chandler of the University of California is the new intercollegiate lawn tennis champion, defeating in the final round of the tournament today Cranston Holman of Leland Stanford University. The scores were 6—4, 6—3, 1—6, 6—3.

Chandler played a steady and consistent match most of the time. In only one set, the third, which Holman won by coming up to the net and cutting placements to all parts of the court, did Chandler fail to outplay his opponent. Chandler semed to tire in the third set, but quickly recovered in the fourth. A shower halted the last set for a short time, giving each player a much needed rest.

E. G. Hillis and Gerald Stratford, University of California, won the intercollegiate doubles title by defeating Arnold Jones and Charles Watson, Yale, in the final round. The scores were 7-5, 7-5, 3-6, 6-3.

SINGLES—Final round: E. G. Chandler, University of California, defeated Cranston Holman, Leland Stanford, 6—3, 6—3, 1—6, 6—3.

DOUBLES—Semi-final round: G. Hillis and Gerald Stratford, University of California, defeated Holman and Lionel Ogden, Leland Stanford, 4—6, 6—2, 6—2, 6—3.

Final round: Hillis and Stratford defeated Arnold Jones and Charles Watson, Yale, 7—5, 7—5, 3—6, 6—3.

TILDEN AND RICHARDS PLAY FOR SIXTH TIME OF CAMPAIGN TODAY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 27.—With the height of the season still some six or seven weeks off, William T. Tilden and Vincent Richards already have met in more matches than in any previous year. They are to face each other for the sixth time on the courts of the New York Athletic Club at Travers Island tomorrow afternoon in the title round of the Eastern New York State championship, and the standing in matter of victories is 4 to 1 in favor of the national champion.

For the defeat at Richards' hands in the final of the Orange Lawn Tennis Club tournament, Tilden has atoned aplenty. Since that setback, the champion has taken seven straight sets from the youthful Olympic champion. In the Church Cup tussle he defeated Richards, 6—1, 6—4, in the exhibition for the Cathedral fund, 6—3, 8—6, and in the Metropolitan clay court final, 6—3, 6—4, 6—4.

EMPIRE LEAGUE FURNISHES MUNICIPAL FEATURE

Typos Meet 'Y' Nine in Double Bill

Two Victories Will Place "Printers" in Tie for First Place—K. of C. Starts Second Half of Race.

The future attraction of the Municipal League today will be the double-header on Grounds No. 12, Forest Park between the Y. M. H. A. and Typos of the Empire League. "Y" nine leads with a perfect percentage with the Typos in second place, two games behind. A double victory for the Typos will mean a tie for first place.

The second game is a relic of May 24, when the Typos refused to play because of inclement weather. A protest by the Y. M. H. A. was overruled.

A pitchers' battle should feature the opener. Nerviana, the right-hander who has pitched the "Y" to eight straight victories will face Henderson, who has won six games and lost none. Fleischman, for the Y. M. H. A. and Wiess for the Typos will hurl in the nightcap.

Start Second Half of Race.

The Knights of Columous League begins the second half of its season. This Tri-City team has taken the place of the Columbus Club nine. DeSmet won the pennant for the first half.

The Colored Industrial League opens the second half of its season at Tandy Playground and in Forest Park. The Broomers won the first half flag.

The Langenbergs and Highlands meet in a Wilson League feature at O'Fallon Park. The Langenbergs are in the lead by one and a half games and have strengthened during the past week by the addition of several players.

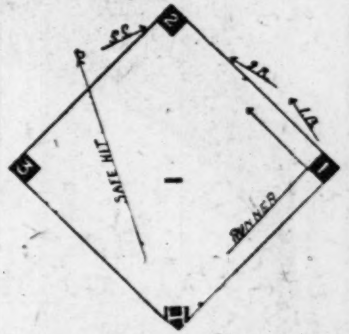
Eddie Collins TIPS ON INSIDE BASE-BALL

WITH no one on the bases, the batsman hits safely to left field. It is apparent that the drive will be good for at least a single. How should the infielders position themselves on such a play in order to present a proper defense in case the batsman tries for an extra base?

Diagram of Play.



On a safe hit to left field it is up to the shortstop to cover second base so as to be in a position to handle a throw there, in case the batsman tries to stretch his hit into a double.

The left fielder, handling the ball, should immediately return the ball to second base, the only possible play being at that bag.

The second baseman should line up with the shortstop, so as to be able to back up the shortstop and be in a position to handle the ball if, through a poor throw, it should escape the shortstop, covering second.

It is also well for the first baseman to line up with the play, stationing himself a reasonable distance back of the second baseman.

This enables him to help out should the throw evade both the shortstop and second baseman. It also enables him to return to first if the play reverts back to that base.

LOGG NAMED ROWING COACH AT PRINCETON

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 27.—The University of Washington will have another graduate as head coach of rowing in the East next year.

This fact became known with the appointment of Charles P. Logg as the director of Princeton crews to succeed Dr. J. Duncan Spaeth, for many years head coach at that university.

Doctor Spaeth, who will continue in charge until the end of the present season, announced his intention to give up active work some time ago. He will, however, continue in close touch with Princeton rowing activities in the capacity of chairman of the rowing committee, which post he accepted in retiring as coach.

LIFE OF JOHN

John Barleycorn Downed
For Good and Sullivan
Comes Out for Temperan

Goes on the Lecture Platform to Carry o
Battle Against Strong Drink and I
Much in Demand.

Last week Sullivan's steady fall down the ladder of although his fame never deserted him, was told by the author.

CHAPTER IX.

IN Boston, Sullivan was charged with pounding a horse w fists and kicking it three times in the under ribs. So he wa to court, where two policemen testified that they had seen this dreadful deed. "Now, look here," John complained to the
"do you really think I'd do a thing like that in my own hom where my friends could see me? I've got too much respect for and her residents, horses and all, to rare around that way.
Judge, that balky nag had runned away with me and throwed and if I mebbe did kick her once or so, well—I leave it to you.
hadn't she ought to of been kicked?" The stern official, h was unable to agree with the culprit; he said that it was a cle of wanton cruelty and imposed a fine of $100.

This verdict so staggered John that, after a friend had set him, he immediately went out and started on a fresh escapade in the evening he came to one of his favorite hotels, where hi was still fairly good. "I'm the best that ever happened!" he s as he whirled around in the lobby, looking for someone to take challenge. But nobody did so, and this changed his modera humor into definite irritation. For some time he gazed aroun ing for some victim on whom to vent his spleen. Suddenly he dislike to a young man who was wearing a brown derby. Sm his fist down on the offending hat, he yelled: "Your hat's style!" But this deed softened his mood, and with the "Don't get mad; there, buy yourself a new hat," he handed th a five-dollar bill.

By 1905 he had reached a point where ordinary liquors tasted like milk, and had almost as little effect on him. Nothing but whisky would do now, and several pints of it were necessary before his saturation point was reached.

Finally, after a classic debauch, he awoke to the realization of his condition. "I know I don't deserve to be as well as I am," he exclaimed, "but I guess the Lord's keeping me as fit as a fiddle for some reason I can't see through."

He was right. An unaccountable but all-seeing Providence had doubtless foreordained the course of his life so that it should not be spent wholly in vain. He had been kept fit for a definite reason: the ex-champion pugilist and the champion drinker was destined to become a champion reformer with a messianic mission—to go around and tell the story of his life as an awful example and a warning to those who were in danger of sin. John had changed in many ways, mostly for the worse, during the last 20 years, but he was soon to make the most complete change of all. He would not merely stop drinking—thousands of ordinary men had done that—but he would become a temperance lecturer; one of the chief pillars of the Anti-Saloon League.

Then Reformation.

..It was in 1905, while he was staying at a Terre Haute hotel, "flat broke and feeling rotten," as he phrased it, that he decided it was high time to mend his ways once and for all. "All I can remember of the week before I quit was that one day I went into some drug store for something. I was boiled from Monday until Saturday. I was pretty near down and out. And I was thinking. That's the kind of a time when a man will think—when he's got a head that feels like it weighed a ton, and is busted, and no one seems to care for him. A heavyweight head is the best temperance lecture 'n the world, only most folks won't listen to it. Then I says to myself, 'John, you're the champion damn fool of the world; you're the original million-dollar rum hound.'" Descending to the bar, he asked for a glass of wine, which he raised as lookers. They stood wait

Old-Time Cronies Make the Straight Path a Hard

In another way, too, his reform caused him much trouble. Hundreds of the cronies who had unsuccessfully tried to best him in swigging bouts constantly put powerful temptations in his pathway; but he always conquered, for right was on his side. "No, I won't join you," he would tell the tempters. "It's nothing but cold water for yours truly after this. I'm going to be a pattern for every boy in the land. Proud mothers can safely tell their sons to follow in John L.'s footsteps. It's going to be a sad day for the Whisky Trust from now on."

Still, it was hard—very hard. "I got a stiff neck from turning my head away from saloons," he admitted. "If I entered 'em, I'd say to myself under my breath, 'I'll be damned if I take a drink!' But I had to swear at myself a good deal before I licked the desire." Finally there came the wonderful day when he succeeded in conquering temptation without cursing himself at all; he merely turned the tables and swore at his tempters. A few months after the Terre Haute miracle, a jolly inebriate, who had often accompanied John on his wildest debauches, met him in a hotel lobby, slapped him most familiarly on the back, and proposed a joint bottle of wine. "No more of the happy suds for me"—John's voice was stern—"I've sworn off for keeps." "What's a swear-off be-

LOGG NAMED ROWING COACH AT PRINCETON

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 27.—The University of Washington will have another graduate as head coach of rowing in the East next year.

This fact became known with the appointment of Charles P. Logg as the director of Princeton crews to succeed Dr. J. Duncan Spaeth, for many years head coach at that university.

Doctor Spaeth, who will continue in charge until the end of the present season, announced his intention to give up active work some time ago. He will, however, continue in close touch with Princeton rowing activities in the capacity of chairman of the rowing committee, which post he accepted in retiring as coach.

But nobody did so, and this changed his moderate good humor into definite irritation. For some time he gazed around looking for some victim on whom to vent his spleen. Suddenly he took a dislike to a young man who was wearing a brown derby. Smashing his fist down on the offending hat, he yelled: "Your hat's out of style!" But this deed softened his mood, and with the remark, "Don't get mad; there, buy yourself a new hat," he handed the youth a five-dollar bill.

By 1905 he had reached a point where ordinary liquors tasted like milk, and had almost as little effect on him. Nothing but whisky would do now, and several pints of it were necessary before his saturation point was reached.

Finally, after a classic debauch, he awoke to the realization of his condition. "I know I don't deserve to be as well as I am," he exclaimed, "but I guess the Lord's keeping me as fit as a fiddle for some reason I can't see through."

He was right. An unaccountable but all-seeing Providence had doubtless foreordained the course of his life so that it should not be spent wholly in vain. He had been kept fit for a definite reason: the ex-champion pugilist and the champion drinker was destined to become a champion reformer with a messianic mission—to go around and tell the story of his life as an awful example and a warning to those who were in danger of sin. John had changed in many ways, mostly for the worse, during the last 20 years, but he was soon to make the most complete change of all. He would not merely stop drinking—thousands of ordinary men had done that—but he would become a temperance lecturer; one of the chief pillars of the Anti-Saloon League.

Then Reformation.

..It was in 1905, while he was staying at a Terre Haute hotel, "flat broke and feeling rotten," as he phrased it, that he decided it was high time to mend his ways once and for all. "All I can remember of the week before I quit was that one day I went into some drug store for something. I was boiled from Monday until Saturday. I was pretty near down and out. And I was thinking. That's the kind of a time when a man will think—when he's got a head that feels like it weighed a ton, and is busted, and no one seems to care for him. A heavyweight head is the best temperance lecture 'n the world, only most folks won't listen to it. Then I says to myself, 'John, you're the champion damn fool of the world; you're the original million-dollar rum hound.'" Descending to the bar, he asked for a glass of wine, which he raised as if to drink a health to the onlookers. They stood waiting for the speech he was accustomed to deliver on such occasions—a speech that was habitually given in an ironically penitent voice: "If I ever take another drink I hope to choke, so help me God!" The words were spoken as usual, but this time their tone was entirely serious, and after he had uttered them John poured the wine into a spittoon, adding, as he did so, "I'll live to be a million years an angel before I touch another!" Everybody guffawed—what else could such low brutes have been expected to do?—but John kept his word. The stars in their courses had decreed that the day on which he made this great decision was March 4, 1905—the day that also witnessed the inauguration of Theodore Roosevelt.

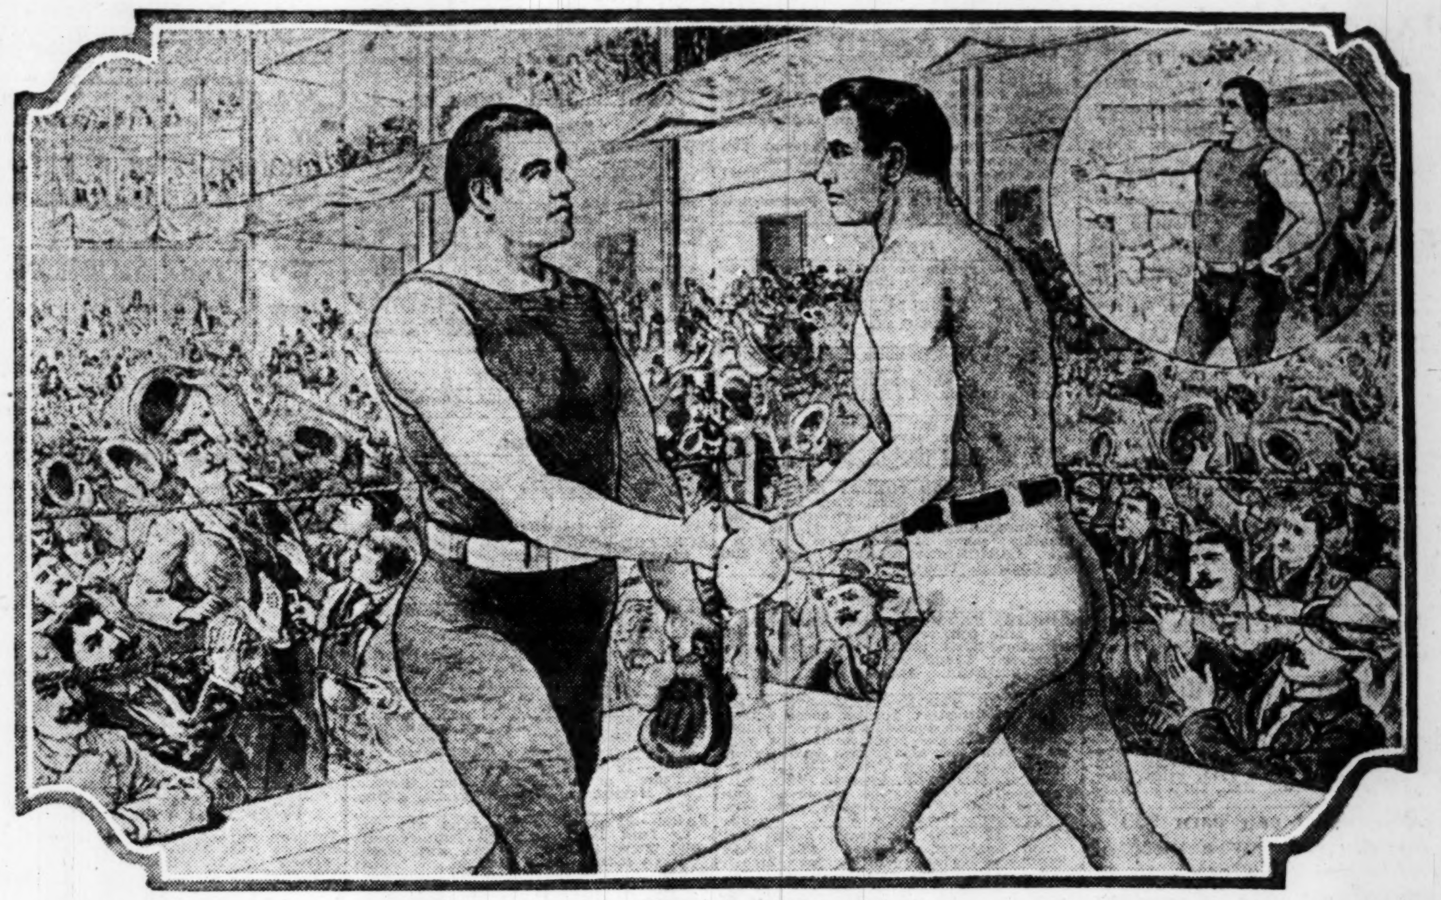
At first, of course, John had a very hard time. It was known that he had made plans to give a series of addresses on various topics; but lyceum agents were afraid of employing his services — they feared that they might become identified with the cause of temperance and thereby lose their jobs. But Sullivan thought that this was very silly of them. "Why, them fellows is overlooking a big bet!" he exclaimed. "They'd ought to read up their Barnum. Remember how P. T. advertised his show as the 'great moral show' and always made a play to get the preachers to attend it? Barnum knowed the game and he knowed that the churchgoing crowd was the crowd that he wasn't getting and needed for his business. He had the other crowd, anyway. Now, I don't say this because it hits me, but if these fellows knowed anything they'd make a play to get just the kind of people talks like mine would get into the theaters—I mean church folks that now stay away so much. The other gang, why, they've got 'em anyway, and I'd never drive 'em away—not on your life! Next to my friend T. R., I can reach more of the plain, rough-and-ready people than any other man they can put out. I talk their man's language, and the young fellers, the chaps with red blood, will listen to me."

Old-Time Cronies Make the Straight Path a Hard One

In another way, too, his reform caused him much trouble. Hundreds of the cronies who had unsuccessfully tried to best him in swigging bouts constantly put powerful temptations in his pathway; but he always conquered, for right was on his side. "No, I won't join you," he would tell the tempters. "It's nothing but cold water for yours truly after this. I'm going to be a pattern for every boy in the land. Proud mothers can safely tell their sons to follow in John L.'s footsteps. It's going to be a sad day for the Whisky Trust from now on."

Still, it was hard—very hard. "I got a stiff neck from turning my head away from saloons," he admitted. "If I entered 'em, I'd say to myself under my breath, 'I'll be damned if I take a drink!' But I had to swear at myself a good deal before I licked the desire." Finally there came the wonderful day when he succeeded in conquering temptation without cursing himself at all; he merely turned the tables and swore at his tempters. A few months after the Terre Haute debacle, a jolly inebriate, who had often accompanied John on his wildest debauches, met him in a hotel lobby, slapped him most familiarly on the back, and proposed a joint bottle of wine. "No more of the happy suds for me"—John's voice was stern—"I've sworn off for keeps." "What's a swear-off between friends, John?" urged the enticer. "You cheap chump!" John flashed out, "you're trying to make a liar out of me! Get the hell out of here, you!"—— And in less than 10 seconds the evil counsellor was down and out. "I guess I must of hurt him some," John commented later, "for he had a pained look on his mug when he got up and limped off. I yelled after him that, if he tried to make me rush the can again, I'd throw him out of the top window."

When, after a year's complete abstinence, Sullivan had demonstrated to himself and the world that he had definitely reformed, he began to fulfill the decree of destiny by going around on the lecture platform. At first, to be sure, his addresses were not concerned with any special reform movement; he merely attempted, as hundreds of newspapers sagely repeated, "to give lectures that were both instructive and entertaining." He began his platform career, logically enough, with a rambling reminiscent speech entitled "Half Hours with Pugilists" in which flamboyant streopticon views played an overwhelming part. This was followed by another hodgepodge of autobiograph, called "This Merry Old World," which was so deficient in merriment that he was soon talking to empty houses. It thus became clear that something of a different sort was necessary, and John went into temporary retirement to meditate on the choice of a new selection.



"Champion and ex-Champion Cheered."

"John L. Sullivan given a rousing testimonial by over ten thousand enthusiastic admirers, in Madison Squire Garden, New York, on Sept. 17, 1892, when the former champion and Corbett met in an exhibition bout."

—National Police Gazette, New York, Oct. 18, 1892.

On the Lecture Platform.

A happy inspiration soon came to him, and within a short time crowded houses were raptly listening to "Boston and Its Historic Spots." Lantern slides showed the spots while John told the history. A part of this masterpiece, which described the Back Bay region in detail, ran thus: "That, ladies and gents, is the Back Bay fins. They're the fins the corfish aristocracy keep in the swim with, I suppose. There's an Egyptian villa in the dump, to give the place a Dago atmosphere. Back Bay is a place where folks live in Florida all winter and at the beach all summer. It's kind of heaven to them that belongs there; one night Saint Peter himself was found there, setting on the stoop of the Somerset Club with a notebook in his hand. When a cop asked him what the big idea was, he said, 'Let me alone. I'm gathering information for improvements in the next world.'"

After some months of successful repetition, "Boston and Its Historic Spots" was laid on the shelf, to be followed by a worth successor entitled, "How to Win." Sullivan always maintained that, through the instrumentality of this address, he was the first national figure to admonish boys not to be mollycoddles —in fact, he repeatedly affirmed that he was "quite a pace ahead of Teddy himself in busting the mollycoddle bunk." In this oration, John passed definitely from mere entertainment to highly beneficial, if somewhat disjointed, instruction along lines of physical and mental development. "Get your food cooked right, chew it up fine before downing it, and take plenty of exercise. Don't worry. When a bunch of worry is handed to me, I give it the laugh and that's the finish. So today I'm spry and full of jokes. If you want to be like me, learn to hold on. The man who gets up and cries baby because he gets a throw-down or a slap in the jaw is never going to have the fire department putting out rivers he's set afire. Look at George Washington, a fighter who had everything framed up to beat him. According to the warfare dope, George didn't have a look-in against the British. But he held on. If it had been easy for George, we wouldn't think half so much of his winning the championship of England and America as we do. Some people just naturally die on their own hands—no effort made to sidestep the coming punch, no gameness, no ginger shown. They just lay down and drop out of the race, like an old spavined horse. The four-flusher puts up such a poor imitation of a scrap that it smells to the clouds. Dog it and you'll take the count. Mark what I'm going to shout to you: Be game and they'll never get you!"

Occasionally he would depart from his more or less prepared address, in order to comment on various matters of contemporary interest. His tender sensibilities had of late been deeply shocked by one particularly flagrant sin: the presence of apparently respectable women at prize fights—a violation of ring proprieties that had rarely been countenanced in the good old days of his prime. "I don't think any right-minded woman wants to attend a prize fight," he burst out one day. "I wouldn't want my wife to see a fight. Why? Well, I don't exactly know why, but I'm mighty well sure I wouldn't want her there, and it goes against my grain to see other women there I'll be dumbed if I know just why I don't. I guess it's because I like most other good men, like to see a woman behave like a woman and fill her right place in the world. They had ought to marry and have lots of children—though of course that's with the Lord."

At another time, when the muckraking campaign was at its height, he took occasion to give his views on the subject at the close of his formal speech. "This talk of tainted money is all rot. In all my years of wild spending, I never heard of nobody refusing to take the money of John L. Of all the money I give for churches, schools and other charities, I can't remember a single cent being flopped back to me because it was earned by biffing some unlucky chap on the jaw. There's no such thing as tainted money, and I've handled about every kind there is. The preachers hadn't ought to object to it. They'd ought to be on the level in their profession, just like us prize fighters always is. If any of you here has got what you think is tainted cash in your pockets, just drop it in my hat before you pass out. I thank you one and all very kindly, yours truly, John L. Sullivan."

Patriotic Speeches.

National holidays gave him a particularly good opportunity to make impromptu stump speeches. Once, on July the Fourth, he became excessively patriotic, even for him. "This is the only real country on the earth!" he began. "China is bigger, but that don't matter. It takes all the good in one hundred Chinamen to make one bad American; and besides, they don't know what to eat. The other nations don't count. Most of 'em can speak foreign languages, but they can't fight. So we have a right to be proud today. It's the duty of everybody to shoot off some firecrackers today. My advice to Americans, young and old, is to be patriotic all the time. Yell for your country and think of George Washington every time a firecracker goes off. Tell every foreigner that America can lick his country, whatever it is."

But by far the greatest number of his casual remarks consisted of vehement defenses of the manly sports. The continual agitation against pugilism irritated him most of all, particularly when it took the form of public protests against instruction in boxing at Annapolis and West Point. "What in blazes is the men in the warships and the army for, if they ain't to know something about how to handle themselves when they stack up against some foreign bunch that's making a play to haul down the American flag?" he once challenged. "The more bouts they have the better shooting eyes they'll have when it comes to a showdown with anybody who goes pulling Uncle Sam's whiskers. It 'ud be a fine piece of business if our fighting men was afraid of a slap in the mug or a poke in the wind." Again, he would rise to launch an attack against reformers who were trying to abolish Sunday baseball. "Baseball ain't allowed in the East on Sundays because a lot of cork legs who never has any fun, and is bound nobody else will ever have none, is in control. In the West, where there's just as many Christians, if not more, than there is in the East, baseball is allowed seven days a week. It don't hurt the Westerners, nor break up no happy homes, nor put the churches out of the running."

After several years of fairly constant platform activities, Sullivan once more found himself out of a job. He was much puzzled for a time, when he attempted to discover why his audiences were falling off. But he finally attained peace of mind when it occurred to him that his orations had been on too high an intellectual plane for the mass of his hearers; and, in an intimate conversation, he concretely summarized the reasons for his failure to hold the crowds. "The line of talk I passed out from the platform was too high up for the sports who fell asleep, and too low down for a few high hats who passed out early. I once come pretty near livening up the show by cleaning out a part of the audience in one bum town. I was showing pictures of some of the greatest sights in our great country, but the idiots thought I was just trying to be funny. When I showed the Statue of Liberty, one fellow yipped out, 'Oh, you flirt!' Then I turned on a view of Niagara Falls, and the same guy sung out, 'There's all the water John L. didn't drink!' I thought it was about time for a showdown, so I called for the lights to be turned on. Then, hopping down off the stage, I got the chap who I was sure was the monkey man for the party, and lugged him by the collar upon the platform. 'Now, go ahead and be funny,' says I, 'but do it within arm's reach.' He shut up and shook like a mouse in a trap, and I hung on to him while I spoke the rest of my little piece."

Gain 5 Pounds in 30 Days or Pay No Money

That's the ironclad guarantee behind Dr. Gross' Cod Liver Oil Tablets

Mother Says They're Fine For Kiddies

"My little girl (age nine years) looked so thin and pale I was worried constantly about her health. Your Tablets seem to be all she needed, and she picked up so rapidly I am now giving the Tablets to my other three children. Several of my neighbors' children are taking them also. They like to take them and they are doing them a world of good. Their appetites are enormous."

Mrs. E. Thorn, Illinois

Best Tonic He Has Ever Taken

"Beyond any doubt your Tablets are all that you claim for them and I will gladly recommend them to people who need something to build them up. Several friends are now taking them on my advice. I tried many other medicines without effect and had all but lost confidence until I tried your Tablets. They have made me feel ten years younger."

T. Terrell, Illinois

It's no trick at all, as hundreds of people have learned in the past few months, to put on good solid flesh with Dr. Gross' Cod Liver Oil Tablets.

Sugar-coated, they're as easy to take as candy, and they certainly do the business, building you up and giving you new pep and energy. They're splendid for weak, puny children, too—giving them appetite and vigor.

If you're tired of being scrawny and rundown, go to your druggist and get a bottle. So sure are we of results, we make this positive guarantee: Take three bottles of Dr. Gross' Tablets according to directions and at the end of 30 days if you haven't put on at least 5 pounds, if you don't feel like a new person, your money will be cheerfully refunded.

You've nothing to lose and everything to gain, so start the treatment today.

Note:—Originals of these letters are on file at our office.

Gains 11½ Pounds

"I tried your tablets and almost at once my appetite, which had been very poor, improved noticeably. I have been taking the tablets ever since and have gained eleven and one-half pounds and am feeling fine."

Mr. Eugene V. Fagan, Chicago

Skinny Man Increases 15 Pounds

"For the past ten years I have been trying to annex a little flesh. I tried a lot of remedies without any gain. Last October I started to use Dr. Gross' Cod Liver Oil Tablets. Then weighed 112 pounds. Since then I have gained 15 pounds and never felt or looked so well as I do now."

Mr. Harry Paige, Chicago

Built Him Up—Now Wants Brother to Take Tablets

"I took the treatment and gained twelve pounds. Now I want some tablets for my brother. He needs them and I know they will do him good."

Mr. L. W. Britton, Illinois

Gains 10 Pounds, 3 Ounces

"On September 10, I weighed 130 pounds, which was the day I started taking your tablets. After ten weeks of using your tablets I weigh 140 pounds, 3 ounces. The only fault with your tablets is that they make my clothes too small."

One-Legged Bike Rider Concedes Handicap in Race

"Peg" Martin, Olympic Hero on 12-Minute Mark Today; Limit Is 15.

The St. Louis Cycling Club will hold its annual 14-mile road race, the Bellefontaine Handicap, out the Olive Street Road to Hilltown, this morning. The race is being held early this season so it will not conflict with the National championship race to be held here in September. Twenty-eight riders are entered. They will start from the Creve Coeur Lake car tracks at 9 a. m.

The name of Hilltown was given the town of Bellefontaine years ago by the first cyclists to tour there. The race has been held over this course for the past 18 years, since the club was reorganized in 1906.

John Boulicault, who rides from scratch with Amass, Smith and Gaffney is almost certain to capture time prize and he will very likely "shake" at least two of these riders before the halfway mark is reached.

The entries and their handicaps are as follows:

Scratch—Boulicault, Amass, Smith, Gaffney.
5 Minutes—Dietrich, Kraus, Ellis, H. Lang, E. Hoppe, H. Hoppe, Wallace.
11 Minutes—Keuthan, Barr, Moeller, Schreiner, Willey, Zellman.
12 Minutes—Hassemer, Schaeffer, F. Hunicke, Peg Martin, Rotty, Tallcott.
15 Minutes—Rodgers, Jansky, Wolsendorf, Endicott, Stead.

Pro-Golfers to Play for District Title Tomorrow

Instructors to Compete at Glen Echo Club in 36-Hole Medal Tournament.

Professional golfers of the St. Louis district will hold their first annual title tournament tomorrow at the Glen Echo Country Club, playing 36 holes medal to decide the championship.

Art Longworth of the St. Louis Country Club, John Manion of Sunset, Earl Howell of Forest Park, and Matt Keogh of Normandie will form one of the fastest foursomes in the tournament and will be among the favorites.

Jack Burns of North Hills also will bear watching. He has not played very regularly of late, but he hits one of the longest balls in the tourney and will be hard to beat.

Walter Kossman of St. Clair will compete with Joe Henry of North Hills, Duwe of Forest Park and Sharkey.

Other professionals who will shoot for the cash prizes are Don and Elmer Harrison of Algonquin; Jim Pairman of Riverview, Fred Clarkson of Glen Echo, Red Lancaster of Kirkwood, Lou Hamel of Leacock's, Wyndham Monroe of Midland, Sandy Auchterlone of Normandie and Art Smith of Westwood.

BENTON FACES TOUGH SCHEDULE IN HARD ROADS ORGANIZATION

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HARRISBURG, Ill., June 27.—With but four more games to be played in the first half of the Southern Illinois Hard Roads League, the eight clubs in that circuit will swing into action again tomorrow. Benton, with a two-game lead over Harrisburg, looks like the winner of the first half, though that club has four hard games ahead of it.

Tomorrow Benton will play the hard-hitting Zeigler aggregation. There is considerable rivalry existing between the two clubs, and inasmuch as Wolf, the hurling ace of the Hard Roads League, will pitch for Zeigler, Benton may be stopped.

Next Thursday Benton will be called upon to face the Carrier Mills White Sox, another strong aggregation. On the Fourth of July the Benton club will play a double-header with Carterville.

Harrisburg hasn't such a hard schedule. West Frankfort shows here tomorrow, Mount Vernon calls for the Thursday game and Marion plays two games here July 4.

The second half begins Sunday, July 5, and from indications now, Mount Vernon will be replaced by either Herrin or Du Quoin.

MAJOR CLUBS SPEND $150,000 EACH YEAR TO PURCHASE BASEBALLS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK.—There was a movement under way last winter to curb the practice by umpires of throwing out baseballs. The reason was that pitchers, handicapped by the ban on artificial aids in hurling the horsehide, were additionally penalized by being forced to use a new sphere so frequently.

Each home club in the American League uses about 58 new baseballs a game. The same proportion of new balls are used in the National League, which means that at the end of the year the magnates face a bill of about $150,000 for that feature alone.

The only difference, according to the manufacturers, between the sphere of this year and that of other days is the grade of wool used, which is better than ever.

FOUR GAMES TODAY IN COLLINSVILLE MUNY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLLINSVILLE, Ill., June 27.—The Orioles play the Red Roses in the feature game here Sunday of the local Muny League. The Ideals and the Reds will clash in the second game at League Park.

The Cosmopolitans play Troy at Troy and the Pirates meet Maryville at Maryville in other Muny

Renato Gardini And Vadalfi on Mat Card Here

Rival Claimants for Italian Championship Signed for Bout.

Oreste Vadalfi and Renato Gardini, rival claimants of the Italian heavyweight wrestling title (in America), will clash next Friday night in a one-fall match, booked by Promoter Tom Packs as the semiwindup to a finish battle between Jimmy Londos, Greek mat champion, and Frank Judson of Boston, at the St. Louis University Athletic Field.

Packs announced his preliminary feature last night, following his return from Chicago, where he initiated a movement to bring together Joe Stecher and Ed "Strangler" Lewis in a world championship battle. The St. Louis promoter stated that his offer to post a purse of $60,000 for the proposed Stecher-Lewis bout has drawn no response from the grapplers.

Vadalfi a Local Favorite.

Vadalfi won a majority of his bouts in this city during the past season. Victories over Dick Daviscourt, Jimmy Londos, Dan Koloff, Taro Mayake and George Stecher, a few weeks before the Nebraskan captured the title from Stanislaus Zbyszko. This marked his first defeat in a local ring. He was later beaten twice by Londos.

Training quarters for the mat huskies on next Friday's program have been opened at the Red Ball Gymnasium, 117 North Sixth street, where Vadalfi has already launched his preparatory course. Londos is scheduled to report here today, while Judson will arrive tomorrow or Tuesday, according to Packs.

HORSESHOE PITCHERS' SCHEDULE FOR TODAY

The league-leading Curlees will meet the Angelicas and the Buster Browns will play the W. W. Kids in the feature matches of the Municipal Horse Shoe Pitchers' League Sunday morning at Fairground Park. The Southwests will play the Sunsets in the other match.

Walker Named Captain.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Pa. — Deane Walker, who will be a junior, today was elected captain of the Williams baseball team for next year. His home is in East Braintree. Walker has played second base on the Williams nine for two seasons, putting up a strong game both in the field and at the bat.

Florida

FLORIDA EAST COAST ACREAGE

I own and can deliver 800 acres, 2¼ miles west of Stuart, on the east coast, ¼ mile south of where the beautiful St. Lucie River empties into the Indian River and Atlantic Ocean.

Stuart is county seat of newly created Martin County. This section, because of its economic advantages, potential deep sea harbor, and new divisions of railroads, making Stuart their eastern terminal, is bound to make this the next big city in Florida.

THIS PROPERTY AT $200 PER ACRE IS A GOOD BUY, AND AT $175 IS A WONDERFUL BARGAIN.

As a speculative investment, it should be worth $1000 an acre very shortly, and by spending a little money in improvements can now be retailed for more than that amount.

I have sold thousands of acres of Florida land, aggregating hundreds of thousands of dollars—eight unseen—on confidence—every purchaser satisfied. $40,000 cash will handle this deal, and the purchasers should double or treble their money in 12 months or less. Will sell entire or divide.

INVESTIGATION OF JUDGE ENGLISH SPURS FIGHT ON "BANKRUPTCY RINGS

Conditions Bared in East St. Louis Cou Stress Abuses Prevalent in Many Cities Where Attorneys Fatten on Estates.

By Charles G. Ross,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 27.

DISCLOSURES at the recent congressional investigatio Federal Judge George W. English of East St. Louis, w view to his possible impeachment, have again drawn attention of lawyers and legislators to grave defects in the ad istration of the bankruptcy laws. That there is more than a c or merely local demand for improvement is evidenced by the that five bills seeking to amend the Federal bankruptcy act of —the present controlling statute in all bankruptcy proceedin were before the last Congress.

One of these amendatory bills, a comprehensive measure introduced by Senator Walsh of Montana, at the request of the National Association of Credit Men, got as far as passage by the Senate, only to be lost in the legislative shuffle without reaching a vote in the House. This bill will be brought forward again when Congress reconvenes in December. Efforts to amend the bankruptcy act in other directions will also, undoubtedly, be resumed.

On all the proposed revisions of the act the House Judiciary Committee, to which the bills will be referred, will be able to bring to bear the valuable knowledge of bankruptcy methods gained by the special committee, which inquired into the official conduct of Judge English and his "standing receiver," C. B. Thomas. In view of the vital importance, especially to the business world, of a proper administration of insolvent estates, the assumption is justified that the English investigation, whatever its immediate effect on the Judge, will prove to have been of incalculable value in the light it has thrown on the practical working of the bankruptcy laws.

"Wolves of Bankruptcy."

The "Bankruptcy Ring" that was shown to have existed on the East Side was not, however, an isolated phenomenon. All available evidence indicates that many such rings are in flourishing operation throughout the United States. According to R. Preston Shealey, a Washington attorney in charge of prosecutions for the National Association of Credit Men, every large center of population has a ring which fattens upon the fat pickings from bankrupt estates. The association has set itself the difficult task of exposing and prosecuting these unscrupulous groups—the "wolves of bankruptcy"—and is said by Shealey to be meeting with fair success. Good co-operation, he says, has been received from the Department of Justice.

Shealey is a strong advocate of the Walsh bill, which he believes would help to cure some of the outstanding evils in the handling of bankrupt estates. In the last analysis, though, it is Shealey's view that the remedy must be found in greater vigilance on the part of creditors. They should fully inform themselves of their rights under the existing laws, he says, and should watch the proceedings at every step, taking special care to see that a trustee is appointed who will guard their interests. Too often, as Shealey points out, the creditors of an estate, ignorant of their rights or indifferent, fail to elect a trustee, as is their power under the law, with the result that the estate is placed at the mercy of some "ringster."

It is evident, from the testimony taken at the English hearing, that the creditors of estates passing through the East St. Louis court did not always invoke their right to elect a trustee. This came out in the cross-examination of Judge English by Congressman Hersey. The fact had been developed that Judge English gave Thomas extraordinary powers in the matter of naming receivers. Then Congressman Hersey asked:

"When your friend (referring to Thomas) became the refer this district, he had a chan develop a good business, di not?"

Judge English: "Well,

Hersey: "He had the app ment of the trustees?"

Judge English: "No, si trustees are elected by the c ors according to law."

Hersey: "But where they not elected according to la appointed them."

Judge English: "Yes, sir

INVESTIGATION OF JUDGE ENGLISH SPURS FIGHT ON "BANKRUPTCY RINGS"

Conditions Bared in East St. Louis Court Stress Abuses Prevalent in Many Cities Where Attorneys Fatten on Estates.

Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 27.

DISCLOSURES at the recent congressional investigation of Federal Judge George W. English of East St. Louis, with a view to his possible impeachment, have again drawn the attention of lawyers and legislators to grave defects in the administration of the bankruptcy laws. That there is more than a casual or merely local demand for improvement is evidenced by the fact that five bills seeking to amend the Federal bankruptcy act of 1898—the present controlling statute in all bankruptcy proceedings—were before the last Congress.

One of these amendatory bills, a comprehensive measure introduced by Senator Walsh of Montana, at the request of the National Association of Credit Men, got as far as passage by the Senate, only to be lost in the legislative shuffle without reaching a vote in the House. This bill will be brought forward again when Congress reconvenes in December. Efforts to amend the bankruptcy act in other directions will also, undoubtedly, be resumed.

On all the proposed revisions of the act the House Judiciary Committee, to which the bills will be referred, will be able to bring to bear the valuable knowledge of bankruptcy methods gained by the special committee, which inquired into the official conduct of Judge English and his "standing receiver," C. B. Thomas. In view of the vital importance, especially to the business world, of a proper administration of insolvent estates, the assumption is justified that the English investigation, whatever its immediate effect on the Judge, will prove to have been of incalculable value in the light it has thrown on the practical working of the bankruptcy laws.

"Wolves of Bankruptcy."

The "Bankruptcy Ring" that was shown to have existed on the East Side was not, however, an isolated phenomenon. All available evidence indicates that many such rings are in flourishing operation throughout the United States. According to R. Preston Shealey, a Washington attorney in charge of prosecutions for the National Association of Credit Men, every large center of population has a ring which fattens upon the fat pickings from bankrupt estates. The association has set itself the difficult task of exposing and prosecuting these unscrupulous groups—the "wolves of bankruptcy"—and is said by Shealey to be meeting with fair success. Good co-operation, he says, has been received from the Department of Justice.

Shealey is a strong advocate of the Walsh bill, which he believes would help to cure some of the outstanding evils in the handling of bankrupt estates. In the last analysis, though, it is Shealey's view that the remedy must be found in greater vigilance on the part of creditors. They should fully inform themselves of their rights under the existing laws, he says, and should watch the proceedings at every step, taking special care to see that a trustee is appointed who will guard their interests. Too often, as Shealey points out, the creditors of an estate, ignorant of their rights or indifferent, fail to elect a trustee, as is their power under the law, with the result that the estate is placed at the mercy of some "ringster."

It is evident, from the testimony taken at the English hearing, that the creditors of estates passing through the East St. Louis court did not always invoke their right to elect a trustee. This came out in the cross-examination of Judge English by Congressman Hersey. The fact had been developed that Judge English gave Thomas extraordinary powers in the matter of naming receivers. Then Congressman Hersey asked: "When your friend (referring to Thomas) became the referee in this district, he had a chance to develop a good business, did he not?"

Judge English: "Well, fair."

Hersey: "He had the appointment of the trustees?"

Judge English: "No, sir, the trustees are elected by the creditors according to law."

Hersey: "But where they were not elected according to law, he appointed them."

Judge English: "Yes, sir."

Remedies in Walsh Bill.

Though the ultimate safeguard against the "milking" of bankrupt estates would appear, from Shealey's observations, to lie in greater watchfulness by the persons most interested—a watchfulness which must obviously be supplemented by diligence, and probity on the Federal bench—there are certain avenues of corruption that Shealey believes would be closed by the passage of the Walsh bill. This opinion is shared by the Judiciary Committee of the Senate, which favorably reported the bill.

Where the existing law fixes a limit of one year within which offenses under the act may be prosecuted, Walsh proposes that the time be lengthened to three years to correspond with general rule governing other criminal offenses. Virtually every Attorney-General for the last 20 years has made a similar recommendation.

Another and more important proposed change is directed at the evil of collusive bankruptcies. The law provides that a debtor who has gone into voluntary bankruptcy and been discharged cannot repeat the proceeding within six years. Evidence taken by a special House Committee this year shows that the law on this point is being constantly evaded. It is very easy for a failing debtor to get some creditor, perhaps a relative or someone with a trumped-up claim, to file an "involuntary" bankruptcy petition. Thus the debtor, regardless of the limitation on voluntary proceedings, may resort time after time to bankruptcy that is ostensibly forced on him but is really of his own choosing. Such an evasion of the law is made possible by the doubtful ethical standards of some bankruptcy lawyers—the class of lawyers from whom the "ringsters" in bankruptcy are recruited. The Walsh bill strikes at this practice by proposing to make the six-year interval apply to bankruptcies generally, and not to voluntary proceedings alone.

"At the present time," says the report on the bill, "a very large percentage of the so-called involuntary proceedings are really instituted with the knowledge and at the behest of the debtor, and as the law now stands the debtor will be granted repeated discharges through recourse to the so-called involuntary proceedings. The amendment is designed to stop this abuse."

Wiles of Collusive Bankrupt.

How do the bankruptcy "ringsters," in their various roles of receivers, trustees and attorneys for the receivers and trustees, ply their trade? An illuminating answer to that question has been given by Harold Remington, author of a book on bankruptcy and one of the expert witnesses before the special House committee already

What Japan Asks of the World And What the World May Expect Of Japan, Told by Prime Minister Kato

Nation's Abhorrence of War and Knowledge of Blessings of Peace Form One of the Soundest Reasons for Avoiding Strife in the Pacific.

Japan's Territory Is Sufficient to Care for Increase in Population for 200 Years to Come—America Is Best Market of Island Empire.

By EDWARD PRICE BELL,
Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News.

TOKIO, Japan, June 1.

"PEACE is a favorite theme with me," said Viscount Takaaki Kato, Prime Minister of Japan, as he sat talking slowly and quietly in a handsome drawing room of English type at the official residence, Tokio. "Peace and its fruits, increasingly and, I believe, with growing promise of success, inspire the efforts of governments and peoples everywhere."

Our special theme was the peace of the Pacific.

"It touches us, of course, with distinctive intimacy," continued the Prime Minister, taking a cigarette, holding it for a moment, lighting it and smoking unhurriedly. "To the peace of the Pacific we Japanese are devoted. We are devoted to it ardently. It never will be broken by a wanton act by Japan. I see no warrant for prophecies of a warlike initiative in the Pacific from any source. Who could contemplate such an event without horror?"

"You think, then, the cause of peace is making headway?"

"I do. Its importance is better understood than in former times. Last year saw a great improvement in international relations. Europe set her feet on the path of revival and prosperity. International co-operation and reciprocal confidence were shown in the unraveling of the tangled skein of reparations. Public men of powerful states added to their knowledge of world affairs. Examination of national situations and points of view left peoples less far apart in understanding and sympathy. Only education of this kind is necessary to the consolidation of peace."

Peoples Drawing Closer Together

"What do you think of the press of the world in relation to the struggle for peace?"

"I think its power and duty enormous. I am appealing on every suitable occasion for journalistic support of the persons and the institutions whose aim is peace. Newspapers are among the most vital agencies of humanity. Food, water and air scarcely affect human life more widely or essentially, for newspapers afford spiritual and intellectual stimulation and sustenance for the masses of the world. Pure newspapers, informed and honest newspapers, generous and fearless newspapers, it probably is not too much to say, would insure the moral and mental health of nations, and nations morally and mentally healthy would have no desire to go to war."

The speaker was a statesman and diplomatist of large experience, born of a Samurai family of Nagoya in 1860, graduated at law from the Imperial University of Tokio, trained in the official hierarchy of Japana, a crown member of the House of Peers, twice a member of the House of Commons, four times Minister of Foreign Affairs, leader of the Kenseikai party formed by the late Prince Katzura, and for many years Japanese Ambassador to London, where the late King Edward decorated him with the knight commandership of the Order of St. Michael and St. George.

Japan Wants Only Peace

"It puzzles me that Japan's peaceful disposition should be questioned by any one," said the Viscount. "We enjoyed an unbroken peace of three centuries. Its matchless blessing, therefore, we know. We know how it furthers science and art, how it elevates the soul of a people, how it promotes their individual and social welfare and what impetus it gives to the progress of ordered freedom. War is fatal to ordered freedom. This fact Japan understands, and Japan loves ordered freedom. War resembles an earthquake. War is, in a sense, an earthquake; it shatters the liberties of men, sets fire to their possessions, destroys their lives. Japan does not like earthquakes. True, she has fought two great wars, but they were wars of defense—not a trace of militaristic aggression in either of them."

"What should your excellency say specifically about Japano-American relations?"

"I should say first, and with all possible emphasis, that Japan wants these relations kept on a basis of firm friendship, and will neglect no step to that end."

VISCOUNT KATO

Grieved by Certain American Laws

"How about our naturalization, land, and immigration laws?"

"Touching these and all other matters that may come up between the United States and Japan, this country proposes nothing and contemplates nothing but friendly discussion. Friendly discussion is becoming the rule of the world. It is educative. It is morally powerful. It is a thousandfold better for clearing the international air, for unveiling truth and justice, than are the dust and smoke of battle. Japan depends upon time, friendship, argument, and conscience to right any wrong from which she and other honest nations may suffer.

"Certain American laws have surprised and grieved the Japanese people, all the more because the Japanese long have felt that America was a seat of especial friendship toward them. It was not a practical thing, the thing which hurt. It was a sentimental thing, and sentiment plays a large part in Japanese life, as, I suppose, in the life of every advanced people. Our citizens, prizing their exceptional historical ties with America, believing themselves exponents of the ideals of the American republic, devoted students of American customs, achievements and culture, and feeling they had won a place in the front rank of civilized Powers, naturally were shocked and pained when they realized that America appeared to regard them as deserving of adverse discrimination among the nationalities of the world.

Japan Wishes to Keep Its Citizens

"It was, I repeat, a sentimental matter. Nothing practical upon which we had set our hearts had been taken away from us. No wide door of opportunity had been closed against us. We merely were wounded in our feelings. Our friends had done something we did not expect and which we could not help adjudging unjust. If there was popular resentment in Japan for a time, it quickly subsided, for the impression spread that the heart of America was not unfriendly to Japan, and that rational discussion finally would redress the sentimental balance between the two countries. Talk of a league of white nations, presumably directed against Japan among others, and of American naval maneuvers and military intentions in the Pacific, disturbed our people slightly, but that unrest also passed without harmful consequences.

"Japan remains friendly to the United States and expects a favorable issue of all intergovernmental conversations and negotiations affecting the permanent relations of the two countries. Concerning naturalization, I always have been opposed to it—opposed, I mean, to pressing other Governments to naturalize Japanese subjects. Sentimentally, of course, there is an objection to a refusal of naturalization on the ground of political origin or of race, but personally I never could bring myself to urge something involving the expatriation of my fellow countrymen. I want to conserve our population, not open the way for its loss to our commonwealth.

"To antialien land laws in Japan I always have been opposed. Happily, such legislation exists here no more. It never was needed, for the excessive dearness of Japanese land precluded its passing on a large scale into the hands of foreigners. In Europe and America land is sold by the acre; here it is sold by the square foot. If there were danger, for example, of a considerable acreage in America falling to the ownership of non-American Japanese, or of other immigrants of non-American citizenship, I suppose legislation would be advisable to protect the native patrimony. But there is only a handful of such Japanese in your country, and this handful will not increase appreciably.

Disloyalty of Resident Aliens

"Exaggeration, in our view, consistently has marked the anti-Japanese propaganda in the United States. Misleading statistics, as we think, have been employed for prejudicial and alarmist purposes. There has been a false attribution of sentiments and motives to Japanese individuals and to the Japanese Government. It has been said that in no circumstances can a Japanese immigrant, or even a Japanese born in the United States, be instinctively and unalterably loyal to the American flag. It has been charged in Californian propagandist literature that the Japanese Government retains control over the Japanese in America and countenances their secret disloyalty to the country of their adoption or birth.

"Very earnestly do I wish exaggeration and misstatement relative to this question might be avoided. I wish it could be discussed with no passion except a passion for the truth. That the Japanese in the United States are disloyal to that country, or that they are capable of desiring evil in any form to overtake it, I cannot believe. And one thing I know; it is unthinkable and impossible that any Japanese Government should support, or should fail to condemn, any sentiment or agitation by the Japanese in America unfavorable to the institutions or the welfare of the American people. Such sentiment or agitation would ruin those beneficent relations which Japan is resolved to nurture between America and herself.

"On the question of so-called dual citizenship, I am in agreement with American thought. In terms and in fact dual citizenship is an irreconcilable contradiction. Citizenship enjoins singleness of allegiance and fidelity. It is perfectly patriotic, of course, for the citizens of one country to be of service to the citizens of another, for benefits flowing across frontiers are world benefits, and every nation is a part of our independent world. What I am trying to say is that we all can be good world neighbors and at the same time good single-allegiance citizens. But, as the world stands, it is impossible to conceive of dual citizenship as a practical political principle. Japan has abandoned her law in conflict with this view. Japanese born in America, so far as we are concerned, may elect Japanese citizenship; they may not elect both Japanese and American.

Japanese Love for the Homeland

"As regards the question of emigration, our whole attitude—the attitude of the Japanese nation—seems to be misunderstood in many quarters abroad. It seems to be supposed that millions of our people are eager to leave home. It seems to be supposed that our population is so great, and is growing so rapidly, that spacious outlets must be found for it in foreign lands. It falsifies both the feelings of our people and the conditions in Japan. If any nation loves its homeland, the Japanese love Japan—love it in general, and love their own special parts in particular. They not only do not want to emigrate, but do not want to migrate from spots where they were born to other places within their own country. Japan's territory, home and colonial, is sufficient for her needs for at least a century, and probably two.

"Does this mean we have a sparsely peopled country? On the contrary, we have a densely peopled country, and our population is increasing at the rate of perhaps 700,000 a year. In respect of population as related to territory, our position is like that of England, Wales or Belgium. Japan proper, with an area of one-twentieth of that of the Unit-

Lloyd George Sees England Dragged Again Into War By European Peace Pact

Indefinite in Terms, Says British Statesman, and Capable of Almost Any Interpretation—Guarantees England Nothing.

By David Lloyd George.

LONDON, June 27.

EUROPE is puzzled and perturbed by the pact negotiations, and more largely perturbed and entirely puzzled since the publication of the actual correspondence.

Italy will have none of it. Mussolini will not commit his ship to a fog amongst the icebergs. Germany is divided—the Socialists, the Centre and the Democrats there are friendly—the Conservatives are completely hostile. Britain is bewildered. The Conservatives and Liberals are hesitant and uncertain. The Socialists are definitely opposed. The German and French Socialists like the pact because they think it makes for international peace. The British Socialists oppose it because they think it makes straight for war.

What a document! Its principal feature is its obscurity. All the important points are left in utter doubt. State documents are, at all times, inclined to be ponderous and involved and to require an alert, not to say a patient, mind in order to comprehend and interpret them.

The note which has just been addressed by the French Government in reply to the German suggestions of February last for a European pact is even more mystifying than usual. It is only partially explained by the lengthy correspondence and notes which led up to it. With its indefinite terms and woolly phrases, it is capable of almost any interpretation. Altogether, it is a thoroughly Briandesque performance. The hand of the wily French politician appears in every line. The pact may not save Europe from ultimate war, but it will carry the French Government through an immediate crisis.

France is apt to think of her politicians in terms of the animal world. M. Clemenceau was "The Tiger;" M. Briand is always referred to as "The Cat"—sinuous, using indolence and sleep to cover vigilance; a nimble, elusive but on the whole most useful creature to have about the house. In this document he purrs pacifism with the Socialists and growls nationalism with "Le Temps." So they are both equally pleased. He refers the former to his frequent phrases about arbitration and the latter to his constant insistence on treaty rights. Which does he mean? Neither—he only means to stave off parliamentary trouble and, if defeat comes, it must be on account of M. Caillaux's failure and not that of M. Briand.

Binds England Blindly.

That may be all right for the Painleve-Briand-Caillaux ministry, but what about Britain? The substance and effect of it would appear to be that whoever goes to war in future in Europe, Great Britain will be summoned to take her place on the battlefield. She makes common cause with every great European country and, whichever side she may ultimately have to fight on, the fact remains that she will have to fight. Before old accounts are settled, Britain is asked to undertake new liabilities. War means the spending and lending of money. Britain is still groaning under the weight of what she spent and lent during the great war. Her debts are still uncollected, nor do they even appear to be remembered by her debtors. Nevertheless, here is a new proposal for engaging the might and resources of Britain in any struggle which may arise on the Continent. No wonder the astute Fascist who rules Italy disliked such a muddled contract.

It may be argued that it is not war but peace that is concerned in this document. We must be careful lest, in preparing for peace, we are not seeking new wars. The origin of the great war ought to have taught Europe that cause of strife cannot be laid down or anticipated in state documents; that they rise in a moment from nowhere, appearing on the horizon like a cloud no larger than a man's hand; that, in fact, they are often as obscure as the reply which has just been sent to Germany.

War Ever Menacing.

The events which may determine future wars, if wars there must be, will probably be quite outside the scope of any agreement which may be made now. With the Central European countries still restless and inflamed, who can tell whence the trouble may spring? One thing may be regarded as certain from past experience, that it will surely be from some unforeseen quarter. Russia is an incalculable proposition at present and everything may happen in that direction. Austria, hedged around by tariff walls, may find it impossible to live on her little freehold without forming part of a large estate. Union with Germany is, for her, not a question of racial affinity but of economic necessity. That would not only be distasteful to her neighbors but would be regarded by them and by France as an hostile act. It is impossible to draw up a plan for eventualities before one knows what the ground of discord is likely to be. Wars do not happen thus, with nations carefully arrayed against each other 20, 30 or 50 years previously.

M. Poincare, most "die-hard" and intransigeant of French politicians, was opposed to the pact when it was offered in 1922. This statesman of dried putty, which may crack or crumble but never gives way and can never be adapted to any groove except the one in which Providence first stuck it and in which it has hardened, rejected the proposition as not being of capital interest to France. Why then is such importance attached to the present proposal, which, as far as France herself is concerned, apparently only gives her a similar guarantee? The answer to that question lies in the proposed arrangement with regard to Poland. France has so committed herself with the countries of Central Europe as to make the Polish frontier her own.

Rhineland and Poland.

The wasp in this jar of ointment which is to heal the wounds of Europe is the reservation by which France may march through the Rhineland to the aid of Poland. As far back as 1921, the French Ambassador explained to Lord Curzon, then Foreign Secretary, that what was in the French mind was a guarantee against direct and indirect attack, meaning he explained, by the latter, such a situation as might arise if Germany were to attack Poland. "Such a situation," he said, "would, of course, in the minds of the French, be almost equivalent to a direct attack upon their country." There is no doubt that this is what is still in the minds of the French people today and the fact, that, under the new proposal, Britain virtually assents to this is naturally a source of satisfaction to France and the French press at the moment.

To put the thing on the most selfish basis—and, after all, Britain has a right and duty to look after her own interests—what is the quid pro quo, as far as we are concerned? We promise our support to various European coun-

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

La Follette—An Appreciation.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

ROBERT MARION LA FOLLETTE and Abraham Lincoln were the greatest conservative statesman in America since the founders of the Republic.

La Follette ranks with Lincoln and Eugene V. Debs as one of the three great modern preachers of genuine democracy in America.

He was foremost in his generation among the defenders of the common man's rights of person and property, established by the founders in the American Constitution and its first amendments, and preserved and enlarged by Lincoln in our greatest war.

He was foremost among the advocates of the extension of complete political, personal and property rights to women. Without his powerful endorsement of Gov. Blaine's platform demand adopted in 1920, Wisconsin would not have become, as it did in 1921, the first state in the English-speaking world where women enjoy equal political, personal and property rights with men.

He was foremost among those who fought successfully to liberate American seamen from a condition bordering upon serfdom.

He was foremost among those public men who, recognizing in the private business corporation a valuable new instrument for the creation and diffusion of wealth, insisted that this new instrument should be employed primarily for the service of society rather than for its merciless exploitation. Initiating laws with this end in view, he was the best friend of all corporations that sought fair profits honestly earned by useful service, as he was the enemy of all corporations that sought excessive profits through over-capitalizing the special privileges and exemptions inherent in the corporate organization of business.

He was foremost among those public men who perceived the need for the State to safeguard corporation employes against oppression by many of the remote and over-greedy masters of the new organization of industry.

He was foremost among our public men in opposing our foolish, unnecessary and enormously destructive participation in the European war and was one of the very few who had the courage to vote against it at the last hour, as he was foremost in opposing the after-war attempt to embroil our country in Europe's further wars through membership in the League of Nations.

He was a great man, a great patriot, a great American, a magnificent warrior in the cause of liberty and justice. His faults of temperament and of judgment will be forgotten in the memory of his lifelong service to the highest interests of the American people.

Gov. Blaine is his natural, inevitable successor in leadership in Wisconsin, Senator Borah in the nation. Fallible as he was and as we all are, these men love liberty, love justice, and have the high courage to advocate and defend these first indispensable requisites to the life of a free people.

FRANK PUTNAM.
Milwaukee, June 19, 1925.

Fundamentalist Absurdities.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

BRYAN and his ilk create more atheists than the churches can convert in a lifetime. To assert that Christ made grape juice and not wine, at his first miracle is the height of asininity.

When we think of what Bryan did to the Democrats we are sure sorry for Tennessee.

J. J. MORONY.
Breese, Ill.

Agrees With Reed.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

"AMERICAN" does not express the opinion of Reed entertained by an overwhelming majority of the American people. The national and state elections of 1920, 1922 and 1924 emphatically indorsed the eloquent and courageous opposition of Reed to the Wilson League of Nations or any other kind of "foreign entangling alliance" condemned by the forefathers of our republic and avoided as a national policy ever since. The argument of "American" is absurd that because our revolutionary forefathers, who unitedly risked their lives to gain their independence, formed a union of states and created a United States Supreme Court for themselves, we, therefore, ought to be willing to join a union of foreign states and submit to all decisions of a foreign supreme court. Such a surrender of our independence would be worse than any necessary war fought for our rights. Most foreign nations are unscrupulous, greedy and treacherous, excepting our ever faithful Revolutionary ally, France. Such nations are scheming to use our wealth, power and influence for their own selfish purposes. The Revolutionary forefathers of our republic were right.

We now have over 30 treaties with all the leading nations of the world, excepting Germany, which provide a simple and peaceful method of settling all our foreign controversies. If these treaties are "scraps of paper" it would be folly to make new agreements. By our present treaties, we are mutually pledged to submit all disputes, if necessary, to arbitration, but in no case must there be war until a year after arbitration, except in case of actual invasion or intentional insult.

JEFF MACKAY.

THE PRESIDENT ON VACATION.

Sea and land spread out their bounty to the summer visitor at Swampscott. Yachting, bathing, fishing, motoring, riding, golf—all call alluringly to the man who has left the day's work behind him. But none of these attractions beguile the President. Mr. Coolidge's education, it is agreed, is defective in one important respect. He has never learned to play. There was no fishing tackle in the presidential baggage. The inevitable golf bag was missing from what Caesar called the impedimenta. The absence of knickers, of sport clothes of any genre, is reported. Vacation in the orthodox sense has no place in the Coolidge scheme of things. Why, then, has he gone through the motion of taking one?

Washington speculation answers the question. Mr. Coolidge has gone to Swampscott because the one game in which he is interested demands his presence there. That game is politics. To be specific, Mr. Coolidge is in Massachusetts to assist his friend and political patron, William M. Butler, chairman of the Republican National Committee, a Senator by appointment and ambitious to be a Senator by the verdict of the polls.

Mr. Butler will need all the help his most influential sponsor may render. His opponent for the senatorship in the election still a year away will be David I. Walsh. He is a remarkable person, this Mr. Walsh. A Democrat whom Republican Massachusetts has delighted to honor repeatedly with the governorship. The old Bay State even sent him to the Federal Senate. Mr. Walsh's position in Massachusetts is much the same as that of Al Smith in New York. In the landslide of last year, for example, Mr. Walsh was beaten by a scant 18,000, while the same constituency piled up almost half a million plurality for Coolidge. And Walsh was beaten by Gillett who by reason of his long, distinguished career in the House, culminating in the speakership, was the strongest candidate the Republicans could have chosen.

Mr. Butler's political horoscope, therefore, is cluttered up with portent and gloomy omens. In the pungent metaphor of the sport page, the dope is against him. Now is the time for all good Republicans to come to the aid of their national chairman. Mr. Coolidge, correctly partisan, is, properly enough, the first to respond. But what can he do to turn a political battle whose first rumblings are still wrapped in the distant future's silence? Obviously his contribution to the Butler cause at this time is psychological. The public mind of the old Bay State is expected to be impressed with the complimentary fact that the President chose to spend his vacation on Massachusetts soil. There is material here for delectable propaganda. Mr. Butler will run for the Senate next year as the President's friend. Mr. Walsh's opponent in 1926, as in 1924, will be the Coolidge myth, bedecked in whatever habiliments the exigencies require.

Is practical politics of this sort, with its unmistakable aroma of intrigue, unbecoming the dignity of the President? Before answering, let us remember that politics is Mr. Coolidge's profession; it is also his golf, his fishing, his sole recreation, his only sport. Let us remember, too, that Mr. Butler, as the President's personal friend and the party's national chairman, occupies an extraordinary position. His defeat would be something more than personal. It would, in a sense, be a repudiation of the administration. So the senatorial election in Massachusetts next year, the first gun of which has already been fired, will command national attention. And if Walsh should be defeated the disappointed liberal opinion of the country will have to admit that the Coolidge myth is a tenaciously potent fable.

HOW TO KNOW THE WEATHER.

In view of the researches of the American Society of Astrologians it becomes increasingly apparent what a dud we have on our hands in the United States Weather Bureau. For years it has been the Weather Bureau's contention that weather can be forecast only a day or two in advance. The astrologers' society disposes of this theory. It forecasts the weather two years in advance and, what is more to the point, the weather for next month. For example, it is out with a bulletin covering July. The weather, it declares, will be pretty hot, with thunderstorms and some cool days and a new moon.

Why couldn't our Weather Bureau think of that? You would think, considering how much money the taxpayers spend on it, that it would at least know it is going to be hot in July. But no! It still sticks to the antiquated idea that weather cannot be foretold more than 48 hours in advance, and it remains for a private group of astrologers, observing the configurations and geocentric longitudinal positions of the heavenly bodies, to give us this much-needed information. How long are we to wait before the Weather Bureau gives us service? What we need is efficiency in government.

MENCKEN ON ART CRITICS.

H. L. Mencken arose last week to denounce most art critics as quacks and to characterize their fulminations as "highfalutin and occult tosh." Painting, he finds, is a simple art and a transparent one. Everything of importance in the most profound canvas can be gathered in a few moments by the educated spectator. Thus the experience of looking at paintings is essentially short-lived. "It is not," says Mr. Mencken, "like getting shaved, coming down with cholera morbus or going to the wars; it is like jumping out of the way of a taxicab or getting kissed."

Before Mr. Mencken came to these firm conclusions he probably spent all of the spare moments of a week reading art criticism, particularly of art since Cezanne. Yet, despite the fact that he is as usual headlong and dogmatic in his statements, he may be listened to with profit, not only by art critics, but by music and literary critics as well. "There has never been," says Mr. Mencken, "so far as I know, a critic of painting who wrote about it simply and clearly. * * * Even the most orthodox of the brethren, when he finds himself before a canvas that genuinely moves him, takes refuge in esoteric winks and grimaces and mysterious gurgles and belches. He can never put his feelings into plain English. Always, before he is done, he is sweating metaphysics, which is to say nonsense."

Trying to explain a beautiful painting with a lot of subjective rubbish that the painter himself wouldn't understand is not only absurd in itself, but it is bad for art. The critics have scared to death persons uneducated in art. Such persons are afraid to get natural enjoyment out of a canvas; they feel it incumbent upon them to mutter platitudes about "perspective," or "feeling," or any number of other cliches which the art critics purvey in wholesale quantities. The same is true of music; music critics, by their intricate and often senseless verbiage, keep people away from good music, or send them to hear it in sheer fright that they may not be able to "understand" the music. Why should a symphony be explained? How can it be explained? To attempt to do so is for a critic to make himself as ridiculous as John Ruskin when he tried to describe a sunset. Literary critics, by reason of the nature of their field, are in a different category; yet they, too, deal in much "highfalutin and occult tosh."

REALISM AND OPTIMISM

Behind the written program of the Congress of the International Chamber of Commerce at Brussels there raged an almost amusing battle between European realism and American optimism. On the opening day Maurice Desprets, president of the Congress, Brussels banker and adviser to the King, wrestled orally with the difficulties of reparations and allied debt payment. If the payment of billions could not be made in cash, he declared, it would have to be made in goods and services, which would impoverish the creditor as well as the debtor nations, because it would interfere with employment in the creditor nations. The task of financial adjustment, he said, would not be finished until there was enlightenment of public opinion. But, he declared:

> Perhaps that will destroy certain illusions and dispel certain false hopes. Is that a cause for regret? You will not think so. Men who in the domain of fact reveal the truth instead of hiding it, play a less easy and less agreeable part, but a more useful and more noble one than those who arouse and entertain false hopes.

The reply of John W. O'Leary, president of the American Chamber, after nearly a week of chafing silence, was full of optimism and moral kick. The national banner was defended with spirit, and uncomplimentary charges were indignantly repudiated. As the correspondent said, the mists of pessimism and doubt were rolled away by the orator's vigorous words. He asserted the faith of the American people in the Dawes plan. "The funding of international debts," he said, "is a problem of government, but governments continue in power only by carrying out the wishes of the people," and the American Government, as to war debts, is carrying out "the will of the American people."

All of which is good politics, good morals, sound business ethics and good success propaganda. But what has it to do with solving the economic equations of the Dawes plan, which Desprets questioned and which the economic authorities of the world have more than doubted? We trust that the hard heads of the delegates upon whom is not imposed the necessity of orating, boosting and defending the national colors, will still keep in mind the realities of the economic problem, thereby strengthening the forces of intelligence, without which error and its consequences are unavoidable.

CHICAGO'S REVOLT.

Chicago's expressed desire to secede from Illinois may be futile from a practical standpoint, but it is a significant gesture just the same. The big city's dissatisfaction arises from an inequality in representation in the Legislature, a condition which the rural bloc has persistently refused to correct. A month or so ago Chicago threatened to withhold its share of State taxes from the treasury at Springfield, but this was treated as a "huge joke" by Governor Small. When the City Council, however, approves unanimously a resolution looking toward secession, the down-State politicians may decide to take the thing more seriously.

This is not merely a sentimental, musico-burlesque tug-of-war between city and country. It is an awakening of the long-suffering metropolis to the viciousness of a system by which the rural population, through its representatives, profits hugely by city taxes and withholds from the city its natural rights. Obviously, rural Illinois is the beneficiary of Chicago. Obviously, the presence of that great city is largely responsible for Illinois' new and marvelous system of roads, its public institutions, its general prosperity. Then why should Chicago be denied a voice not only in the affairs of the State, but in its own affairs, proportionate to the number of its citizens?

The United States is rapidly being transformed from a rural to an urban country, yet the majority of the Legislatures is controlled by the rural districts. The same is true of the national Legislature. Something of a change will appear in the next reapportionment, but in the meantime the rural districts are bringing the situation to a critical standpoint by jealous exercise and abuse of their power. The Chicago incident is not unique. Detroit is contemplating a severance from Michigan. New York has long nourished the idea of divorce from the tyranny of Albany. St. Louis, one of the most notable victims of vicarious control, is a model of patience and long-suffering. To the rights of the cities, the country ultimately must yield. There is no just reason why one tax-paying city-dweller should have less representation in governing bodies than one tax-paying farmer.

PANETELA.

Yes, Luella,
Bob La Follette
Had to die
To win applause;
After all,
We liked his spirit,
Though aborrent
Of his cause.
When the peril
Of his presence
On the firing
Line had passed,
Then we hailed him
As a hero
In a sort
Of ringing blast.

So it goes,
My little girlie:
Those who in Their courage give Battle for
The things that matter
Reap no plaudits
While they live.
Theirs it is
To know how bitter
Our resistance
Is to growth,
And the best
They can aspire to
Is our own
Unthinking oath.

Let us take
The case of Thomas Jefferson:
We owe him more
Possibly
Than all the other Statesmen who Have gone before.
From him came
Our constitution,
Free press
And the bill of rights,
Or the light
That has succeeded
History's
Uncounted nights.

Yet when Jefferson
Was living
And a candidate
Like Bob,
All the quality
Opposed him
For the presidential job.
He, too,
Was a threat
And menace
Unto all things
We applaud,
And when he
Was still elected,
Lots of good folk
Moved abroad.

What the moral is,
Luella,
It will do
No good to tell;
One must think
Of Galileo
Wondering
Within his cell.
Still,
We can make reparation,
Now our blood
Is fairly cool,
And in Bob's name
Send our children
Up to Madison
To school.

Sir: The pretty girls that help to advertise soft drinks and chocolate candy and use "our" flour baking pies and are handy with "our" irons, should also be used on the sign boards and ads in magazines and newspapers to advertise the various kinds of cigarettes. Smoking among women has gone beyond the bathroom-boudoir-I-don't-do-it-in-public-my-husband-doesn't-mind stage. Women inhale the weed all over the pages of America's best fiction magazines. The late Amy Lowell of Back Bay fame has had photographs taken while smoking cigars and Michael Arlen has given his sanction to the custom provided they don't do it just to create a smoke screen. Women's lounging rooms are equipped with modern incinerator facilities. Why, then, do the advertisers of cigarettes fight shy of having women or pretty girls smoking their particular brand of cigarette on bill posters? Aren't we tired of just roseate youths smoking? Give us a Cole Phillips girl displaying her pedal extremities and smoking a cigarette. Picture a beautiful maiden with a cigarette between her carmine lips and a cerulean blue sky lathered here and there with shaving soap clouds as a background. Wouldn't the sales of cigarettes increase?

nois and becoming a State of its own. If many of the big cities did that country politicians would have a hard time making a living. Most Governors of the states which have a big city have got into public office setting the country against the city, and most legislatures in such states are organized upon that basis. It is for this reason that states without big cities are usually better governed and better represented. They enjoy a mean of the mass intelligence, whereas the states with big cities ordinarily suffer from the various forms of hick rule. Missouri is no better off in this respect than Illinois. Civilization, instead of being lifted to the level of St. Louis and Kansas City, is depressed to the level of the country. Anybody who can boast that he has never ventured out of Union Station while passing through St. Louis can be Governor of Missouri, and if the people found out that he ever did he could not beat a fat man up a hill.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

CONFEDERATE MONEY NOW GOOD.

From the Boston Transcript.

CULMINATING July 3, two million Confederate memorial half-dollars, minted by order of Congress, will have been distributed throughout this country for a worthy purpose. Proceeds of the sale at the slight premium of 50 cents will go toward completion of the Memorial to the Confederacy being erected on Stone Mountain, Georgia, work upon which was interrupted by the unfortunate disagreement between Gutzon Borglum and the committee in charge of the enterprise. The coins bear the likenesses of Robert E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson, and in the South they are being hailed particularly as restoring Gen. Lee to that citizenship which he so much desired at the time of his death; and as the South regards the offerings they signalize the first time in history when the victor has shared his crown with the vanquished. It may be needless to record that the coins are being bought as freely in the North as in the South. This is as it should be.

CRACKED, BUT NOT BROKEN.

From the New York Post.

EUROPEAN resistance against paying the old World War debts to America has not been broken, but it has been cracked. The intensive discussions of these loans on both sides of the Atlantic during the last six months have not been in vain. French assurances of settlement have become more definite. Bucharest cables say Rumania will follow the French lead. The Belgian funding commission will reach Washington in July to talk business. Secretary Mellon is summoning the American Debt Funding Commission to meet next month to confer with the Belgians and with those French and Italian representatives who may be present at that time. The administration hopes to be able to place as many signed and sealed refunding agreements before Congress as possible next December. Vague as some of these negotiations have been and are, the prospect of final readjustment of the larger loans has never been better than now.

OWNERSHIP OF THE RIO GRANDE.

From the San Antonio News.

WHO owns the Rio Grande waters? The United States courts may answer in the near future, for Texas plans to bring suit against Colorado to enjoin it from building a dam for impounding the stream's head waters. New Mexico, that also is interested vitally, already has joined Texas in the action. Colorado might argue that she has a right to the snows which fall on her own mountain tops, but her sister States will dispute that contention. There is equally sound basis for the principle that a river belongs to all the States it traverses and that each is entitled to share equitably in its waters. The Federal courts will be asked to choose between these viewpoints, and doubtless will find a way out of the tangle. The old controversy over the Colorado River is recalled; it resulted in long delay to the reclamation program, but finally was adjudicated by interstate treaty. No doubt a similar arrangement will be effected with regard to the Rio Grande, and it should be done without costly litigation.

Premier Tells What

States, is the home of half as many people—56,000,000—as inhabit your immense continental territory, and the total population of our empire is close on 80,000,000. That our national problem, our problem of food, clothing and shelter, is a momentous one requires no statement.

Japan Able to Support Its People.

"But we are not appalled by it. And we are not driven by it to cast covetous eyes upon other people's territories—still less to dream of war as a means of solution. We are crowded in this island and colonial empire, but we are far from the end of either our room or our resources. It is not altogether a question of how much arable land you have; it also is a question of how you cultivate it. Japan cultivates her acres intensively. She makes one tan, or a quarter of an acre, feed one mouth; she makes an acre feed four. Congestion exists principally in the Southern and Southwestern areas. People can migrate to the north, where there is more room, and they will do so when they must; they will not do so before.

"There is ample, if not abundant, opportunity for agriculture in Hokkaido, Korea, Formosa and Japanese Sakhailien. To any one or all of these territories our people can and will move when the pressure of population and economic need becomes strong enough to induce them to leave their homes. We also hope there will be opportunities for Japanese farmers in Siberia—a contingency dependent upon the settled relations that may come about between Japan and Russia. Aside from these agricultural prospects, Japanese skill and labor have much to anticipate in the way of productive occupation. We can become more highly industrialized. We can extend our commerce. Our textiles, for instance, already are selling in a wide Asian market, and we have our fisheries, forests and mines—all capable of expansion.

Conserving the Strength of a Nation.

"My point is that those observers who represent Japan, because of her relatively small productive territory and her large and growing population, as a peril to world peace, either are ignorant of both human and natural realities in Japan, or are actuated by studied injustice and emnity toward this country. Our people, as to the vast majority, do not and never will want to emigrate. If they ask the United States and other countries to deal with them on a plane of equality with other civilized peoples—and the Japanese would not be Japanese if they did not ask this—it is not with any purpose of inundating foreign lands with a Japanese flood. Our people live a simple, hard-working life, but a self-respecting life not devoid of joy, and they probably are as well satisfied as is any other division of the human family.

"Emigration. We have been discussing it from the Japanese point of view—discussing it in the concrete. Now let us look at it in the abstract. What does emigration mean? Does it mean the integration or the disintegration of a people? Does it mean a consolidation or a dissipation of national strength? On what theory can a nationality perpetuate itself and augment its power by scattering itself over the world To me, in such a conception, we have a strange idea of strategy. I am against emigration. Only the more daring, enterprising and capable persons are apt to emigrate. To encourage an efflux of its best blood is, to my mind, an extraordinary way of building up a nation ambitious to play a splendid role in history. I wonder if we sometimes do not flatter ourselves in fancying that alien peoples long to quit their own shores for ours."

One enjoyed the twinkle in Viscount Kato's eyes.

The Manhood Test in Immigration.

"It rather would seem," I ventured to remark, "that, if Japan fought a foreign war to get a place for her people outside of Japan, she might be forced to fight a civil war to compel them to go and occupy it."

"There are many things more improbable," replied the Prime Minister.

"What broad principle, in your view, should lie at the base of an immigration policy?"

"Immigration policies, I think, should take account, not of religion or nationality or race or color or geographical distribution, but of intrinsic human merit—qualities of manhood and womanhood, soundness of mind and body, and disposition toward institutions of law, order, and civil liberty. Japan admits the right, even recognizes the duty, of every state to regulate immigration within its borders. What we do not regard as right, and what we deem ill adapted to promote that interracial and international good will which permanent peace builders so highly esteem, is the principle of discrimination among races. To this principle we object. But we are not going to make war about it. We merely are going to argue about it. War will not set the world right; sincere, courteous, well-grounded, illuminating argument may."

Japan Doesn't Want the Philippines

"So you are not going to seize the Philippines or Hawaii?"

Viscount Kato's face took on a look of hearty amusement.

"Ethics and prudence apart," said he, "we want neither archipelago, nor anything else that is America's."

"You have noted the proclamation of certain politicians in Washington that the world is to have a

The Question of Asiatic Alliances.

"There is in America, I think, considerable interest in Japan's relations with Russia, and in speculations respecting what is termed an 'Asian bloc,' possibly inimical to the best relations between Japan and the United States."

"'Asian bloc,'" said Viscount Kato, speaking with more than usual deliberation, "is a phrase with no actual or imaginable correlative in fact. It is a disembodied phrase. It is one of those phrases which float about the intellectual world as tenuous mists float about the physical world. 'Bloc' in the sense suggested, implies some kind of affinity, of homogeneity, of structural likeness, as a binding substance among the component parts. Commercial Relations With America.

"Our point of view is illustrated by the position of England, which looks east and west. English intercourse, political, social and economic, with the continent of Europe—her friendship with the European nations—does not detach her from the Atlantic nor lessen her desire for Atlantic friendships. Japan has inevitable relations with her neighbors of the Asiatic mainland. She is on good terms with China as a result of mutual consideration. Urgent territorial, economic and social exigencies required a resumption of diplomatic relations with soviet Russia, though Japan has no sympathy with sovietism as a political and social system and will permit no communist propaganda in this country. I cannot state too strongly that our conciliatory and constructive policy toward the Orient entails no reverse policy toward the Occident.

Do you think we are likely, in sport or malice, to begin hurling shrapnel or high explosive shells at that market? We need American capital and are getting it. Could we afford to lose the confidence of American wealth? On the other hand, who can spend a day in Japan without appreciating Japan's commercial value to the United States. American materials and manufactures form the foundation of our life. Who but a madman, American or Japanese, would dream of thrusting a sword through this interlacement?"

Co-operation by the Nations.

"You do not believe in international blocs?"

"I believe in a single human sodality."

"In the League of Nations?"

"In the master idea of the League of Nations—that of an inquiring, reasoning, justice-seeking world, inflexibly bent upon settling its questions and directing its affairs by moral means and not by violence. True, the league takes cognizance of matters beyond the range of Japanese interest and knowledge. Our people, for example, do not know what or where Riga is. "All Japanese are nationalists, and intense nationalists, as is the wont of island peoples."

"You do not believe in a superstate?"

"No. But I believe in independent states working together honestly and generously for the common weal. Such work, of course, necessitates clear and candid statements of national points of view, and no statement of this kind should be taken as offensive or as implying a recourse in any circumstances to force. In other words, every state should be allowed to put forward its case as fully and powerfully as possible, without incurring suspicion of a hidden purpose to pass from unsuccessful arguments to war. International candor is indispensable to international understanding and a frictionless internationalism."

Culture and Sound Leadership.

"What is your opinion of classical culture as an aid to the concord of peoples?"

"Assuming 'classical culture' to signify a high development of the human mind and soul, I suppose one could not exaggerate its worth to civilization. Intelligence and sympathy are qualities of inestimable moment. Our world is shrinking rapidly through mechanical audacity and skill. Diverse systems and customs and temperaments are meeting at close quarters. Superficial differences tend to create confusion of thought, irritation, suspicion, alarm. Penetration is needful. Fellow feeling, compassion, humanism, are needful. But 'the classics,' in Japan, does not necessarily mean Latin and Greek. Our written language, you know, is not by alphabet, but by ideograph. Of these characters we have some 10,000, so that our students generally have little time to spend upon the Greek and Roman languages and literatures. However, our educational ideals are high and our faith in humanistic culture second to none."

"You favor aristocratic leadership?"

"If you mean leadership by the best—yes. And the whole of society can and ought to inspire and strive to be of the best. Upon the real aristocracy, the intellectual and moral noblesse, of a community, one need not say, rest especial obligations of leadership and public duty."

Growth of Democracy in Japan.

"Is Japan becoming more democratic?"

"Undoubtedly. Possibly our people are disposed to go ahead too rapidly. There is little conservatism in Japan—no such repugnance to change as is found in England. If a thing seems good to the Japanese, they say, 'Let us adopt it at once.' They are prone to be too quick to reject the old and take the new. We now have universal suffrage and shall see how it works. If there are dangers, I have no great fears. Predisposed to advance swiftly, our people are not destructionists. They are loyal to the throne, proud of their traditions, and passionately devoted to the vision of a useful and honorable place for their empire in the family of free and peaceful nations.

"Freedom, I think, we understand. We understand it is not anarchy or license. We understand, on the contrary, that anarchy and license annihilate freedom. This realization is imbedded in the Japanese consciousness. Therefore, I am not alarmed by the strongly progressive nature of our citizens. I am not alarmed by their new enthusiasm for individual liberty and responsibility. I am not afraid of universal suffrage. I am persuaded our liberties will deepen our loyalty and invigorate our patriotism. For, after all, how can a man be truly loyal, truly patriotic, unless he be free?"

"Do you discover, now and again, misinterpretations of Japanese character?"

Viscount Kato chuckled.

"I read in books some interesting observations on Japanese life," said he. "I read in English and in American books that Japanese babies never cry. Those of us who have Japanese babies know better. I read in books that the Japanese people are always cheerful. In reality, of course, they are like their babies in that when they have something to be glad about they are glad, and when they have something to be sad about they are sad. We have pleasant and unpleasant people, strong-minded and feeble-minded people, wise men and fools, saints and rogues. In external pigmentation we are more or less different from other sections of humanity, but in internal pigmentation we seem to be about the same."

"You believe mankind to be spiritually of one kin?"

"I do."

Preserving Japanese Civilization.

"Do you believe in interracial marriage?"

"I do not."

"And your reason?"

"Because I think the overwhelming weight of advantage and happiness lies on the side of racial integrity. Biological consequences do not seem to me to be the main consideration. It is not chiefly a question of physiology or animality. It is a sociological and psychological question. It is a question of emotion and mentality, of where and how one lives, of countless associative subtleties. It is a human question."

"You would preserve Japanese civilization by preserving the Japanese?"

"Yes. We feel our civilization, so preserved, has its own distinct value for, and its own distinct place in, the life of the world. Japan never will use her power as a weapon of selfish aggression—the most stupid act a nation can commit—but for the preservation of her Japanese heritage she will make any sacrifice. To the perfection of this heritage our sister nations have contributed much. These contributions we gladly acknowledge. Our one desire is to go forward in equal honor with those nations, each placing its special gifts at the service of all."

Mirroring a Statesman's Mind.

Our conversation, to me, of absorbing interest, was at an end. It had been uninterrupted and had lasted two hours. Viscount Kato accompanied me into the large hallway adjoining the drawing room and stood smiling and bowing, in the charming Japanese way, until I was gone. I felt I had been in the presence of a man whose words were a faithful mirror of his mind. I could understand why Lord Grey took pleasure in his company and had every confidence in his character, and why Viscount Kato's ambassadorial work in England, where he laid the foundations of Anglo-Japanese friendship, ranks high in the diplomatic annals of Japan.

How long he will occupy the great position of Prime Minister of the Japanese empire I dare not predict. But I do venture the prophecy that so long as he remains Prime Minister his acts will not belie the foregoing exposition of his views.

Bill to Meet Abuses In Bankruptcy Cases

referred to. Describing the wiles of the collusive bankrupt and his lawyers, Remington said:

"In such cases the debtor is not 'forced' at all. He goes into the court willingly. It is part of the plan in such cases. The bankrupt had proper confidence in the skill of his counsel and knows that an 'involuntary' bankruptcy petition is not necessarily what its name implies—a hostile proceeding in behalf of indignant creditors—but is the gentle camouflage adopted by his own counsel to get a friendly administration.

"Thereupon the lawyers for these friendly 'hostile petitioning creditors' become attorneys for the receiver, who naturally cannot at the beginning of things distinguish them from genuine petitioning creditors' attorneys; and eventually these same lawyers—if creditors do not bestir themselves—will become attorneys for the trustee. Straightway, like the wolves in sheep's clothing that this class of bankruptcy attorneys are, they will start in to use their positions in subtle ways to frustrate bona fide efforts of outside creditors to investigate and expose the evils which quite commonly are being covered up by these 'involuntary' bankruptcies.

"Everybody knows all this who really knows bankruptcy practice as it exists in fact. It is an open secret. The public does not understand this actual situation. And discredit is reflected on upright bankruptcy lawyers who have just right to be indignant."

One naturally wonders, on reading a statement like that, why the Federal Judges do not take the initiative in breaking up the rings. Remington anticipates the question with the following explanation:

"To often, to speak frankly, these ringsters among the practitioners in bankruptcy seem to find apparent favor or indulgence with some of the referees and courts, who evidently do not fully apprehend their real character, nor the real harm they are doing to right bankruptcy practice in the eyes of the public. These ringsters are as well acquainted with the machinery of bankruptcy practice as are the genuine bankruptcy practitioners. They are careful never to give offense to the courts, nor, what is also of some importance, to the courts' clerks. Their operations are well-oiled and make little noise. As long as they are left alone, nothing occurs to destroy the calm serenity of the bankruptcy court, and bankruptcy 'business' is smoothly dispatched. They excel in rapidity of movement.

"Referees and Judges are human, and they are very busy, especially in the metropolitan districts. The attorney who disturbs the customary procedure is, I fear, too often mentally put down as a 'trouble-maker'; he does delay the 'dispatch of business' and he undoubtedly does hold up the even tenor of smooth bankruptcy administration—apparently for the mere purpose, as insisted by the ever-ready ringster, of 'foolish' investigation. The easier way is the more agreeable way with the best of mankind. So the way of the investigator gets to be really a hard way where his opponent is a member of the bankruptcy ring and is in charge of the estate.

"In cases where the ringster is in control, the outside lawyer is working at a disadvantage. Too frequently he is inexperienced. He has the will, but does not know the way, while the ringster on the inside knows the way."

Remington did not completely free the judiciary from responsibility for the abuses he described.

"It does seem really," he said, "that in some way or other referees and Judges ought to be able, if they could find the time to set about it, to find ways to discourage ringsters and to encourage those who are battling for the cause of right bankruptcy administration."

One reason why Congress has not amended the bankruptcy act of 1898 is the failure of the reform advocates to agree on a bill. A contentious point is whether or not conditions would be improved by setting up a system of official receivers, on the order of that used in Great Britain. Under this plan, which has been embodied in a bill introduced in Congress by Senator Wadsworth and Representative Fairchild of New York, there would be an official, salaried bankruptcy receiver for every 500,000 population in cities of 500,000 or more. These receivers would be appointed for terms of five years by a Board of United States District Judges and would be removable at the will of the board. They would be required to devote their whole time to official bankruptcy work.

The official receiver system has been urged upon Congress by the Merchants' Association of New York, after a prolonged study of the bankruptcy situation by a committee of lawyers and business men, and has been indorsed, subject to certain modifications, by the association of the bar of the City of New York, which found, in an investigation by a committee of its members, "a widespread and cynical belief that a large proportion of bankruptcy proceedings are tainted at some point with dishonesty."

At the hearing where Remington told of the methods of the bankruptcy rings, representatives of the two New York organizations argued that the official receiver system would make for an honest, efficient and economical administration of insolvent estates and would save Federal Court Judges the embarrassment of being continually solicited for receivership appointments. A spokesman of the Merchants' Association said the system was working in England with the greatest satisfaction.

The National Association of Credit Men opposes the official receiver system on the ground that it would substitute another, and perhaps greater, abuse for the one sought to be remedied.

"We don't want new Federal positions created," said Shealey, for this organization. "There are enough of those already. I have been told that Referee Thomas was a sort of standing receiver of the court. If that is so, it seems to me that the English investigation furnishes a strong argument against official receivers."

LLOYD GEORGE SEES ENGLAND DRAGGED AGAIN INTO WAR

tries. What are they going to do for us in return? Is the security of Britain to be guaranteed? Or that of her Empire? It may be implied but it has not been thought worth while to make any specific reference, in the document, to this side of the question.

There is a danger that the quixotic disposition of this country may be taken too much for granted. That is to say, it is taken for granted now, when we are required to pledge our resources in advance, but it would be mistrusted if we suggested that it should be left to us to decide, at a future date, whether the cause demanded the support of Britain's armed strength. After all, the event which finally determined the issue of the Great War was the entry of America into the struggle—a quixotic decision not influenced by any treaties or guarantees or obligations.

And what of America now? There is, in the note, a touching reference to the United States of America, which "it goes without saying," France would be "only too happy to see participate in this work of general peace and security."

I wonder what America will think of this invitation extended to her! She who considered the League of Nations to be too great a responsibility, how will she regard this proposal for a League of armed nations?

ROOSEVELTS GET RARE BIRDS

By the Associated Press.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., June 27.—Fourteen specimens of rare birds of the mountainous country above Srinagar Kashmir have been obtained by Col. Theodore Roosevelt Jr. and Kermit Roosevelt, leaders of the Field Museum expedition into Central Asia, the Colonel has written to his wife here.

The party left Srinagar May 18 at which time a cholera epidemic was raging there, the Colonel said. They were making their way north toward the Leh Pass, the gateway to the Kara Koroum Range, traveling at an altitude of 8000 feet. All of the party were in good health and had been able to bathe in the glacial waters of the River Sind.

Alone But Not Lonesome

Just One Jump Ahead of Progress!

That would be an appropriate appellation for American monarchs of commerce.

Nothing even approaching their ingenuity in worth-while achievements has the world ever known.

Anticipating the wants of the public seems to be an inherent trait in them.

They originate ideas; study the public; create conditions that benefit the public; watch the public pulse as a doctor watches a patient; inspire confidence by their honorable methods of business conduct.

That's alertness! It merits confidence.

SAYS RAILROAD DUPED UNION TELEGRAPHERS

E. J. Manion, President of Order, Criticises Two-Cent Increase on Pennsylvania.

Discussing the two-cent hourly wage increase granted to telegraphers on the Pennsylvania system last week, E. J. Manion, president of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers, yesterday charged that the committee representing the telegraphers had been "duped."

"It is exactly what members of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers expected," Manion said. "The regularly constituted committee of the Order was arbitrarily removed from office by the Pennsylvania company because they refused to accept such a penurious dole. Although 75 per cent of the 6000 operators on the system are members of the Order, the committee through which the settlement was negotiated was made up of men who are not members of our organization. The result is decidedly unfair in that the majority of those affected, the members of the order, had no voice in the transaction."

Manion declared that the question of vacations and relief days with pay had been "junked," and that the railroad now proposed to give the telegraphers a recreation day once a week without pay. Manion also charged that numerous positions were abolished immediately after the granting of the increase, bringing the actual additional expense as the result of it, to one quarter cent an hour for each man.

Prior to the granting of the increase the pay of telegraphers on the Pennsylvania system was 60 cents an hour, Manion said, as compared to 65 to 69 cents an hour on other railroads. The headquarters of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers is in St. Louis.

WHEELER HEARS OF NEW ATTEMPT TO INDICT HIM

Montana Senator Says Witnesses Before Brookhart Committee Are Summoned to Spokane.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Senator Wheeler of Montana declared today he had been informed by friends that another effort was being made to indict him or some of the witnesses who testified in his behalf before a Senate committee and in his recent trial in Montana.

"Reports have come to me," he said, "that the Department of Justice is subpenaing witnesses before a grand jury June 29 at Spokane, Wash. These witnesses, I am informed, are the same witnesses who were subpenaed in the case against me in Washington and Great Falls.

"The Department of Justice today is carrying out the same policies that were pursued by it under Daughterty (the former Attorney-General). When witnesses were called to testify before the Brookhart committee they were hounded and intimidated and some of them indicted immediately after giving their testimony. Today the same Department of Justice, either directly or indirectly, is harassing the witnesses who testified in my behalf, holding out to them that they are not after them but after me."

Senator Wheeler said that before his Montana indictment "liquor and women" had been used through agencies employed by the Republican National Committee to obtain affidavits against him.

"I am becoming so accustomed to being indicted by the Department of Justice," he added, "that my only hope is that in the future they will indict me in the North in the summer time and California or Florida in the winter."

GOVERNMENT OFFERS TO SELL MUSCLE SHOALS CURRENT

Henry Ford and Pennsylvania Railroad on List of Users Invited to Buy Power.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—The War Department announced today that Major-General Taylor, Chief of Engineers, had written "to everyone who has shown an interest in Muscle Shoals power" asking if they would be interested in the purchase of power.

The query applied to power developed at the plant during the testing period of the main generator units beginning in August and to continue for several months. Replies were requested by June 30 and the conditions under which power would go sold were outlined in the communication.

The firms and individuals invited to consider purchase of this power were: Henry Ford, the Union Carbide Co., New York; the Pennsylvania Railroad System, the Memphis Power and Light Co., the Southern Power Co., the Georgia Railway and Power Co., the Electric Bond and Share Co., New York City; the American Cyanide Co., New York City; the Tennessee Electric Power Co., Chattanooga; the Arkansas Light and Power Co., Pine Bluff, Ark., and the Alabama Power Co.

The companies invited to consider the question were informed that a high-tension line connected the hydro-electric plant with the steam plant, but that purchasers of power would have to supply certain apparatus before the power could be used.

The department's announcement said that in addition to the firms communicated with, Gen. Taylor would "be glad to hear from anyone else who might be interested."

The POST-DISPATCH is the only St. Louis evening newspaper giving Associated Press news service.

Catholic Priest and Educator Dies.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, June 27.—Father Henry Churchill Semple, well known Catholic clergyman and educator, died at Loyola University here today after a heart attack. He was born in Montgomery, Ala., in 1853 and had taught in Catholic colleges in Mobile, Ala., Macon, Ga., and Washington, D. C., and has written extensively. Father Semple, who was a Jesuit, was a personal friend and confessor to the late Cardinal Farley. For the last six years, he had been at Loyola devoting his time to writing. Interment will be at Mobile.

W. H. Stayton a Visitor Here.

William H. Stayton of Baltimore, head of the National Association against the Prohibition Amendment, was at the Hotel Jefferson yesterday on his way to a conference today in Kansas City of secretaries of the organization in Southwestern states. He said he wished to congratulate St. Louis for breaking the "League of Nations," referring to the recent conviction of Heber Nations in the Griesedieck brewery case.

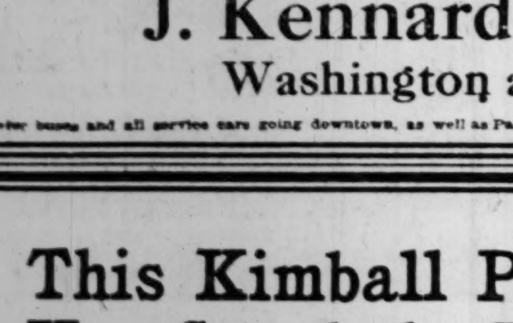
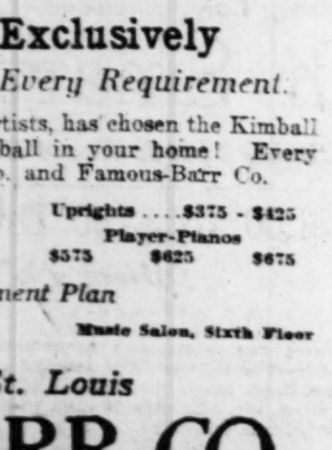
This Kimball Piano of 1868 Has Stood the Test of Time!

After Fifty-Seven Years of Service, Its Tone Is Still Sweet and Mellow—Its Action Still Perfect.



This vivid example of Kimball quality is now on display in one of our Seventh Street windows. It is a quaint old square piano, its walnut case darkened with age—and it has been subjected to constant hard use! Like all Kimballs, it has come through unmarred in beauty of tone and ease of action.

This new Kimball Grand Piano was given by Famous-Barr Co. to J. W. M. Eslaman of Staunton, Ill., in exchange for the Kimball of 1868—which was located in the course of our recent "Music Week" campaign to discover the oldest Kimball within 100 miles of St. Louis.



The Kimball Piano Co. writes:

"Our decision gives this interesting distinction and the award of the Grand Piano to J. W. M. Eslaman of Staunton, Ill. His old Kimball Square Piano preceded the Upright in the manufacturing evolution of the Piano."

Mr. Eslaman, former owner, writes:

"The new Piano will be used for teaching as was the old square Grand up to the day we shipped it to you. The new Piano is a remarkable instrument and a most excellent piece of furniture."

Kimball Pianos Sold Here Exclusively

In Styles and Models to Meet Practically Every Requirement.

The Municipal Theater Association, like hundreds of artists, has chosen the Kimball as most suitable for its exacting needs. Use the Kimball in your home! Every instrument is doubly guaranteed—by the Kimball Co. and Famous-Barr Co.

BICYCLE RACES IN ST. LOUIS IN FALL

Events Will Take Place in Forest Park With Entries in Two Classes.

St. Louis is to have the first big bicycle meet since the national championships were run here in 1898 when more than 70 riders from many states will assemble here Sept. 5 and 6 for the National Amateur Bicycle road racing championships in Forest Park.

The St. Louis Cycling Club, which is sponsoring the meet, has been obliged to guarantee $1000 of the expenses, which total about $7000. The club has 100 members who pay $6 a year dues and does not feel able to carry this burden unassisted by the public. Accordingly it has issued an appeal for contributions. These may be sent to the club headquarters at 3431 School street.

Plans for the event were announced yesterday by C. L. Barr, O. F. Hassemer, F. W. Hunicke and Harry S. Sharpe, the local committee on arrangements. The visiting cyclists will be quartered at the Buckingham Hotel and the races will be run on a course near Jefferson Memorial in the park.

The events on the program will occupy Saturday afternoon and Sunday morning. The St. Louis Cycling Club is working in conjunction with the Amateur Bicycle League of America and the Cycle Trades of America, Inc., in staging this year's races.

Two Classes of Riders.

Any amateur bicycle riders in the city who are in good standing with the National Bicycle League are eligible to enter the contests. These events will be grouped into junior and senior classes, all riders under 16 being considered juniors and all over 16 seniors. There will be four races in each division. The junior races will include a quarter-mile sprint, a third-mile sprint, a two-mile endurance race and a one-mile race unpaced against time. The senior events will be a third-mile sprint, a one-mile sprint, a 10-mile endurance race, and a five-mile unpaced race against time.

The riders who will compete are those taking places in the trial races held in various cities as elimination events.

The national finals in Forest Park will determine the ranking of amateur riders for the year. Three medals will be awarded in each class. The winner in the senior race will receive a gold medal studded with diamonds, the second man will be given a silver medal, and the third a bronze medal. The same award will go to winner, second and third men in the junior races.

Large Crowds Expected.

The St. Louis Cycling Club has sent four of its riders to the Olympic games. Waldon C. Martin and Carl Schutte represented the club at Stockholm in 1912. James B. Freeman was at Antwerp in 1920. Last year, Boulicault rode in the races at Paris.

The races when held in other cities attracted large crowds and the St. Louis club expects several thousand to attend the Forest Park classic.

7-CENT FARE FROM ST. LOUIS TO BRENTWOOD DENIED

Public Service Commission Also Orders U. R. to Erect Station in Richmond Heights.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 27.—The United Railways Co., of St. Louis was directed to erect a station building at the terminus of the Market street line in Richmond Heights, in an order issued today by the State Public Service Commission.

In the same order the commission denied the request of St. Louis County residents for a single 7-cent street car fare between Fourth and Market streets in St. Louis, and the station at Brentwood, St. Louis County. Two fares now are charged for the trip.

The order for the passenger station at Richmond Heights provided that it must be ready for use by Nov. 1, and the company was directed to keep a caretaker at the station.

BANKERS' CONVICTION QUASHED

Four Canadians Still to Be Tried for Conspiracy.

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, Ont., June 27.—The Appellate division of the Ontario Supreme Court today quashed the convictions of five officials of the Home Bank of Canada, which failed in 1923 for $18,000,000. W. P. Gough, Toronto, vice president, C. A. Barnard, Montreal, S. Casey Wood, Toronto, J. F. M. Stewart, Toronto and C. F. Smith, Montreal, directors, were those whose convictions were quashed.

The convictions were based on three counts, making false statements to the Government on the bank's condition, unlawfully using such statements and negligently concurring in false returns. The four officials still are to be tried on conspiracy charges brought by the crown.

Post-Dispatch Cartoons Displayed.

A group of cartoons, representative of the work of D. R. Fitzpatrick, cartoonist of the Post-Dispatch, is on display in the art room of the Central Public Library, where it is attracting unusual interest. The collection is representative of Fitzpatrick's "day's work," and includes his pictorial reflections on the Tennessee evolution law, on the police dragnet in St. Louis, on prohibition and blue laws, and on other public problems of current interest.

SPANISH STYLE DUPLEX STARTED IN DAVIS PLACE

A new duplex residence, designed by W. P. Manske, architect, was started in Davis place last week. It is of Spanish style of architecture and adapted to this section. The design of the home is such that the appearance is that of a single residence although it is built to house two families. There are six rooms for each family, with the interior arrangement in the same Spanish design. On the first floor there are a large living room, dining room, kitchen and a number of built-in fixtures for each family. On the second floor each family has two bedrooms and bath, a guest room so planned that it may be used as a maid's room or a sitting room. Two features of the design are a carved timber balcony leading off of the main bedroom and a group of French doors leading from the dining room to an open terrace.

In accordance with the restrictions, each family will be divided by a sound-proof wall, will have separate drives, heating plant and entrances. All duplexes in Davis place will be built to resemble single homes and no two designs can be alike.

The usual Sunday afternoon and evening concert will be given at the "Mansion" in Davis place today. The "Mansion" is the large home on the Davis estate which has been transformed into an exhibition of modern furnishings and decorations. The exhibit is in charge of the interior decorating studios of Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney. The Davis Realty Co., which is developing Davis place, announces that the Friday evening musicales at the "Mansion" will continue through the summer.

LACLEDE HOTED TO BE REOPENED IN SEPTEMBER

Sale of the 99-year lease on the Laclede Hotel property at the southeast corner of Sixth and Chestnut streets to a syndicate headed by Stanley Epstein, was a feature of the week.

This property, which fronts 135 feet on Chestnut street and 110 feet on Sixth, has a six-story building, the first floor of which is occupied by stores and the remainder of the building has been occupied for about 50 years by the Laclede Hotel.

The building will be completely renovated and the hotel will be redecorated and newly furnished throughout and will reopen in September. The proprietors of this hotel will be the same syndicate that owns the 99-year lease, and they have engaged the services of C. C. Swinney, formerly of the Majestic Hotel, as manager.

The leasehold, which is owned by Ellen Griswold, is based on a valuation of $560,000, and the subleases aggregate an annual rental of $23,000, exclusive of the hotel rental.

RESALES AT RUSSELL PARK IN WEEK, MORE THAN $30,000

Russell place, which has long been an impassable roadway isolating Tower Grove Heights from sections on Gravois avenue, has just been completed with a new concrete surface which connects Gravois with Arsenal street. It runs through the center of Russell Park, which has developed and today has more than $2,000,000 in new buildings completed in less than one year.

Russell Park is a development of the Security Guarantor Realty Co., which has sold practically all of it in less than one year, and also completes $250,000 worth of underground improvements and streets. It is the policy of the Security Guarantor Realty Co. to install only eight-inch reinforced concrete streets in its developments. Last week's resales in Russell Park amounted to $30,000 and building sales aggregated approximately $90,000.

SOUTHWEST PARK SUBDIVISION POPULAR WITH HOME SEEKERS

The convenience to all points of St. Louis of Southwest Park, the new Southwest St. Louis subdivision of the A. R. Schollmeyer Development Co., is making it the most popular of all developments in the history of the Schollmeyer company, R. A. Newsham, sales manager, says.

Southwest Park fronts on Watson road on the west, with Marquette on the north and Pernod on the south. Hampton boulevard, the proposed 80-foot road, will border the property on the east.

The interest of home seekers in Southwest Park has been so great that the Schollmeyer company has installed a telephone on the ground and on request will call for all persons interested in seeing the grounds and return them to their homes, or will meet visitors with automobiles at the Tower Grove car line on Watson boulevard.

MISSOURIAN WINS $250 SOUTH CAROLINA POETRY PRIZE

Writer of Narrative Poem a Former Employe of St. Louis Public Library.

Keene Wallis of Kansas City, a former employe of the St. Louis Public Library, has received the 1925 Blindman prize of $250 in the annual contest of the Poetry Society of South Carolina, for his narrative poem, "Coal-Black Jesus." The poem describes a weird religious rite performed by a gang of negro convicts being taken by train from Cape Girardeau to Jefferson City.

The Blindman prize, the largest in the world for a single poem, is given by W. Van R. Whitall of Pelham, N. Y., for the best poem submitted pseudonymously to a judge selected by the Poetry Society of South Carolina. The judge of this year's contest was Hervey Allen, who won the initial award in 1919 with his poem, "The Blindman," from whose title the contest takes its name.

Honorable mention in the 1925 contest is given to F. R. McCreary, Boston; Clement Wood, Hastings, N. Y.; Elizabeth Malcolm Durham, Columbia, S. C.; C. Buchan, Oxford, England; Chard Powers Smith, New York City, and Witter Bynner, Santa Fe, N. M.

Wallis is engaged in literary translation and research work in New York and Washington.

AN old-fashioned county fair, like those of the days before automobiles, when the farmer donned his duster and loaded his family into a hay wagon for the trip to the "grounds," was successfully revived Friday night by Mr. and Mrs. Garneau Weld at their home on the Litzinger road. The affair was given in honor of Miss Louise Bemis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Judson Bemis, and William Harrison Luyties, whose marriage will be an event of Oct. 3.

The ground immediately surrounding the house was transformed into an appropriate setting by booths, the first a refreshment stand, which grew more popular as the "fair" progressed, and another a beauty parlor where men might be "renovated." Each of the 125 guests was in costume, and reubens danced with sun-bonnetted dairy maids and farm hands played games with "children" while Carl Koehler and Wooster Lambert, in full constable regalia with brass stars, added to the fun by trying to preserve order.

Donaldson Lambert took an imitation roulette wheel and his own prizes, and, assisted by Frank O. Watts Jr., and David Calhoun, maintained a booth for the entertainment of the crowd, which was amused when ludicrous prizes were drawn. A live pig was won by Mr. Weld. Later some played ball, with Miss Mary Denman Clark as pitcher and Marion Niedringhaus in a blue jumper batting with a shovel, while others indulged in leap frog.

The hosts were typical farmer children. The hostess wore a short red and white play dress with her curls tied with a huge bow, while her husband wore overalls and blue shirt. St. Louisans Traveling in Europe

Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, June 15.—Paris is having its gayest social season since before the war. The two weeks before the Grande Semaine were so filled with events of varied social interest that visitors to the French capital were bewildered to know how to make a choice. And, now that "the" week of the year is here, they can only drift with the tide. That means, of course, a ride, drive or promenade in the Bois, along the Champs Elysee or in the Tuileries during the morning, the races during the afternoon and to one of the many restaurants that are labeled "chic" for a dinner-dance.

Among the St. Louisans in Paris at present are Mr. and Mrs. A. Shapleigh Boyd of 4624 Pershing avenue, who are guests at the Hotel Grand. They were recent visitors to Rheims.

Mrs. Cora Baker Chonteau of the Buckingham Hotel has been spending some time on the French Riviera, this spring and has arrived in Paris from Nice.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wiegand of Hotel Chase are guests at the Continental Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Beverley Scott of California and Mrs. and Mrs. Thomas Murphy of St. Louis, who recently completed a Mediterranean trip on the Rotterdam, are spending a month at the Hotel Ville d'Este, Cernobbio, Lake of Como, Italy, after which they will make a motor tour through Switzerland and Austria.

Miss Augusta Cook, daughter of Mrs. Isaac Cook of Lindell boulevard, who is traveling in Italy, recently spent several days in Florence en route to Venice. She will return to Paris later.

Miss Adele Hayes and Mrs. George Tansey of North Newstead avenue, have been at the Hotel Bellevue in Dresden for the magnificant view from the terrace along the banks of the River Elbe.

Mrs. James G. Cahill and her daughter, Miss Lenore, are at the Hotel de Crillon in Paris, and recently attended a gala dinner dance at the Hotel Ritz.

Mrs. Pierre Chouteau Scott, and her daughter, Miss Chouteau Scott, who have been traveling through Europe, have arrived at Hotel des Saints-Peres.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Taussig were recent visitors to the British Empire Exposition at Wembley and have just returned to Paris.

American Women Are Presented at British Court

Introductions to King and Queen Are Made by Wife of Ambassador Houghton —Miss Annie Laurie Warmack of St. Louis Attends Royal Function.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1924, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, June 27.—A company of America's daughters made their courtesies to the King and Queen this week at the last two courts of the season in Buckingham Palace.

Mrs. Alanson B. Houghton, wife of the American Ambassador, made the presentations, of which there were nine in the general and four in the diplomatic circle at the first court Thursday night, and eight at the last court Friday.

Thursday she wore a gown of white, cloudy fabric, enhanced with gold and silver passementerie, and her court train was lined with shimmering gold lace.

At the final court Mrs. Houghton wore pale gray, relieved with lace and embroidered in diamante and silver. Her court train on the second occasion was of blue velours, lined with drap d'argent. She wore the same jewels as on Thursday, but carried a blue ostrich fan.

Most Gowns Were of White or Silver.

More than a third of the American women presented were from New York and the metropolitan district. Most of the gowns worn were of white or silver, or of white and silver fabrics.

Mrs. Sheldon Whitehouse, wife of the counselor at the American Embassy at Paris, had a straight gown of silver lace, with a court train trimmed with silver.

Mrs. Edward P. Crocker of New York, wife of the third secretary of the American Embassy at Rome, chose a gown of pink chiffon with golden figures.

An American woman of the diplomatic circle, presented Friday, was Mrs. Donald McDonald, wife of the military attache at Brussels. Mrs. McDonald, who is a Pennsylvanian, was dressed in silk poplin, embroidered in pastel shades and sparkling with rhinestones.

Mrs. Charles B. Moore, wife of the assistant military attache at Paris, had a gossamer gown of silver, over pale pink chiffon, embroidered with pearls. Her court train was of drap d'argent, lined with pale pink chiffon. At the first court Miss Jean Elizabeth Baldwin of New Jersey, Miss Violet Burd Grubb, daughter of the late Gen. E. Burd Grubb of Burlington, N. J.; Mrs. Cass Gilbert of New York and Ridgefield, Conn.; Miss Florence Pratt, daughter of Herbert Lee Pratt of New York; Miss Rosalie Evans, daughter of Hartman K. Evans of New York, represented their respective towns and States.

match. Miss Eleanor Simmons wore a romper suit of pink and checks and Mrs. Pelham Turner was in baby blue frock and sunbonnet. Mrs. Mahlon B. aWllace Jr. was in blue and white, with vari-colored beads about her neck, a red sash, and an incongruous looking straw hat with pink streamers, perched on top of her head.

Red seemed to be the prevailing color, for Miss Janet Wallace's frock was of that shade and she carried a doll dressed to match, and Mrs. Lansden McCandless was in red and white polka dot. Mrs. Donaldson Lambert was an old-fashioned picture in a gown that might have belonged to her grandmother, with her blond hair piled high and green earrings hanging from her ears. Miss Katherine Louise Crunden and Miss Rebecca Chase went as small girls, as did Miss Mary Francis Dickson and Miss Lucy Terry. Mrs. Charles Mullikin, formerly Miss Elizabeth Mauran, always the life of a party, was funny in a pink dress and a small flower-covered hat. Mrs. Charles Bascom wore a white sailor suit and cap and Mrs. Harold Kauffman might have been a nurse in her white frock and veil.

Tom Reyburn was resplendent in Mrs. Hayward Niedringhaus' green brocade evening gown. Eugene Williams wore old clothes with a red tie and skirt, a patent leather hat and a huge boutonniere. John Johns, in what was obviously his father's Prince Albert and black hat, might have been the town undertaker. In addition there were farmers' wives in flounced dresses, their husbands in dusters and beards.

Kenneth Drummond, Dick Shipley, Samuel C. Davis, Charles Moore, George O'Neil and Winston Johns were among the guests.

Miss Baldwin, daughter of Oscar H. Baldwin of New Jersey, wore a gown of peach satin, veiled with white chiffon cut on apron lines and inset with diamond motifs of silk lace. Her court train was of peach satin veiled with white chiffon, fashioned in butterfly design.

Georgette Gown, Pearl-Embroidered.

Miss Grubb selected a straight white georgette gown, embroidered in pearls and rhinestones over a shell pink slip. The court train was of silver brocade. She carried a pale pink ostrich fan.

Also in white was Miss Rosalie Evans, who made her debut in a filmy chiffon gown embroidered with pearls.

Mrs. Gilbert was dressed in platinum and silver brocade, woven with a moire design and embroidered with diamante, shading from white to pearl gray. Miss Pratt wore a net gown with a design in pearls over a cloth of silver.

Mrs. Snell wore silver broche lace, combined with silver lace.

Mrs. H. A. Murray, who belongs in New York, although she is making her home at Cambridge for the present, wore white brocade with floral embroidery and silver traceries. Her court train was an old blue chiffon tipped with silver. She carried a white ostrich feather fan.

St. Louisan Wore Gown of Silver Lace.

Miss Helen Sheldon, daughter of Lewis Sheldon of London and New Haven, Conn., made her curtsey in a straight gown with a petaled hem of white georgette embroidered with silver beads.

Miss Annie Laurie Warmack, daughter of Mrs. Robert N. Warmack of St. Louis, made a winsome picture in a straight gown of silver lace cloth, flaring out below the knees and adorned low on the left hip with a posy of white velvet chrysanthemums with silver tassels. Her court train was also of silver lace, and she wore pearls and carried a large pale green ostrich fan.

Miss Louise Boyd of San Francisco, daughter of the late John F. Boyd, appeared at the second court of the week gowned in silver tissue with a blue velvet train embroidered with rhinestones and edged with chinchilla. It was lined with blue tissue. Her only ornament was of rhinestones and pearls. Miss Boyd carried a white coque feather fan and also wore diamond earrings, belonging to her mother, and diamond bracelets.

Mrs. William W. Grant of Denver appeared in white satin, embroidered with diamante and gold, and her court train was ivory-colored chiffon velvet, showing diamante and embroideries. She wore pearl earrings.

Mrs. Geroge de Benville Kaim of Philadelphia chose silver lace for her court gown, cut with a low waistline and showing a filmy fall of white tulle below. Her train was old family rose point lace, lined with silver. A large crimson flower lent a vivid touch. She carried a fan to match the flower and wore pearl and diamond ornaments.

Wife of Virginia Senator Presented.

Mrs. Claude A. Swanson of Chatham, Va., appeared in gold lace over white satin, and her court train of similar satin was embroidered with gold and lined with gold tissue. A cascade of filmy lace down one side of the gown gave a soft effect. Mrs. Swanson, who is the wife of United States Senator Swanson, also wore diamond ornaments and carried an ostrich fan.

Mrs. B. Frank Mebane of Spray, N. C., wore oyster white satin, embroidered with diamante and mother of pearl. It was cut with a long V at the back and rounded in front and was fashioned in long, slim lines flaring out in graceful godets, embroidered with diamante and mother of pearl. It was worn over a fourreau of cloth of silver, edged with filmy black lace and veiled with dusky black tulle.

Mrs. Mebane's court train was of cloth of silver cut in line with the V in her gown, the V embroidered, like the hem, to match the gown. When she removed her coat to go into the throne room she revealed diamond and onyx jewelry.

Mrs. Horace Lee Washington, wife of the American Consul-General at London, wore pale green brocade fashioned on straight lines and split in front to reveal a fourreau of silver lace.

Mrs. Elliot Wadsworth of Boston and Washington appeared in peach colored satin with soft wide panels of real lace and a pointe de Venice lace train lined with peach net. She also carried a fan and wore pearls.

Miss Elaine Willcox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. McAllister Willcox of Denver, was gowned in soft white satin and tulle with the skirt elaborately embroidered in pearls and rhinestones.

Mrs. George A. Clipner of 5929 McPherson avenue has as her guest, Miss Betty Hillebert of Los Angeles, Cal., formerly of St. Louis. The visitor will remain several weeks and will be much entertained informally.

Mrs. W. H. Ray of Chicago and her daughter are the guests of Mrs. Ray's brother, Charles M. Pendleton, in Kirkwood.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Ruebling of 2906 Eads avenue entertained Mr. and Mrs. Mayer Louis Kanstein of California last week.

Mrs. Yale I. Glubok and son, Norman, of Racine, Wis., and Mrs. Sidney Lawrence of Chicago, are visiting the parents of the young women, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Astor, of 4616 Vernon avenue.

Science Finds Reducer For Over-Fat People

By Dr. Lewis Baker, M. D.

Scientific minds have delved into the secrets of the ductless glands of the human body and some are so bold as to declaim that with the further study of this subject man or woman can be thin or fat, ugly or beautiful, dull or brilliant, old or youthful, etc. One outstanding fact is that obesity (over-fatness) can often be controlled when we know that one of the important glands of the body is causing the abnormal fleshiness. Impaired secretions of the thyroid gland does cause many to become quickly fat. By supplying this element, aiding the process of nature as it were, many pounds of superfluous fat can be banished.

I confidently recommend five grain Arbolone tablets as a home remedy (non-secret as to ingredients) to those men and women who wish to reduce successfully.

I print by permission some of the letters I regularly receive from those who rejoice when free from the embarrassing, annoying condition.

If directions are followed there are no harmful results from the use of Arbolone. The formula on the package may be submitted to your own physician.

Mrs. Frank H. Hamilton of St. Louis has joined her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Herzog, at the Curtis Hotel, Lenox. Mrs. Hamilton and Mrs. Herzog are among the prominent members of this Berkshire colony who return year after year to enjoy the delights of the hills.

Mr. and Mrs. Theron Catlin and daughter, Miss Frances, of St. Louis, will spend the summer, as usual, at their home in Dublin, N. H.

MANY ST. LOUISANS AT EASTERN RESORTS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, June 27.—With the President of the United States, three foreign embassies, those of Great Britain, Italy and Germany, a Justice of the Supreme Court, to say nothing of many lesser personages known throughout the country, spending the summer in Massachusettts, the North Shore promises to be quite in the limelight this season.

Harvard men who returned for their twenty-fifth reunion last week made the most of their opportunities and carried through a most satisfactory program. One of the enjoyable events was the evening spent at the Harvard Club in Boston, at which Mr. John H. Holliday of St. Louis presided as toastmaster. Among others present was Edward Mallinckrodt Jr. of St. Louis.

Mrs. Samuel Gordon of St. Louis, who in previous years has occupied the Shute cottage at Annisquam, has leased the Putnam cottage for the summer. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon and daughter, Miss Virginia, will arrive shortly for the season and later will be joined by another daughter, Mrs. James Dawson.

At Artists' Colony.

Mrs. Kathryn E. Cherry of St. Louis, has again taken the "Boathouse Studio" at Rocky Neck, East Gloucester. This is in the midst of the large artist colony which, during the past few years has brought fame to this section of Cape Ann. The annual exhibitions of the artists is one of the events of the summer season which attract large numbers of visitors to Gloucester.

Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Frerichs and daughter, Miss Hildegarde Frerichs, of St. Louis, who came to Boston some time ago, were at the Oceanside, Magnolia, for the opening day. They will remain a few weeks for the early season.

Newcomers to the North Shore this year will include Mrs. John Barrymore, wife of the actor. Mrs. Barrymore has many friends among the shore people but intends to devote her time almost entirely to studying dramatic art at the American theater.

At Wianno, Cape Cod.

The summer colony at Wianno, Cape Cod, is to be the home of Mrs. Charles Adams How and daughter, Miss Margaret How, of St. Louis, during July and August. Also of the Wianno contingent are Dr. and Mrs. H. Chouteau Dyer and family of St. Louis, who for many years have spent long seasons at their delightful estate "Chateau Chouteau."

At Hyannisport on Vineyard Sound, Mrs. Alvan B. Gordon and family are established at one of the cottages on the bluff.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. DeCamp of St. Louis have opened their cottage in the Long Beach section of Hyannis, Cape Cod.

Racing at Bar Harbor promises to flourish this summer, as great interest is already manifested, not only in the larger craft, but in the new design 17-footers, introduced last year and known as the M. D. I. (Mount Desert Island) class. Among those who have boats entered in this class are Mr. Joseph Pulitzer, Mr. Edsel Ford and Mr. John D. Rockefeller Jr.

Fords at Seal Harbor.

Mr. and Mrs. Edsel Ford paid a flying visit to Bar Harbor this month to inspect the work on the magnificent estate they are developing at Seal Harbor. They will return later for a long season on the Maine coast.

No More Fat; Wash It Away With La-Mar Reducing Soap

New Discovery Brings Quick and Amazing Results and Shrinks the Skin, Keeping It Free From Telltale Wrinkles

What will reduce me and make me thin? Science answers this question with La-Mar Reducing Soap, a new discovery that reduces any part of the body without affecting other parts. Nothing internal to take. No dieting or exercises. You simply wash your fat away without changing your regular routine. It acts like magic in reducing double chin, abdomen, ungainly ankles fat wrists, arms, shoulders, large breasts or superfluous flesh on any part of the body. Fat is a needless burden, over-taxing the heart, causing high blood pressure and hardening of the arteries. And who ever saw a double chin that was beautiful or excessive fat that was becoming? Fat is fatal alike to beauty and to health. La-Mar Reducing Soap washes it away and shrinks the skin, leaving it free from flabbiness and telltale wrinkles. Sold on a money-back guarantee by Judge & Dolph Drug Stores, Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Enderle Drug Co. and all good drug and department stores, or direct to you by prepaid parcel post if your dealer cannot supply you. Price 50c a cake, or three cakes for $1.00; one to three cakes usually accomplish its purpose. You'll be surprised at results.

MRS. CARL EUGENE BARNBECK, was until last week Miss Mildred Melsheimer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Melsheimer.

RECENT ST. LOUIS WEDDINGS AND ENGAGEMENTS

Miss Frances Compton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Compton of Kingsbury place, has chosen Oct. 17 as the date of her wedding to Turner Clarkson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Clarkson of 2 Windermere place. There will be a large church ceremony followed by a reception at the Compton home. Another October wedding interesting to society is that of Miss Jane Hamilton Whiteside and Edward Morton Banister, which has been scheduled for Oct. 24. The Second Presbyterian Church will be the scene of the ceremony, which will be followed by a reception. Miss Whiteside will go to New York late in August to purchase her trousseau. The Bemis-Luyties ceremony Oct. 3 will be held at St. Michael and All Angels Church. There will be eight bridesmaids and the event promises to be one of the most elaborate of the fall. Mr. Luyties will take his bride to Europe on their wedding trip.

The marriage of Miss Ida Lysaght and William Lee Massey took place Wednesday morning at the Church of the Holy Redeemer, the Rev. Father Kane officiating. Miss Eloise Jones was maid of honor, and Douglas Murphy, cousin of the bride, was best man. A breakfast followed at the home of Mrs. Maurice T. Murphy, on East Lockwood avenue, Webster Groves, with whom the bride resided. Mr. Massey is building a home in Sherwood Forest, which will be ready for occupancy in the fall when they return from their honeymoon trip. Mrs. Massey is a graduate of the Sacred Heart Convent and served as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball three years ago.

An attractive wedding of tomorrow will be that of Miss Grace Kinealy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Kinealy of Ferguson, and John L. Pierson Jr. The ceremony will be performed at 4 o'clock at the Kinealy home by the Rev. Harmon C. St. Claire, rector of St. Stephen's Church, in the presence of the two families. Just prior to the entrance of the bridal party the "Lohengrin" wedding march will be sung by William H. Bryan, soprano soloist at Christ Church Cathedral. Walter E. Bryan will play the wedding march. Miss Sarah Brisco Kinealy will be her hister's maid of honor, and Mrs. H. Grady Jackson of Biltmore, N. C., formerly Miss Virginia Kinealy, matron of honor. Ralph Pierson will be his brother's best man, and J. Henry Kinealy and John Paul Wentworth will be groomsmen. There will be a reception at 4 o'clock to which 300 guests have been invited, and afterward refreshments will be served in the garden. Among the prewedding parties for the bride was a luncheon bridge at the Midland Valley Country Club, at which Mrs. Frank Souther Codding of Aberdeen place was hostess; a luncheon at the Bellerive Country Club, given by Mrs. Garfield Taussig; a bridge, by Mrs. Ray Johnson, and a luncheon at Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Dorothy Mae Loomis of Cleveland, O., and George Willis Kingsley. The wedding will take place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orson B. Loomis, 1838 East 101st street, Cleveland, formerly of Webster Groves. The bride is a member of Pi Beta Phi.

The marriage of Miss Grace M. Long of 5528 Pershing avenue and Elmer H. Schroeder of Wauwatosa, Wis., took place Wednesday afternoon. The couple are traveling in the North on their wedding trip and will make their home in Milwaukee.

A wedding of July 4 will be that of Miss Stephanie Adelaide Gorman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John I. Gorman of 1234 Hamilton avenue, and Edward Emmett Hennessey, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Hennessey of 4941 St. Louis avenue, at St. Rose's Church at 9 o'clock mass, the Rev. J. J. McGlynn officiating. Miss Delphine Le Clere of Tell City, Ind., will be maid of honor and Miss Agnes Martin, bridesmaid. They will be gowned in embroidered net and filet lace over canary and tea rose, respectively, and will carry arm bouquets to match.

The bride will wear flesh-tinted white bridal satin made on straight lines draped with Dutchess lace caught with a pearl ornament and a rose point lace which was worn on her great-grandmother's wedding gown. A court train of the same bridal satin embellished with pearls will depend from the shoulders over which will fall the bridal veil, fashioned from a coronet of pearls into a fan at the back of the head and caught with orange blossoms. She will carry a white onyx and silver rosary blessed by Pope Pius IX which had been given to her grandmother as a wedding gift. Her flowers will be orchids and lilies of the valley.

Paul Hennessey will be his brother's best man and the groomsman will be Tim Ryan. Dorothy Stephens will be the flower girl and Joseph Barton Hennessey, ring bearer. Following the ceremony there will be a wedding breakfast at the Forest Park Hotel after which the couple will depart on a motor tour.

Mr. and Mrs. David Seidel of 6837 Kingsbury boulevard, have announced the marriage of their daughter, Miss Sadie Seidel, to David Rickensohl.

The marriage of Miss Marie Eisele, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Eisele of 2806 Salena street, and Joseph J. Woens, son of Mrs. Wones of 2921 Magnolia avenue, took place Saturday morning, June 20, at St. Francis de Sales Church, the Rev. A. A. Ripper officiating. Miss Vera Bumb was maid of honor, and Misses Katherine Wones sister of the bridegroom, and Eva Eisele, sister of the bride, were bridesmaids. Margaret Egler, cousin of the bride and Charlotte Wones, niece of the bridegroom, were flower girls. Mr. Wones had Frank Roth as best man and Ed Borgwald as groomsman. The bride wore white crepe trimmed with flowers of the material and a bridal veil caught in a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried roses and lilies of the valley. A reception and dinner followed at Swiss Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Budde of 1010 Aberdeen place, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Vera Budde and Russell Haddes, which took place Wednesday noon at the First Congregational church, the Rev. W. C. Timmons officiating. A breakfast followed at Hotel Chase. After a honeymoon in Canada Mr. Haddes will take his bride to Pittsburg to reside.

The wedding of Miss Ethel Boonshaft, daughter of Mr. Jacob Boonshaft of 6617 Pershing avenue, and Max Schader, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Schader of Philadelphia, took place Sunday night, Rabbi Halpern officiating. The bridesmaids, Misses Evelyn Bly, Fritzie Bruckstein, Ruth Boon-

Effect of Comfort Brassiere

Note The Difference

The illustrations show convincingly that the Comfort Brassiere is far superior to the Brassieres now being worn.

THE COMFORT BRASSIERE is adaptable to every woman, whether of slender, medium, or full figure. It is designed and fitted to give beautiful unbroken lines and affords an ideal gown foundation, is adjustable to fit perfectly, and will not ride-up over the corset.

Gives the Figure a Trim Straight Line Appearance
Supports, Flattens and Reduces the Bust
Prevents Bulging of the Diaphragm
Gives the Proper Abdominal Support
Adds Carriage to the Figure
Makes You Appear 10 to 20 Pounds Lighter

The Comfort Corset Brassiere outlasts a dozen ordinary brassieres and will retain its shaping after long wear and repeated washing.

FARR'S GRAY HAIR RESTORER

Don't be afraid of living. Enjoy all the wonderful modern advantages!

While famous laboratories have been perfecting radio, the great manufacturing chemists have been busy producing a formula for restoring gray hair that should be as superior to old-fashioned hair dyes as the perfected cold white electric light is to the old-fashioned smoky lamp.

The Brookline Chemical Co. guarantees their product as a simple, absolutely harmless means of bringing back gray or faded hair to its original natural color, leaving it glossy, soft and lustrous.

Price, $1.10

Easy to use, because perfectly clear, not sticky and will not rub off or stain the scalp. No trouble at all to use; a few minutes in your room is enough. Every bottle sold with the positive guarantee that it cannot cause the slightest harm or annoyance to hair or scalp. Once the hair has returned to its original color it is easily kept so, and can be washed or curled without affecting the color.

The Missouri Athletic Association will entertain its members and their guests with a moonlight boat excursion on Thursday evening, July 2d on the Steamer "J. S."

Misses Janice and Marcia Bierman, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Bierman of Charlotte, N. C., are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Henschen, 3847 Ashland avenue and Mrs. W. C. Baird, aunts and uncle of the visitors. They will also be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Maack of Maplewood.

Miss Myrtle M. Wenner, 2412 Baldwin avenue, Overland, Mo., gave a Rainbow Party, Friday evening in honor of Miss Ida Stocklas of Pasadena, Cal., a guest of Miss May Willis Tainter, 6141 McPherson avenue. One of the unique features of the evening was the game "Following the Rainbow Trail" at the end of which Miss Stocklas found a "Pot of Gold" containing a miscellaneous shower, a gift from each o fthe 25 guests.

Setback for Pennsylvania Bonus.
By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, June 27.—The State Supreme Court today decided that a proposed constitutional amendment, permitting a $35,000,000 bond issue for soldiers' bonus, cannot be submitted to the people this year. The court held that, as amendments were submitted in 1923, no further proposed changes can be voted on until 1928.

RECENT ST. LOUIS ENGAGEMENTS AND WEDDINGS

shaft and Fannie Kranzberg, wore georgette frocks in coral, green, orchid and maize, respectively, large hats to match, and carried tea roses. Mrs. Maurice Senturia in white satin and lace was the matron of honor. The bride wore a white beaded Canton crepe gown and tulle veil arranged under a pearl studded bandeau. She carried roses and lilies of the valley. The groomsmen were Ed Boonshaft, Ted Boonshaft, Herman Harris, Ben Sterneck and Maurice Senturia. Evelyn Boonshaft, Dorothy and Sylvia Reiter and Buell Richter were flower girls and Marvin Boonshaft, ring bearer. The couple will make their home in Philadelphia.

Cards have been received announcing the engagement of Miss Agnes Mae Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Thompson of 4014 Labadie avenue, and Earl J. Brutsche, son of Joseph Brutsche, of Battle Creek, Mich. The wedding will take place here early in August.

Announcements have been received of the marriage of Miss Cora Belle Ruppenthal of 4942 West Pine boulevard, and Albert Lester O'Neil of the Melbourne Hotel, June 24. The couple will be at home after July 15 at 4942 West Pine boulevard.

The marriage of Miss Margaret C. Meyers and Dr. Carl J. Wenige Tuesday, June 16, has been announced. They will make their home at 5574 Waterman avenue.

Miss Adele A. Schmidt of 3924 St. Louis avenue, niece of Mrs. John B. Hendricks, will become the bride, July 7, of Clayton G. Cary of Blackstone avenue. The ceremony will take place in the parish house of St. Matthew's Church.

Mr and Mrs. Max Forbstein of 4228 Grace avenue announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Janet Ruth, and Dave Lieberman, Tuesday, June 23. The couple are spending their honeymoon in Michigan and Canada.

Miss Edna Ehrlich, daughter of Mrs. L. W. Ehrlich, became the bride of T. C. Wetterau, June 24. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride with the immediate relatives present. The couple are passing their honeymoon on a tour of the northeastern states and Canada. The bride wore a sleeveless gown of white chiffon, hand embroidered, and studded with silver rhinestones. Her long trailing veil had a coronet of orange blossoms. After their return they will reside at 8658 Dover place.

The engagement of Miss Ruth de Mask, daughter of Mrs. Lillian Pauley de Mask, of 939 Maple place, and Gerald Hart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hart, was announced yesterday at a bridge luncheon given at the Coronado Hotel. The wedding will take place next winter. The bride-to-be is a teacher at the Patrick Henry School.

The wedding of Miss Stella Haemmerle, daughter of Mrs. Mary Haemmerle of Goodfellow avenue and Edward A. Willoughby took place Wednesday morning, June 24, at 10 o'clock in St. Barbara's Church, the Rev. J. L. Paffhausen, uncle of the bride, officiating. The bride was attended by Miss Loretta Haemmerle, a sister, as maid of honor; Miss Ruth Collins as bridesmaid, and Mary Kelly, a cousin, flower girl. Clarence Haemmerle was best man for Mr. Willoughby and J. T. Fleming and Dr. A. B. Harrington were ushers.

Miss Haemmerle was gowned in white satin, trimmed in Duchess lace and orange blossoms. Her flowers were a shower of roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Haemmerle wore peach-colored georgette over pink satin; Miss Collins, orchid georgette over old rose satin, and Mary Kelly in green georgette over pink satin. All carried butterfly roses. The couple will spend their honeymoon in the East and make their home in St. Louis, after Sept. 1.

FOUR-STORY PUEBLO IN NEW MEXICO HAD 800 ROOMS

Structure Covering Three Acres Could Have Housed Between 1200 and 1500 Persons.

By the Associated Press.

TUCSON, Ariz., June 27.—The Pueblo Bonita, in Northwestern New Mexico, is described by Dr. Neil Morton Judd, curator of Southwestern archeology for the National Museum in Washington, as the largest prehistoric apartment house on the North American continent. The Bonita had 800 rooms and space enough to house between 1200 and 1500 persons.

Excavations of the pueblo may lead to the discovery of a prehistoric race hitherto unknown, Dr. Judd believes. Traces in the form of pottery, relics, skeletons and hieroglyphic inscriptions are expected to lead to archeological revelations of the first magnitude.

The Bonita contains evidence of the life and pursuits of the race which, scientists believe, inhabited it thousands of years ago. It covers an area of a little more than three acres. Four stories of the pueblo are standing, and Dr. Judd thinks there may have been a fifth.

Further research into the cave dwellers of Southern New Mexico has established the possibility that the Carlsbad cavern, one of the largest crystal formation caves in the world, once was the meeting place for cavemen of the vicinity. Hieroglyphics, not unlike Chinese characters, were found on the smooth surfaces of the bluffs and in the caves.

FROGS FREED FROM CEMENT

Biologist Says Creatures May Live Imprisoned Many Years.

By the Associated Press.

OKANOGAN, Wash., June 27.—Several green frogs, imprisoned in cemented gravel, were set free when a road crew made a cut in a country road near here. They were found firmly imbedded three feet below the surface of the old highway. The frogs showed considerable animation on being released, giving no signs of the inconvenience caused by several years' imprisonment.

Trevor Kincaid, professor of biology in the University of Washington, declared the existence of frogs imprisoned in cement over a period of years quite possible, though he said no scientific data had been gathered on the point.

Hindenburg Sharpshooters' King.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 27.—President Von Hindenburg recently added the title of "King" to the one he holds as chief executive of the German republic. His monarchy, however, is only one of sharpshooters. At the annual sharpshooting festival at Leer, Prussia, the retiring president of the sharpshooters, as customary, fired three shots in honor of the head of the nation. One of these hit the center of the target in what is called the "King's Disc." According to tradition, this means that upon the nation's head is conferred the title of "Schuetzenkoenig" or "King of Sharpshooters." President Von Hindenburg has accepted the honor. The last time the bull's-eye was hit was in 1903, when Emperor William thereby became the sharpshooters' "king."

DELEGATES OF NINE NATIONS TO ATTEND PACIFIC CONFERENCE

Meeting Will Open in Honolulu, Hawaii, on July 1 and Continue to July 15.

By the Associated Press.

HONOLULU, June 27.—More than 100 delegates are expected at the Institute of Pacific Relations which will be held in Honolulu July 1 to 15. Drawn from nine countries bordering on the Pacific and traveling many thousands of miles to reach Hawaii, the members and guests will include persons prominent in the educational, professional and business life of their respective nations.

Definite plans have been made for housing delegates on the grounds of Punahou School in Honolulu. The institute gatherings will be held in a building on the Punahou campus.

Conferences on vital international affairs will be conducted with the frankness necessary for members to get one another's point of view, those in charge of the preparations here asserted.

The American delegation will include: Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of Leland Stanford Jr. University; Charles C. Batchelder, former U. S. commercial attache in India, former secretary of commerce of the Philippines and expert on United States commercial relations; George H. Blakeslee, professor of history and international relations at Clark University and leader of round table on Pacific problems at the Williamstown Institute of Politics, and William Allen White, Emporia, Kan.

JAZZ AIDS ARTISTIC MUSIC

Enriches Sound and Rhythm, Says German Opera Manager.

BERLIN, June 27.—"Old King Jazz" unquestionably enriches and stimulates modern artistic music, both in the realms of sound and rhythm, in the opinion of Max von Schillings, general manager of Berlin's State Opera and composer of "Mona Lisa," which has been given at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York.

"What fascinates a European musician in learning American jazz music in its present form is its conciseness and precision of form," Herr von Schillings observes. "This music is without long preparatory themes or long extended conclusions. The sound complexes created by jazz undoubtedly point the way to new orchestral possibilities. Rhythmic forms, too, have been enriched by it."

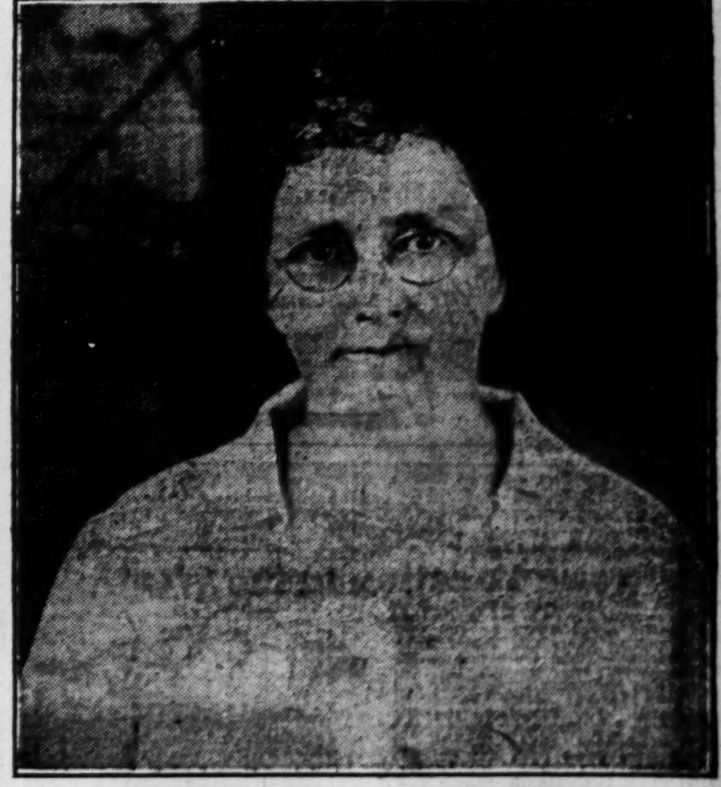
WELL KNOWN ST. LOUIS WOMAN SPENT A FORTUNE

Before She Found the Medicine That Relieved Her of Constipation, Gastritis and Catarrh of the Stomach.

"Give me another bottle of that wonderful medicine," said Mrs. S. S. Hawken who resides at 3517 Hebert Street, Saint Louis, Mo., when she called to see the Herb Juice man very recently.



MRS. S. J. HAWKEN

"I think Herb Juice is the greatest medicine of all time," continued Mrs. Hawken. "It certainly has worked wonders for me. I have suffered a great many years from chronic constipation and a very bad case of catarrh of the stomach. I have spent a neat fortune for treatment of this catarrhal condition, but have never found anything to give me relief from either constipation or the stomach trouble until I found this precious Herb Juice. I had a heavy aching in the pit of my stomach and around my heart after eating, which was caused, I have been told, from gas. I could not eat any solid food of any kind. The fact is I have almost starved myself for the last two or three years. My sleep was very limited as I was extremely nervous and many be the nights I have walked the floor in terror.

"My husband insisted that I try your medicine, Herb Juice, and before I had finished my first bottle I was astonished at the wonderful improvement which it had made in my condition. So I continued to use it, and today I feel better than I have felt in ten years. I had my first real meal that I have eaten in two years yesterday and had no bad after effect from it. My bowels are in excellent condition, and it doesn't seem to me now that I have ever been constipated. Those pains and aches in my stomach, caused from gas, have entirely disappeared. And I feel twenty years younger than I did a month ago. And in spite of the fact that the nights are very hot, I never wake from the time I go to bed until morning. I positively know that Herb Juice is responsible for this wonderful improvement in my condition, and I am sure it has added years to my life. I will never miss a chance to speak a good word for Herb Juice and the miraculous things it has done for me, wherever I go."

Hundreds are now calling daily to see the Herb Juice man who has established headquarters at Judge & Dolph Drug Co., 514 Washington Ave., giving statements for publication and praising Herb Juice that their friends may be induced to try the great remedy which is relieving so many sufferers in Saint Louis. —Advertisement.

Atlantic City

Early Summer's One Resort

IT'S the midsummer appeal of this in-between period when other resorts are more or less in course of preparation—the season-height popularity of beach and boardwalk with the health of cool sea air that makes Atlantic City the One Resort for an Early Summer Outing.

It's the period of all day in the open, of surf bathing, golf or roller chairing, of fishing, sailing, trapshooting, motoring or tennis. Theatres, dances, musicales and ocean pier attractions.

Instant hot water, always ready, costs less than water heated by fits and starts in old-style heaters.

The Premier storage heater saves gas because it heats the water only once. The asbestos-insulated tank holds heat like a great "Thermos" bottle. Its automatic burner lights only when more hot water is needed.

The Keystone (Premier Junior) and Marvel heaters also give wonderful service at lower prices. See them at your plumbing contractor's or come to the Crane Exhibit Rooms.

EVENTS IN NATIONAL CAPITAL OF INTEREST TO MISSOURIANS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—All is socially quiet at the White House nowadays with the President and Mrs. Coolidge at Swampscott, and an army of decorators and painters have moved in to make the restorations to the historic mansion voted by the last Congress. The Presidential party left on Tuesday in great good humor, the President gleeful and talkative over the prospect of a two months vacation. Attorney-General John G. Sargent, who has been holding bachelor quarters at the Executive Mansion, has moved for a time to an apartment on 16th street.

A social bombshell was quietly thrown by the President as he left Washington, when he announced at the newspaper conference with correspondents, that Miss Laura Harlan, daughter of the late Associate Justice of the U. S. Supreme Court, Hon. John Marshall Harlan of Kentucky, who has been Mrs. Coolidge's social secretary would retire after a vacation. As Miss Harlan has been the power behind the White House social throne, speculation is rife as to causes. She is to be succeeded by a State Department employee, while Miss Mary Randolph, daughter of General Randolph, will remain Mrs. Coolidge's personal secretary. The social secretary post at the White House was established during Mrs. Roosevelt's regime, and it was regarded as one of the big plums here, the post being held by notable society women in nearly every instance.

Washington welcomed on the same day as the President left the new Minister of Egypt, Samy Pasha and Madame Samy Pasha. The new envoy has a great deal of oriental splendor about him and is a poet and explorer.

Mrs. N. W. Winter, cousin of Mrs. John L. Hines, wife of Major General Hines, arrived yesterday to spend some time at the Hines home.

One of the enjoyable younger parties was given on Wednesday by Major General and Mrs. Hines, at their quarters at Fort Myer, for their son, Cadet John L. Hines, Jr., in honor of Princess Ida Cantacuzene. A group of the sub-debs and college beaux of the city were invited to meet the Missouri-Russian.

Eager to see their new acquisition, historic Clifton, a former home of John C. Calhoun, bordering on their estate in Georgetown, the American Minister to Sweden and Mrs. Robert Wood Bliss sailed for America last week, and will come directly to Washington upon their arrival. The Minister and Mrs. Bliss will go to California, after spending a few days in Washington, where Mr. Bliss' father, Mr. William H. Bliss, is seriously ill. They will spend several months in America and during that time will visit relatives in St. Louis after their return from California.

The Missouri colony here is greatly interested in the announcement by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph I. Weller, of the engagement of their daughter, Anna Catherine, to Mr. Charles Drennon, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Drennon, of Kansas City. Miss Weller was a popular debutante of last year, and the wedding will take place in the late autumn. Miss Weller left here yesterday for Kansas City, where she will be the guest of Mr. Drennon's parents for some weeks.

Missouri also shared in the sheaf of June weddings that have kept Washington thrilled with wedding bells and bridal parties during the past few weeks. Miss Virginia Minnegerode, whose mother was Miss Susie Turner of St. Louis, a sister of the late Mrs. Charles Heyl and Mrs. William Henry Lee, became the bride of Lieut. Alan Thornton Hunt, U. S. M. C., yesterday. The ceremony took place at the beautiful country home of Mrs. Minnegerode Andrews, cousin of the bride.

The Secretary of State and Mrs. Kellogg left Friday for New York. Thursday night they were the guests of honor at a dinner given by Mrs. John R. Williams, at which the acting Secretary of War, Dwight Davis, was a guest.

Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant, who is spending June in Washington, entertained at dinner Thursday night, taking her guests later to her box at the opera. The guests included Mrs. Henry C. Corbin, Princess Ida Cantacuzene, Miss Marion Whaley, Lieut. John Chamberlain and William Whaley.

It was announced here this week that the marriage of Princess Bertha Cantacuzene to Bruce Smith of Louisville will take place on Oct. 10, at the home of Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant, her grandmother, here. The wedding will be a small one, with only a few friends outside of the two families present. The Princess will go with her mother to Europe for her trousseau on July 11.

Mrs. James Carson Breckenridge has gone to Summit Point, W. Va., to visit her mother, Mrs. A. P. Thomson. Mrs. Breckenridge assisted at the motion picture show given for the benefit of the disabled veterans at Walter Reed Hospital last week.

Mrs. Joseph W. Folk, widow of the late former Governor of Missouri, was in Washington recently, when she was entertained by her host of old friends here.

Every afternoon there is a gallery at the Dumbarton Club tennis court to see the many Government officials who have won tennis honors in Washington. Dwight F. Davis, Acting Secretary of War in the absence of Secretary Weeks, and Charles R. Dewey, assistant Secretary of the Treasury, are considered the stars of the courts. Mr. Davis keeps fit by walking from his office in the War Department to the club, a distance of several miles.

Chapman's Lawyer to Keep $4,560.

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 27.—The contention of Frederick J. Groehl, of New York, counsel for Gerald Chapman, now under sentence of death at the State Prison, that he has a valid claim to money turned over to him by Chapman, has been sustained in a decision by Judge Edwin S. Thomas of the United States District Court, received here today. Chapman, who was convicted of the killing of Policeman James Skelly of New Britain, last fall, gave Groehl $4,560 in the course of securing him a counsel. Postal authorities claimed the money as part of the proceeds of a New York mail robbery.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

Offers Readers of ANY Newspaper—Without Requiring Them to Subscribe or to Assume Any Other Obligation

A $5,000 ACCIDENT INSURANCE POLICY for $1.00

Covering Accidents TO TRAVELERS AND PEDESTRIANS

YOU DO NOT HAVE TO SUBSCRIBE FOR ANY NEWSPAPER TO GET THIS POLICY

Heretofore, Travel Accident Insurance Policies, LESS LIBERAL IN TERMS, have been offered to readers of other St. Louis newspapers, but the policy holder had to subscribe for the newspaper offering the policy, and continue the subscription in order to keep the insurance in force.

This Post-Dispatch offer does not require that you subscribe for any newspaper, so the risk of losing your insurance following a stopped subscription is not present in this offer. Your purchase of the policy for one dollar, accompanied by the application clipped from this advertisement completes the transaction.

This Policy Is Not Sold by Solicitors.

This Policy Pays as Follows:

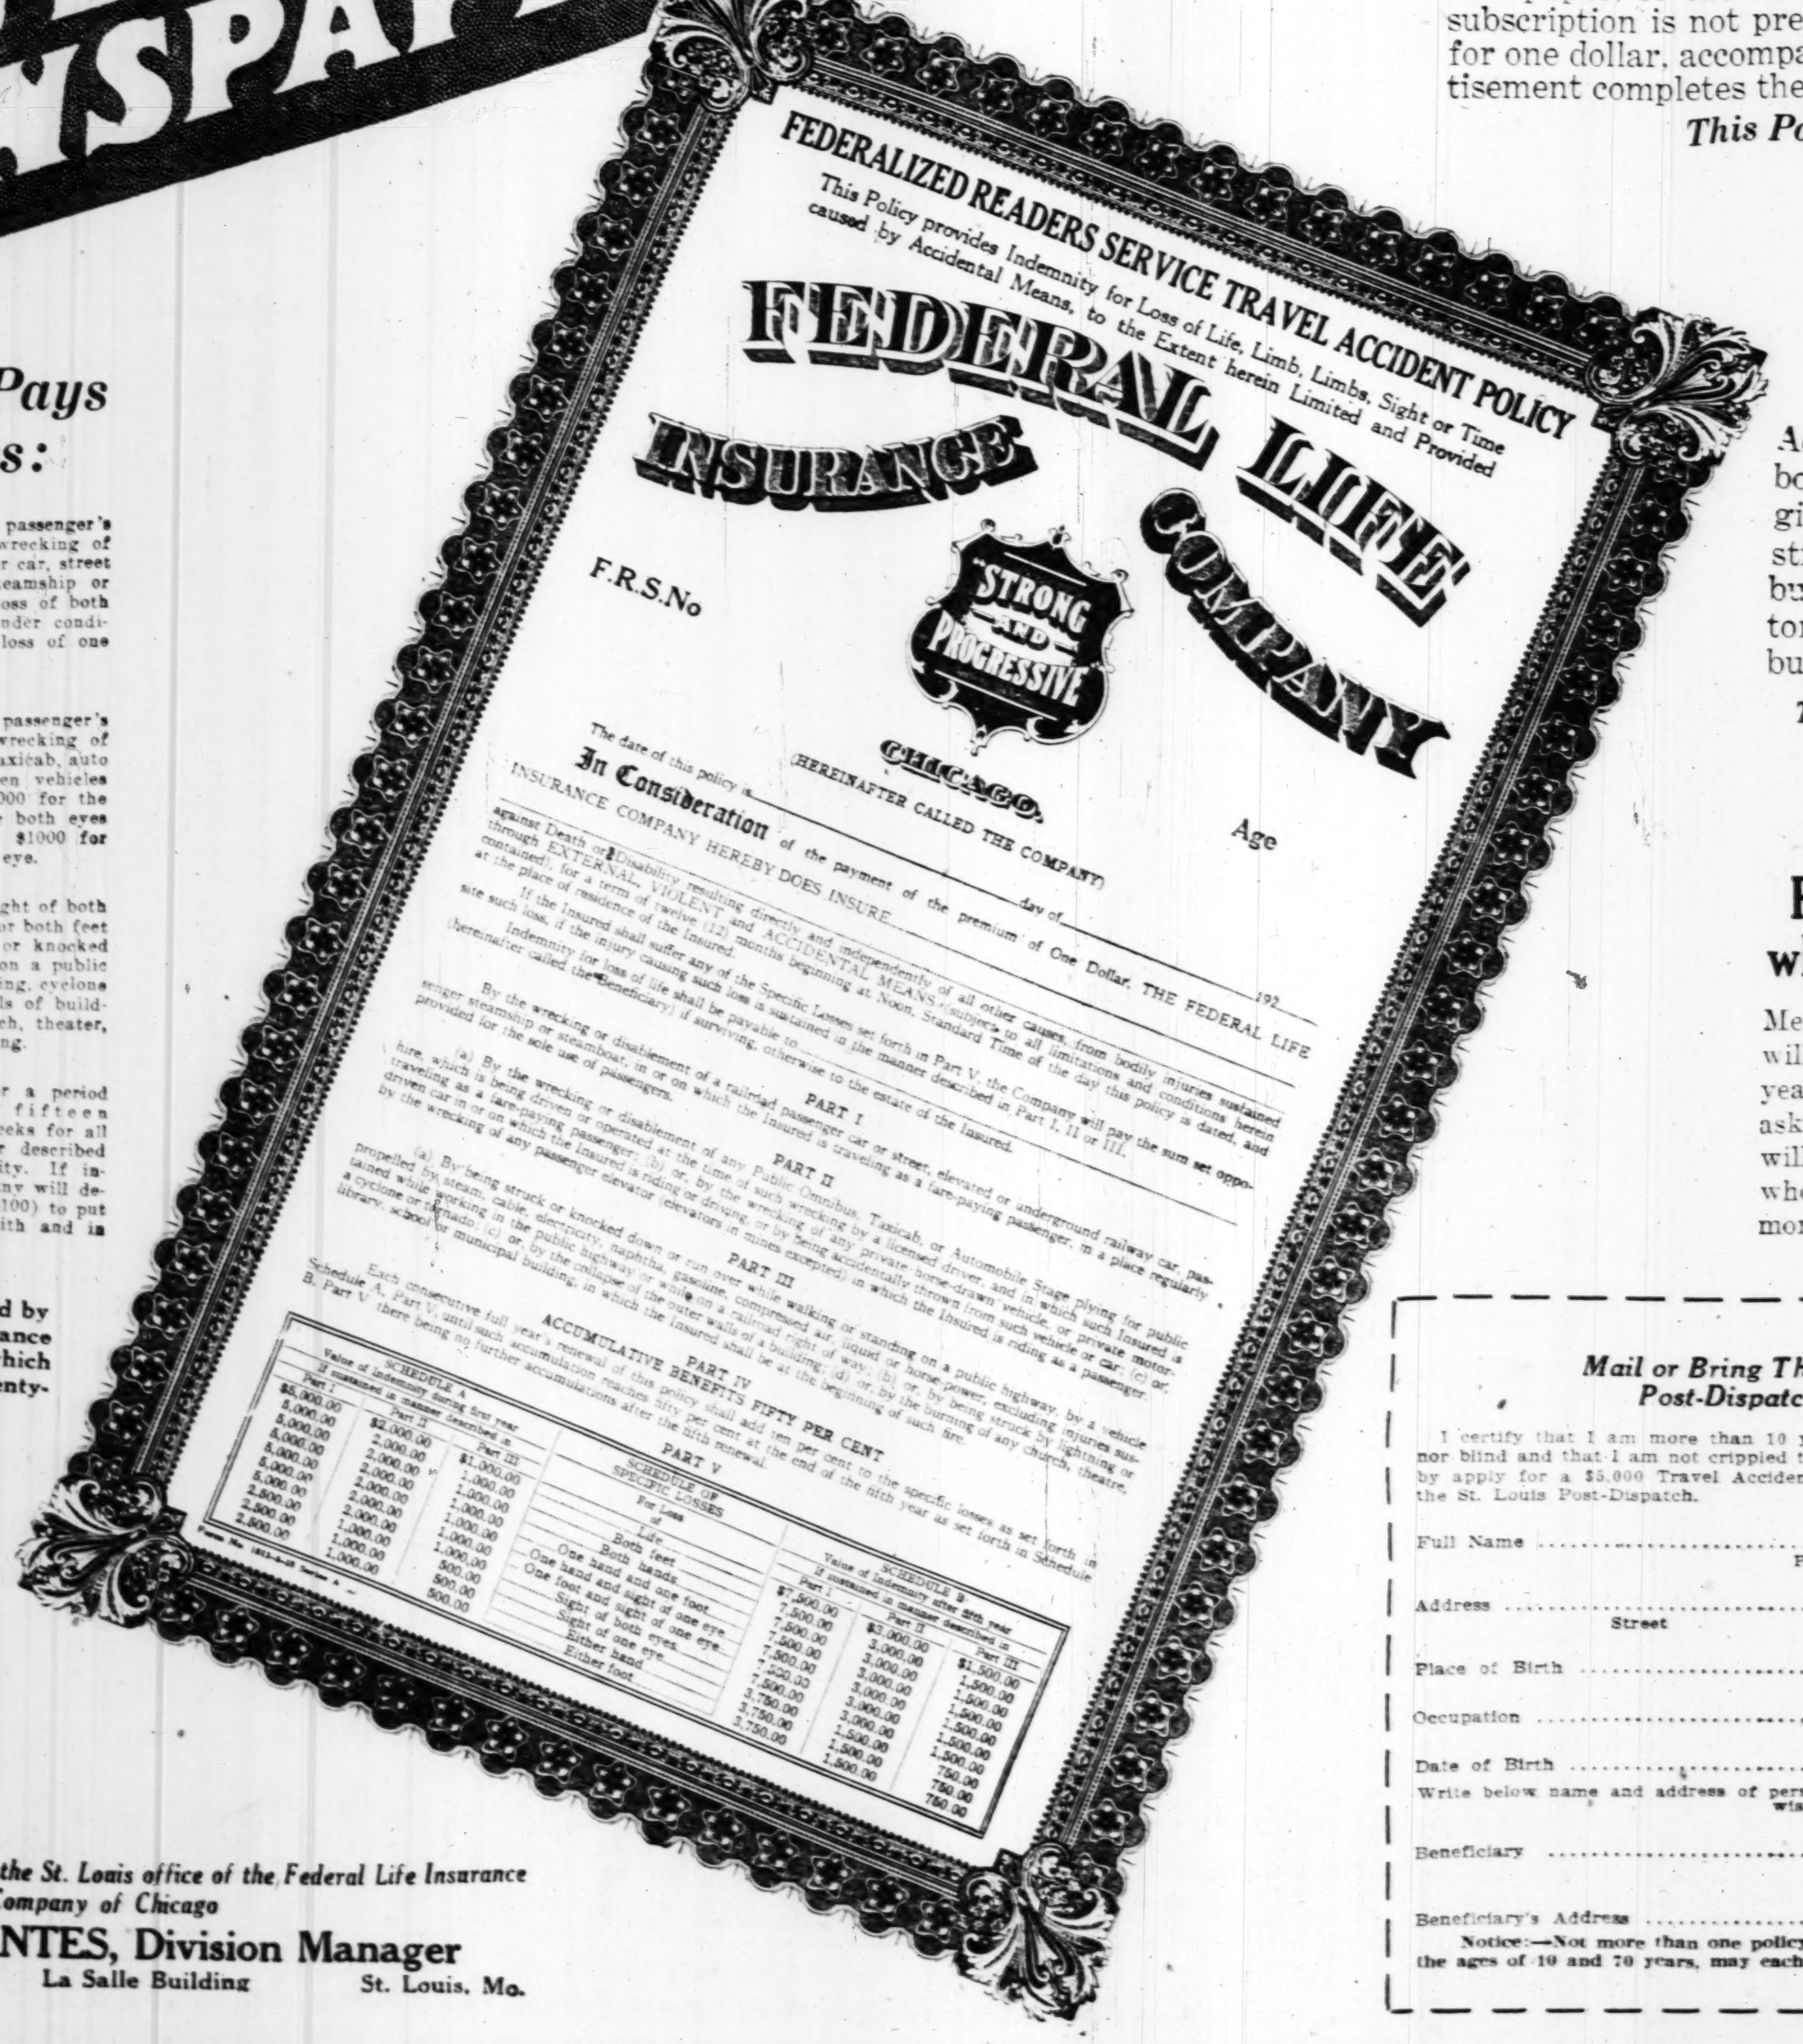
$5000 for fare-paying passenger's loss of life by wrecking of railroad passenger car, street car, elevated or subway car, steamship or steamboat. Pays $5000 for the loss of both hands, both feet or both eyes under conditions just described. $2500 for loss of one hand, one foot or one eye.

$2000 for fare-paying passenger's loss of life by wrecking of public omnibus, taxicab, auto stage, horse-drawn or motor-driven vehicles or passenger elevators. Pays $2000 for the loss of both hands, both feet or both eyes under conditions just described. $1000 for loss of one hand, one foot or one eye.

$1000 for loss of life, sight of both eyes, both hands or both feet by being struck or knocked down while walking or standing on a public highway or being struck by lightning, cyclone or tornado, collapse of outer walls of building, in the burning of any church, theater, library, school or municipal building.

$10 a Week for a period of fifteen weeks for all injuries sustained in the manner described above, resulting in total disability. If insured person is injured the company will defray all expenses (not to exceed $100) to put the insured in communication with and in care of relatives or friends.

These policies will be issued by the Federal Life Insurance Company of Chicago, which has been established twenty-five years, and has assets of more than SEVEN MILLION FIVE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS.



FEDERALIZED READERS SERVICE TRAVEL ACCIDENT POLICY

This Policy provides Indemnity for Loss of Life, Limb, Limbs, Sight or Time caused by Accidental Means, to the Extent herein Limited and Provided

510 AUTO FATALITIES IN 84 CITIES IN MAY

Death Rate Per Million From That Cause Reached New High Point for Year.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 27.—The automobile accident death rate increased considerably during May, according to the reports of 84 cities, representing a total population of more than 30,000,000, to the National Safety Council.

There were 510 persons killed in automobile accidents in May in the 84 cities reporting, the council announced. This number represents more than 14 deaths each day.

The daily automobile death rate per million population reached a new high point for the year during the last month. The death rates by month for 1925 are:

January, .359; February, .435; March, .490; April, .488; May, .510.

Twenty-nine nonfatal personal injury accidents are reported for every accident resulting fatally. This figure is probably low, the council points out, due to the inability of police departments to get reports on all nonfatal accidents.

The most common circumstance attending the occurrence of accident during the month of May, as far as the driver was concerned, was "did not have right of way" and "exceeding speed limit." Female motorists were involved in only one-twelfth as many accidents as male drivers.

Almost twice as many male pedestrians were injured or killed as female pedestrians. The common circumstances resulting injuriously to pedestrians were "crossing, not at intersection," and "walking, running or playing in the street."

The great majority of accidents occurred under ideal driving conditions, in daylight, clear weather and on dry roads. Almost twice as many accidents occurred at intersections as at places other than intersections.

MOVE TO MERGE YELLOW AND GENERAL MOTORS FIRMS

People's Motor Bus Co. of St. Louis One of Properties Involved in $60,000,000 Deal.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 27.—Details for the consolidation of the interests of the Yellow Manufacturing Co. and the General Motors Corporation today were being worked out by officials of the two companies and bankers here and in Detroit in anticipation of an announcement of the merger some time next week. John Hertz, head of the Yellow company, and Edward N. D'Ancona, attorney, were in Detroit and conferred with officials of General Motors while representatives of Goldman, Sachs and Lehmann, New York bankers, were reported in conference with Yellow company officials here.

The basis of the big deal, which would be one of the largest consolidations in the recent history of the automobile industry, is said to be the desire of the General Motors Corporation to enter the motor bus and taxicab manufacturing field. The big corporation now has no bus and cab division while its principal competitors including the Studebaker Corporation already are in the field or about to enter it. The deal if it goes through, it is said, will involve $60,000,000.

On the basis of relative values it is expected that Yellow stockholders will be given one share of stock in the new company for each share of Yellow stock. Arrangements are being made for an appraisal of the Yellow property some time next month.

Under the terms reported agreed upon, General Motors would take over control of the Yellow Manufacturing and the Yellow Coach companies and acquire minority stock in subsidiary companies formed to use the products of these plants. These include the Yellow Cab Co. of Chicago, the Yellow Taxi Co. of New York and the Omnibus Corporation of America, which in turn controls the Fifth Avenue Coach Co. of New York, the Chicago Motor Coach Co. and the People's Motor Bus Co. of St. Louis.

FERRYBOAT DYNAMITED IN WEST VIRGINIA COAL STRIKE

Fifty Deputies Sworn In, Temporary Injunction Against Union Is Made Permanent.

By the Associated Press.

POMEROY, O., June 27.—The situation in the Pomeroy Bend coal fields, where union miners have been on strike more than a year and where several coal companies have recently resumed operations with non-union miners, took on more serious aspect last night with the burning of the outer workings of one of the mines, the dynamiting of a river ferry and an automobile and sundry lesser disturbances.

Fifty deputies were sworn in this morning and were put on guard at the mining properties and stationed in the city. Judge A. P. Miller made permanent the temporary injunction against picketing of the mines by union workers.

The burning of the outer workings of Mine No. 17 of the Pittsburg Coal Co., near Racine, formerly known as the Thomas Mine, occurred early today. The destruction was complete, forcing indefinite suspension of work and causing damage estimated at $50,000. About 150 miners were employed at the shaft.

A few hours before, the ferryboat on which most of the miners employed at the shaft are transported across the Ohio River from their homes in West Virginia, was dynamited and sunk.

Many Horses Killed by Heat.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BURLINGTON, Kan., June 27.—Coffey county farmers have been losing a great many horses from the effects of the excessive hot weather the last two weeks, Dan M. Braum, county agent, said today. "I never saw a time when a greater number of horses were killed by the heat in such a short length of time," he added. Most of the horses have been overcome by heat while pulling cultivators in corn fields.

OBSERVATION DIVISION NEEDS MORE RECRUITS

National Guard Unit Continues Campaign With Stunts in Airplanes.

A campaign for recruits for the 110th Observation Squadron, National Guard, which opened Friday, will continue until the organization entrains Aug. 1 for Nevada, Mo., where the annual encampment of units of the Thirty-fifth Division will be held.

The campaign for recruits for the air unit was opened at noon Friday, when three planes, piloted by officers of the squadron, were flown over the city and circulars announcing the drive for additional personnel were dropped from the planes. The flight over the city was featured by a "stunting" exhibition by the three aviators over the Mississippi River, followed by dives under the center spans of the Merchants, Eads and Free bridges.

This afternoon five pilots of the squadron will participate in a flying exhibition over Manchester road near Denny road. Another plane of the unit will be used in a race with a speed boat in the power boat races on the Mississippi River at 4 p. m.

Applicants passing a successful physical examination for entrance in the Air Squadron will be taught to fly, according to Lieut. H. H. Teichman, recruiting officer of the organization. Young men wishing to join the unit should apply to Lieut. Teichman at the flying exhibition on Manchester road this afternoon, or at Lambert-St. Louis Field or the First Regiment Armory, Grand boulevard and Market street.

Slayer of Two Gets Life Term.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 27.—John F. Raymond, who last April shot and killed his estranged wife, Violet, and his brother-in-law, Raymond Buker, and was convicted recently on the charge of having murdered Buker, today was sentenced to life imprisonment.

DEDICATION OF NEW LAYMAN'S RETREAT LEAGUE BUILDING

The new building of the Laymen's Retreat League, conducted by the Society of Jesus, will be open for inspection next Sunday afternoon at White House, on the Mississippi, in Southern St. Louis County.

There will be a sacred concert at 2 p. m. and dedication services will be conducted at 3:30 p. m. by the Rt. Rev. Joseph A. Murphy, Bishop of British Honduras. The Rev. James P. Monaghan, S. J., director, and Dr. John L. Tierney will deliver addresses. Festus J. Wade will preside.

United Railways busses will operate between the southern end of the Bellefontaine line and White House all that afternoon, charging a 25-cent fare. St. Louis traffic policemen will be on duty at the grounds.

LAST SOLDIER'S BODY FROM FRANCE BURIED

Youth, Killed in Argonne, Is Laid in Grave at San Francisco.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SAN FRANCISCO.—A military cortege stopped beneath a low cypress tree. An army chaplain dropped rose leaves into a freshly dug grave and spoke: "Since the soul of our comrade has departed this life, therefore commit his body to the ground." A mother, white handkerchief to her eyes and contrasting with her dress of black, stood near. A group of former overseas service men stood with bared and bowed heads. A color guard of two overseas Sergeants held aloft the Stars and Stripes and the colors of the 30th infantry, with the riband of the croix de guerre. A former A. E. F. Lieutenant spoke; a brief sermon was preached. A salute and taps.

Thus was buried in the Presidio, San Francisco, last week, the last body of an American soldier to be returned from France. It is also the last which will be returned: the rest will remain in the country where they fought and died.

The soldier to whose memory honor was paid was Corporal Chauncey Renaldo Frank, high school boy in this city when he enlisted and went overseas for service with the 91st division.

His mother, Mrs. Cynthia Shaw, during seven long years had about given up hope of body of her son being found. He was killed in action in the Argonne, Oct. 4, 1918, and his body was recently discovered. She had journeyed to Arlington when the unknown soldier was brought back for burial, thinking he might be her boy. The father, A. G. Frank, was also in attendance at the funeral.

ENLARGEMENT OF COURTHOUSE AT BELLEVILLE IS FAVORED

Committee of Supervisors to Submit Two Plans at Meeting of Board July 6.

The Courthouse Committee of the St. Clair County Board of Supervisors composed of Supervisors John Lang and Andrew Zittle of East St. Louis and Louis Dyroff of Dupo, at a meeting held in Belleville yesterday, decided to recommend the enlargement of the St. Clair County Courthouse by the construction of a third addition to the building.

Two plans were under consideration, one for a third story and the other for a west wing. The third-story plan will call for the expenditure of $50,000 which can be financed out of the county fund while a west wing will cost $300,000 and would require the vote of the people on a bond issue.

The recommendation will be made by the committee to the Board of Supervisors at its next meeting to be held July 6.

SIX CHILDREN CITED FOR SUPPORT OF THEIR MOTHER

Under Illinois Law They Are Required to Aid in Support of Parent.

Six children of Mrs. Mamie Titze of Mascoutah have been cited to appear in the Belleville County Court on July 10, under the pauper relatives' law of Illinois, to explain why they are not contributing toward the support of the mother.

Under the pauper relative act children must provide for a parent when the parent is unable to do so.

Klan Opponents to Incorporate.

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, Colo., June 27.—The constitutionalists, an organization politically opposed to the Ku Klux Klan, today filed articles of incorporation with the Secretary of State. Among 60 directors of the organization named are former Gov. Oliver H. Shoup, S. Harrison White, former Chief Justice of the State Supreme Court; Charles Leckenby, former State Auditor; Granby Hillyer, former United States District Attorney, and Charles J. Moynihan, unsuccessful candidate in last year's primary election for the Republican nomination for United States Senator.

Wilbur to Sail With Cadets.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Secretary Wilbur will depart for San Francisco tomorrow night to be gone six weeks on a vacation and inspection trip along the West Coast and back to Washington by way of the Panama Canal. He will go by way of New York and confer there Monday with Chairman Hale of the Senate Naval Committee. In California he will join the midshipmen of the naval academy on their annual cruise from San Francisco to Astoria, Ore., and back to San Diego, where he will board the transport Henderson for the trip through the canal, arriving at Hampton Roads Aug. 27. The Henderson will stop at Corinto, Nicaragua, to take on the 250 Marines whose withdrawal previously had been arranged for.

New Bank for Bucklin, Mo.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 27.—The State Finance Department today isued a charter for a new bank in Bucklin, Linn county, to be known as the Bucklin State Bank, which will take over the assets of the Bank of Bucklin, which closed on March 15, last. Capital stock of the new bank is $20,000, all paid up. The principal organizers of the bank are T. S. Husmen, P. E. Rouse and S. E. Rouse, all of Bucklin.

EAST SIDE CITIES PLAN NEW JOINT ORGANIZATION

More Industrial Plants and Hard Roads Among Aims of Supporters.

Tentative plans for an organization of business interests and commercial clubs in Madison and St. Clair Counties to develop the East Side were discussed at a meeting in Granite City Friday night, of which H. J. Anderson was temporary chairman and Arthur Roman temporary secretary.

To procure more industrial plants for the East Side, to develop more hard-surfaced roads and to beautify certain natural scenic spots in the district are the plans proposed.

The meeting was held at the suggestion of Mayor A. C. Gouen of Collinsville, who recently proposed such an organization before the Granite City Commercial Club, by which it was sponsored.

Representatives from Granite City, Madison, Nameoki, Venice, Alton, Wood River, Edwardsville, Collinsville and Hartford were present at the meeting, which was held in the Elks' Club at Granite City.

Definite action was postponed pending the enlisting of the co-operation of Belleville, O'Fallon, Waterloo, Columbia and East St. Louis in the plan, and a meeting is to be called by Chairman Anderson in the near future, at which those cities are to be represented.

SHOE SALESMAN

An active, ambitious man, young enough to grasp new ideas, with a thorough knowledge of the shoe business from the selling standpoint. The man wanted must be able to point to a record of securing results and must have some established business in the territory he has been, or is now traveling.

To such a man, a young, progressive firm, making a line of popular-priced novelty McKay Shoes, has an extraordinary proposition to offer. The party filling our requirements must have enough confidence in his ability and enough responsibility to at least finance himself in part. This is a real opportunity for a man who wishes to make a connection on the ground floor with a St. Louis shoe manufacturing concern.

All applications shall be considered confidential, but must be in writing. An interview shall be arranged with those men whose qualifications are satisfactory.

VACATION
for Only $50
All First-Class Passage and Accommodations

Here's that vacation of your dreams—7 days of inspiring scenes—living at a beautiful and well-appointed hotel—bathing, sailing, auto rides and every form of beach recreation at

HOLLYWOOD by-the-Sea
"Florida All-Year Resort City"

You who are shaping plans for vacation, look over the amazing opportunity presented in this vacation at Hollywood-by-the-Sea, and compare it with anything you have considered.

Compare it in allurement—and cost.

Nothing like it was ever before placed before vacationists in extent, in variety, in rest and recreation, and price.

Through a remarkable combination of arrangements, it is possible for the vacationist to go to Florida, and the peerless beach of the nation's romantic strand—HOLLYWOOD-BY-THE-SEA—live at the beautiful Hollywood hotels, surf bathe, idle on the glittering shore, and mingle with a host of other delights, all for $50—Hollywood hotel rates, including meals, $4 per day.

Mild, Refreshing Temperature, With the Invigorating Tang of the Sea

Imagination cannot exaggerate the charm and delight held forth in this unusual vacation trip. The trip alone is a vacation in itself. Yet with all its charm, the trip is but an inkling of the recreation, delights and rest that are to come.

Hollywood-by-the-Sea is an intriguing play spot for a visit in any month, Summer and Winter. Delightful breezes sweep in from the ocean, keeping the shore comfortable, refreshing.

There is the carefree restfulness of the tropics, enlivened by the spirit to be up and busy with pleasure and activities . . . the sea and the shore lay at your fingertips.

Here is climate that makes life easy; climate that stays the hand of age. The sun is kindly adding its wealth of color, as it rises and sets, to the colorful panorama of sea and land. Day skies and sun outpaint the rainbow in kaleidoscopic brilliance; night skies and moon out-romance the glamour of Orient.

The Atlantic seaside resorts rolled into one offer no more than Hollywood. Boating, automobile rides through novel scenes, sailing, surf bathing and sightseeing.

Included in your trip is a wonderful sightseeing ride in one of our commodious motor busses down the east coast of Florida. Here, with the wonderful salt air and breezes of the sea constantly blowing, keeping you delightfully cool, you will see the tropical fruit orchards, cocoanut groves, palm trees and beautiful beaches. Here you will see banana and orange groves, large acres of pineapples and grapefruit, and many other wonderful sights. You will visit many of the towns which you have read about—the old, picturesque Spanish towns—and the play-towns of the idle rich. Decide to make this trip—you will talk about it for years.

And finally, here is the chance to see with your own eyes the realization of the dream of half the people of the United States. A marvelous chance to see what Florida is. A chance to visit Miami, Palm Beach, and all the other splendid seaside spots of the lovely strand which has more romance, more beauty, more to charm the imagination and senses than any other spot in the country.

Most for the Least

Think over all your previous vacations. Think over what you have in mind for this Summer. Think it over in connection with the delightful program of enjoyment offered for just $50—which will include railroad fare and pullman, and entertainment.

Make up your mind to enjoy the greatest vacation you have ever had, or ever had anyone describe to you, for less than you have ever paid.

On the page opposition to this announcement is a page advertisement which will give you further information regarding beautiful Hollywood-by-the-Sea.

Act promptly and send in this coupon asking for complete details.

Bus Tours To Well-Known Points

De Luxe Busses tour all over Florida to and from beautiful Hollywood—to such towns as West Palm Beach and Palm Beach, Lake Worth, Hypolaye, Lantana, Boynton, Yohma, Boco Ratone, Deerfield, Pompano, Fort Lauderdale, Dania, Miami, Coral Gables, Cocoanut Grove, Highela, Little River, Ojus, Nat. Bridge, Buena Vista, Lemon City, Allendale, etc.

Make this trip for $50—your railroad fare and berth, and many automobile trips and outings on land and sea for $50. Quarters and meals at the Hollywood Hotel, Hollywood-by-the-Sea, one of the most beautiful and comfortable hotels in the State of Florida, will cost you $4 per day.

Regular trips are being made on the first and third Tuesday of each month.

Arrange one of these to coincide with your vacation, and write us at once for complete details.

To Build Florida for the Working Man

The Florida Society of America Will Pay

$20,000 in Cash

For Names of Products Best Suited for Manufacture in Florida

What Products can be manufactured to best advantage in the state of Florida?

That's what the Florida Society of America wants to know!

And this Society, through its founder and president, Joseph W. Young, will pay $20,000 in cash for the best suggestions.

You May Be the One

Somewhere, there is someone who can tell us the one product best suited for manufacture in Florida.

We will pay that one person a grand award of $10,000 in cash.

And you may be the one!

Or you may get the second grand award of $4,000—or a part of $6,000 more that will be paid for other good suggestions.

Why We Make This Offer

It is agreed that Florida is destined to become one of the most important centers of industrial activity and commerce in the world. But Florida's progress in this direction has been retarded because it is the premier winter resort state.

The awakening has now come. Florida is NOT for the few alone. It is for the multitudes! Florida is now being balanced by industry. And new cities, such as Hollywood on the East coast, are being developed where industrial men may find homes.

The Florida Society of America believes that new manufacturing industries should be chosen after a careful consideration of their advantages in Florida, instead of permitting them to grow in a haphazard manner.

These are the reasons why the Florida Society of America wants to know the names of the products that are best suited for manufacture in Florida. And these are the reasons why we are willing to pay so liberally for the best suggestions.

What Florida Offers to Industry

Florida is wonderfully situated for industrial development, because——It is located within 48 hours by rail of more than four-fifths of the population of the United States—

—It has rich, natural industrial resources, and it enjoys a mild climate the year around—

—It is within short shipping reach of the vast raw materials of both South and Central America—

—It has ample transportation facilities, both rail and water. Its present harbors are being improved and in addition, the largest harbor between New York and South America is now under construction at Hollywood.

For these and other reasons, it is an accepted fact that Florida will soon astound the world with its opportunities for industry and industry's partner, the workingman—just as Florida has become the world's most famous winter resort.

The opportunity is unlimited. But the Florida Society of America believes that there are certain products which can be manufactured in Florida better than anywhere else.

It is to find what these products are, that the Florida Industrial Contest has been devised.

We Want Your Suggestion

What, then, above all other things should be manufactured in Florida?

We want your suggestion—everybody's!

And we will reward you richly, if your suggestion is one of the best received.

Everyone, everywhere is eligible to compete in this contest, excepting only the officers and employees of the Florida Society of America.

Your opportunity to earn one of the biggest cash awards is equal to that of any other person.

It is well worth your try!

CITY ASKS FOR DELAY IN PHONE RATE INCREASE

Holds It is Entitled to More Time On Its Motion for a Rehearing.

A motion to delay a 25 per cent increase in business telephone rates until the Public Service Commission has granted ample time to the city in its motion for a rehearing was filed yesterday with the Commission by Assistant City Counselor Ferris.

Arguments on the rehearing are set for tomorrow. The increase is scheduled to become effective Wednesday. This is not considered sufficient time for deliberation, and the city further holds that it should have two weeks to prepare a brief.

ORRICK FAVORS MOVING POLICE HEADQUARTERS

President of Board Says More Efficient Administration Would Result.

Tentative discussions of a proposal by President Allen C. Orrick of the Police Board to separate Police Headquarters from Central District Station at 208 South Twelfth street have been going on at board meetings. The point has been advanced that a separation of executive activities from practical police work would materially aid the administrative end of police duty.

Most members of the Police Board concur in the opinion that efficiency in an administrative way would be helped immeasurably by removing the executive offices from the atmosphere of the station house.

President Orrick, who has had considerable experience in military affairs as a captain of artillery overseas, favors the plan, but says the discussions have not gone far enough to warrant a conclusion of details.

The city has up a proposal to cut 40 feet from the front of the present Central District Station site in a street widening proposal, and this has accentuated the discussion of additional police room elsewhere to accommodate the administrative officers. Any curtailment of the present site would immediately necessitate the acquiring of additional quarters.

No location has been mentioned for the proposed new headquarters, but it has been suggested that the city might consent to the use of ground on the Clark avenue front of the City Hall Park as part of a group of civic buildings which will be augmented by the Memorial Plaza. Space in an office building, some members believe, would be preferable to the present arrangement.

CIRCLE TRIP OF

CAN BE MAD

It Would Be Delightful Over the Fourth, Stop at Some Arcadia Regio Roads as Are Found able After Ordinary R

By RICHARD G. B

RURAL Missouri's greatest charm spread themselves before the eye boulevards and adventures into th country south of St. Louis

There is, for example, the long circle tour of about 230 miles that was plotted on the State Highway Commission's map and executed by Felix, Skidamaree and the writer last Sunday. Felix is the faithful friend who jotted down mileage notes uncomplainingly and Skidamaree is the equally faithful Ford that has skipped over the byways of a large sector equally uncomplainingly.

Indeed, the ledger of this trip was:

Debit—tired muscles ("that good tire"), one puncture from a sharp pebble, about nine gallons of gasoline and two quarts of oil, plus wear and tear on the car in no greater degree than similar mileage anywhere.

Credit—real relaxation for city-tired minds and eyes and ears; new and beautiful scenes recorded in memory and on camera film; new places visited and knowledge of the State increased; freedom from the creeping, aimless traffic of a metropolitan Sunday achieved.

This is not a trip for the timorous driver, but it is one that no good driver need fear. It is preferably for dry weather, but the unmade roads at the southern end are said to be passable in spite of ordinary summer rains. It is a long journey for one day, but can be accomplished in about 16 hours, starting soon after sunrise on one of these pleasant summer mornings, with the prospect of perfect road for the returning lap in darkness. It can be made a two-day vacation tour by stopping at one of the numerous places at Arcadia and Ironton. These twin towns and Fredericktown are the southern

APPROACHING FREDERICKTOWN ON NO. 70

There is, for example, the long circle tour of about 230 miles that was plotted on the State Highway Commission's map and executed by Felix, Skidamaree and the writer last Sunday. Felix is the faithful friend who jotted down mileage notes uncomplainingly and Skidamaree is the equally faithful Ford that has skipped over the byways of a large sector equally uncomplainingly.

Indeed, the ledger of this trip was:

Debit—tired muscles ("that good tire"), one puncture from a sharp pebble, about nine gallons of gasoline and two quarts of oil, plus wear and tear on the car in no greater degree than similar mileage anywhere.

Credit—real relaxation for city-tired minds and eyes and ears; new and beautiful scenes recorded in memory and on camera film; new places visited and knowledge of the State increased; freedom from the creeping, aimless traffic of a metropolitan Sunday achieved.

This is not a trip for the timorous driver, but it is one that no good driver need fear. It is preferably for dry weather, but the unmade roads at the southern end are said to be passable in spite of ordinary summer rains. It is a long journey for one day, but can be accomplished in about 16 hours, starting soon after sunrise on one of these pleasant summer mornings, with the prospect of perfect road for the returning lap in darkness. It can be made a two-day vacation tour by stopping at one of the numerous places at Arcadia and Ironton. These twin towns and Fredericktown are the southern ends of this journey, which traverses seven counties and the city.

Very Attractive Route.

Some sights as pleasing as many of those farther south are encountered in St. Louis County and just beyond on a little-known road. The suggested route to make this a complete circle tour is via Manchester road to Manchester, south to Valley Park and thence to the Antire road, which is across the Meramec River from Valley Park. On the Antire road will be found State detour signs for road No. 30, the detour being for the Gravois road, where concrete is being extended. Follow the detour signs, which soon lead into Jefferson County and to Gravois road near High Ridge, on a lane that doesn't appear on many maps, but is passable in wet weather.

This goes up over a ridge of surpassing charm and sub-Ozark grandeur. It is about 30 miles from the Post-Dispatch Building to High Ridge by this route, and by this point the traveler attains the land of rail fences, razorback swine and old log shacks. From here on, pines and cedars dominate the landscape, edging the purple and blue heights of distant ridges in rugged beauty. Such is the typical aspect of all this southern region, though fertile valleys frequently appear.

Gravois road, as part of State highway No. 30, is excellent from the detour lane for 12.7 miles to a point beyond Cedar Hill, where Highway No. 30 turns off for St. Clair.

No. 30 turns abruptly to the north in the center of House Springs, with a brief jump around a ford, where the State is building a much-needed concrete bridge.

From De Soto to Potosi.

From the separation of No. 30 to Morse's Mill, 4.6 miles. Gravois road is rough but passable. At Morse's Mill, as at Cedar Hill, there is a bridge across the picturesque Big River. Just beyond the bridge take the right-hand road, which runs for 13.2 miles through the hamlet of Ware to De Soto. This stretch is seldom traveled back country, with an ordinary rural road. De Soto is a live railroad town, with shops and other industries, and perches on a bluff where steep steps replace streets in some places. (To avoid this circuitous route to De Soto one can go out from the city on Lemay Ferry road, No. 9, and follow No. 9 through Festus and over its reasonably good detour to De Soto, but the Festus-St. Louis lap is part of the return trip. Indeed, temporary No. 9 can be followed between De Soto and Farmington to eliminate the suggested eastern loop of this tour.)

At De Soto, go south on the main paved street, which turns into No. 21, a high-type gravel road which is marked all the way to Ironton. It is not far to a fine new bridge in a deep valley, crossing the Big River again, and entering Washington County, where the size of the hills increases and there are deep woods redolent of the odor of pine and drowsy with the hum of locusts. There are 17.7 miles of unbroken good road from De Soto to a point where two miles of freshly graveled highway begins. This stretch is all right, but slow going. Beyond this, is 4.4 miles of good road to Potosi, the county seat.

More Inspiring Scenery.

Superb quality—new beauty—flashing action!

Special Offer

We will consider all makes in trade as down payment to equal one-third down; balance in 18 months.

Through skillful, studied building, Jewett has produced the finest Coach ever designed.

Already, thousands have bought the Jewett Coach because of its superb quality.

It's a Conspicuous Beauty

Ask your wife to judge Jewett Coach beauty—its refreshing, colorful, permanent lacquer finish, its smart double belt moulding, its gracefully rounded back.

These are features that make custom-built cars individual and costly—and give Jewett Coach its harmonious beauty.

Jewett has introduced a new type of upholstery in the Coach. It's an ideal combination of rich beauty and wearing quality that has long been necessary in a Coach—but never a reality until Jewett Coach appeared.

To drive Jewett Coach is to experience an utterly new and amazing type of motor car action. You have never felt such a power thrill. From 2 miles an hour, without bucking, to 60 in less than a city block — in high gear. Yes — Jewett Coach will outperform any car within $500 of its price.

Its Performance Lasts!

A silent chain drives pump and timing shafts. Chain wear is automatically taken up as it occurs. Full, high-pressure oiling guards every bearing against even ordinary wear.

A new, heavy, counterbalanced crankshaft eliminates vibration. From the first sweet trip until your speedometer clicks the fifty-thousandth mile and more—Jewett motor will remain smooth—silent—satisfying.

Reasons enough for Jewett's Coach leadership. It's the greatest Jewett ever built—with riding, steering, driving qualities that will amaze you. See Jewett Coach. Drive it yourself before you buy!

ILLINOIS OILING MORE DIRT ROADS THIS YEAR

Total of 100,000,000 Gallons of Fluid to Be Put on Earth Highways.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., June 27.—Construction of hard roads in Illinois, is having the effect of increasing the quantity of crude oil distributed upon the earth roads of this State. Whenever a concrete pavement is laid, it is noticeable that adjacent townships are likely to oil the connecting highways and hundreds of these laterals are being oiled which were never previously treated.

July 1 usually marks the opening of the oiling season for earth roads. Orders have been placed for more than 10,000 tank cars for distribution in this state. Each car averages 10,000 gallons. This means a total of 100,000,000 gallons. Later orders may run the total up to half as much more.

Many cities and smaller towns are using oil to lay the dust on unpaved streets. Due to the extreme drouth in Illinois during May and well into June, the dust nuisance became intolerable, especially where a shortage of water resulted in orders prohibiting street sprinkling. This led to a flood of oil purchases and makes it certain that the amount distributed in this State this year will run ahead of last year.

Many of the counties of Illinois placed their orders in February and March. Since then there has been a decline in quotations, although the cost of distribution will remain about the same.

It has been computed after a series of experiments, that it costs about $417 per mile to oil a country road properly. The average road requires about 5280 gallons, which, at 7 cents applied, brings the cost of the fluid distributed up to $360. Grading and dragging preparations costs around $57 a mile.

The most approved method of distribution is by motor truck equipped with a 1000-gallon tank. One half gallon is applied to each square yard. The trucks carry portable pumps on trailers, which transfer the oil from tank cars on railroad sidings. Each contractor utilizes a fleet of trucks, one half being in service sprinkling the oil on the roadway, while the other half are being filled.

It is customary to sprinkle about a half inch of loose earth, not clods, on the newly drenched road. This has a tendency to prevent passing vehicles from carrying off much oil on their wheels. Traffic is barred from an oiled road for four days to permit the oil to soak into the earth as much as possible.

The oil produces a smooth surface, prevents dust from forming and also turns the water in the event of rain. Earth roads which are given several applications of oil during the summer and fall, usually go through the winter in good shape if drainage is adequate.

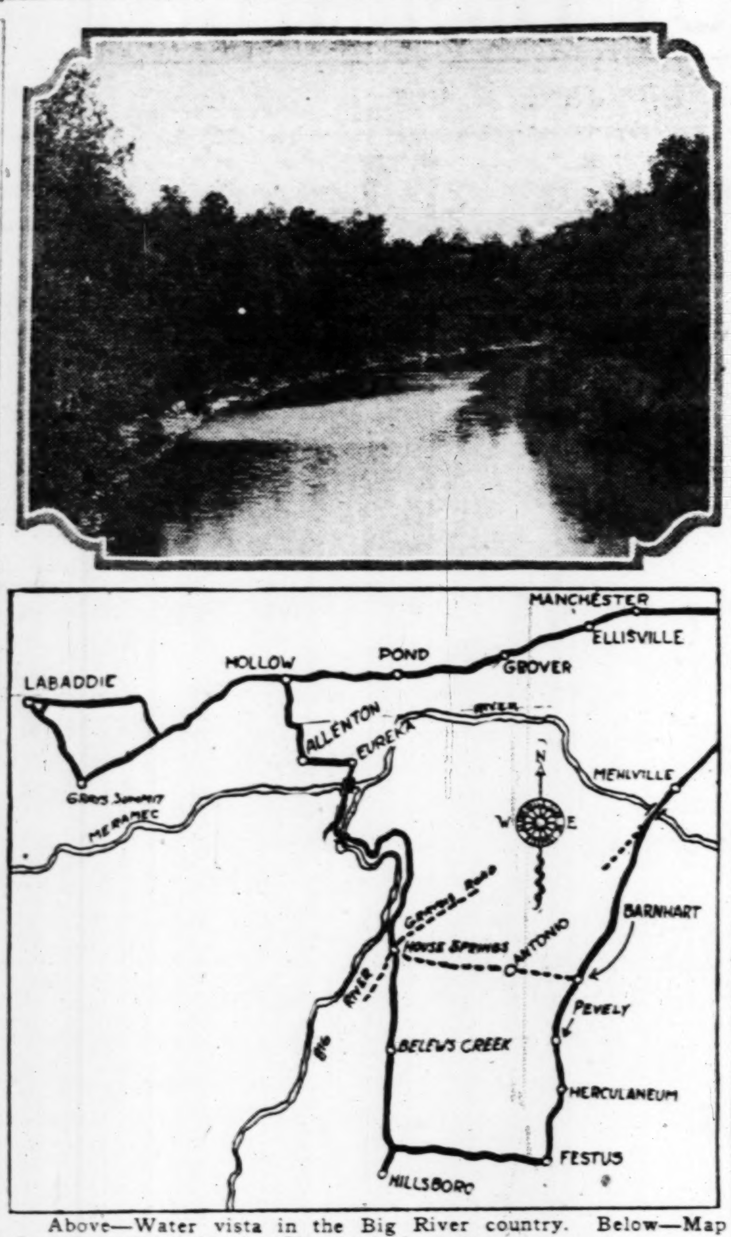
No Lovelier Trip Around St. Louis



Above—Water vista in the Big River country. Below—Map of route traveled by the Cleveland six party.

By Spence.

ANY motorist who really wants to know what his car can do on rough, narrow roads with plenty of grades, and at the same time wishes to enjoy some of the loveliest scenery in this part of Missouri, could hardly do better than follow the trip taken last Saturday by a party in a Cleveland big six touring car driven by Ed. C. Meissner, head of the Cleveland Motor Sales Co. The tour started out Manchester road, dropped down into the Fiddle Creek country, rambled to Eureka then followed a route to Byrne's Mill that traversed what is probably the most beautiful region around St. Louis, continued on to House Springs, then over the old Hillsboro road to the Lemay Ferry road, over the Silica road to Festus and Crystal City, out on the Mississippi bluffs and back on the concrete of highway No. 9 to the city.

Not a Trip for Poor Drivers.

But this is distinctly not a trip for Sunday, or for the motorist who fears lest he mar the finish on his car, or is doubtful about his driving or has to be careful about his tires. Much of the way the roads are very narrow, with few places to turn out, and with many steep and rough grades. There are numerous rocky stretches that are hard on tires, and some stretches would be dangerous if a number of cars were traveling inr both directions.

But the man who figures that most of the scenery worth seeing is along the country roads and doesn't mind getting a few scratches on the old car or a nick or two in his tires will find this trip well worth while. And if his car performs as well, and meets every test of the road as the Cleveland car did Saturday, he can take "the old boat" anywhere that any car can go.

An interesting aspect of this trip was the glimpses of bird and animal life. Time and again the bird chorus thrilled sweely from roadside trees or the green depths of thickets. The "Bob White" call of the quail was heard continually, and frequently a brace of these birds would run squatteringly along the road loath to rise until the car was almost upon them. Few were the miles in the Fiddle Creek, the Big River and old Hillsboro road country that did not produce at least one rabbit, and several times as the car was running between high dirt banks, rabbits raced madly along for 100 yards or so before scuttering wildly into a roadside covert. Once a grotesquely fat ground hog bolted from the bushes and scuttled frantically ahead of the car for 50 yards, until he recovered from his panic and scrambled into a friendly hole.

On Saturday's tour the writer reset the speedometer of the Cleveland at 00.0 at Manchester and Denny roads. Advantage was taken of the smooth concrete to test the Cleveland for acceleration. Starting at five miles an hour in high, the car was going 31 miles an hour at the third telegraph pole and 43 miles an hour at the sixth pole. The stretch on which these tests were made was level, but slightly upgrade. The acceleration from 35 miles an hour, for passing other cars, also was exceptionally rapid.

Into a Lovely Country.

The gravel grade at the end of the Manchester road concrete was unusually rough, for the storm of the preceding Wednesday night had washed the top dressing off in a number of places. The Cleveland, however, went up the hill so fast that it was necessary to shut off the power on all the curves.

It was necessary to drive carefully at 23.4 miles from Denby road because the road had been narrowed down over a small bridge where a culvert was being fixed. At 25.1, Meissner swung the Cleveland right, into the Fiddle Creek road, which descends a half mile grade on a gravel shelf road into one of the loveliest little valleys in Missouri. This turn can be identified by the big blue and white Chevrolet sign.

The road crosses the valley, then runs alongside a brook and down another vale, several times going through the brook and skirting the bottom of a low ridge, with hundreds of birds singing in the trees and shrubs. At 27.0, left up a very steep and rather rough gravel hill. Here is a real second gear grade. The road runs a winding course around the heads of numerous ravines that cut into the hillside from a valley. It is narrow, and there are not many places to turn out for another car. But the hillside and the valley it overlooks are rarely beautiful. At times the road changes from gravel to dirt with natural gravel or sand mixtures, and often is rather rough. But a car would not bog down in it anywhere.

Some Splendid Views.

At 28.8, a breath-taking view through a notch in the hills across the Missouri river, then right at a fork in the road. It was here that the ground hog bolted from the bushes and scrobbled along the road ahead of the car until he finally found a hole. Then came a grade so stiff that no car could pull it in high. At 29.8, another wonderful view across the river. At 30.3, left on sandy dirt.

At 31.1, just before entering the town of Labaddie, the Cleveland party swung left on a good sandy dirt road that presently became gravel, with hill after hill, until at 35.2 it cut into State highway No. 12. The Cleveland swung left and up and over the hill in high toward St. Louis.

At 44.8, Meissner turned right into the Hencken road for Allenton. This is a fine gravel road, mostly on the ridges with fine sweeping views, lovely wooded stretches and now and then sections like a boulevarded park. At 48.3, a splendid view to the right through gaps in the roadside brush and trees, then down a long gradual grade with more fine views. This grade, with two stretches almost level, is 1 3-10 miles long, and ends in the valley. At 50.4, a grade crossing into Allenton.

Nothing Lovelier in This Region.

Left on so-so to good gravel road to Eureka. Then right down the main street, right at the first corner and left again on the gravel Bald Hill road. At 54.7, down the hill through the bluffs to and over the Meramec river, on across the flat and left along the base of a low ridge. There is some dirt in this stretch that might cause trouble if wet. At 56.7, the Cleveland party took the left fork across the Big River and then right on a gravel road, narrow but good. At 57.7, the road becomes dirt with some sand and natural gravel, and is very narrow, with few turning out places. But for the next five miles, the writer believes, this road is the prettiest in the whole St. Louis territory.

It winds along under long arches of trees, now and then going through veritable green tunnels, each stretch seemingly more lovely than another. At 59.8, out on the bank of the Big River and presently a charming vista over two valleys. Left at the fork at 60.8 and up a steep and rough graveled grade into a rocky cedar country, swinging right at the fork on top of the hill and dropping down another rocky grade. A beautiful hillside with the tang of the cedars fragrant on the air. So beautiful, in fact, was this part of the trip that it was only as they started to descend that the Cleveland party realized what a feat the car had performed in making it all in high gear.

More Beautiful Country.

The road descends steadily to the floor of the Big River valley, and at 63.8 passes the old mill, which that day was grinding flour with a whirr and rumble of water wheel and grind stones, the air white with flour dust. As lovely in its way as the stretch just traveled is the road on to House Springs. At 66.0 into the Gravois road and at 66.5 out of House Spring on the old Hillsboro road, swinging left at 66.7 between the abutments that stand starkly awaiting the completion of a bridge. The road, wide enough for only one car, but with occasional turnouts, rambles up a narrow and rarely pretty valley for several miles between heavily timbered ridges. Gradually the road becomes rougher as the gravel becomes coarser and larger, with stretches of rocky going none too good for tires. The Cleveland, with its big balloon tires, rode the rocks as if they were not there.

At 71.8, out onto a tongue of land jutting into a wide-flung valley with a 50-mile sweep of green loveliness. The road rambles up and down, up and down, now good gravel, now rocky, in one place climbing a veritable flight of low stone stairs. At 73.4 a ford on mud and sand through a creek. Better take this carefully in low gear. At 73.8, a mean, stony grade. The Cleveland did itself proud hanging on in high to the top. At 74.2, out on a knoll from which was another noble vista over a wide shallow upland valley. At 75.5 the road straight ahead to the right should be taken.

At 76.0 a series of gorgeous views over a densely wooded hill country, and at 77.1 a panorama of broad valley, white farmhouses nestling in groves, prosperous farms, church spires marking the sites of little hamlets, and beyond the faintly blue ridges.

At 80.2, right into the Lemay Ferry road. At 80.4 left into the Silica road to Festus. This road is mostly smooth, fast gravel, with some stretches of loose gravel. At 89.2, a grade crossing and into Silica, then on two miles farther to Crystal City, whence one can return over No. 9 to St. Louis. It was still necessary to use the old road much of the way for several miles, then there was concrete into the city. The Cleveland party rambled off to the right on some of the roads to the tops of the Mississippi River bluffs and along the Cook Creek Valley road, eventually cutting back onto the concrete highway.

Car Performs Finely.

Throughout the trip the Cleveland proved itself ideal for general purpose driving, both on city streets and on the road. It has plenty of power, is comfortably sprung, and is balanced so that it clings to the road on the curves and on the rough stretches, so that rear-seat passengers are not tossed about. It hung on grimly in high when forced to slow down for bad spots on the grades—this certainly happened frequently enough Saturday—and showed a pleasing disposition to pick up again in such cases. The acceleration, as has been told, is rapid and powerful, and the car runs sweetly and smoothly at all speeds, being noticeably easy and lacking in vibration at fast touring speeds. Its four-wheel brakes, which are optional at a relatively small extra charge, performed perfectly. A better test of a car under all sorts of conditions could hardly have been devised than Saturday's tour, and the Cleveland emerged from it with credit from start to finish.

All models of the Cleveland big six have balloon tires and automatic spark advance, as well as the "one-shot" lubricating system. By stepping on a plunger, oil is sent to virtually every part of the chassis that needs oiling, including the springs. The efficacy of this system is attested by the way in which Cleveland cars are piling up mileage without developing squeaks or rattles.

OLD CARS IN SPECIAL RACE.

Three old cars were brought out from retirement on June 11 for a half-mile dash that was a feature event of the Syracuse, N. Y., centennial celebration. The race was held in South Salina street, the improvised race course. The three entrants consisted of a 1906 one-cylinder Cadillac, a 1903 one-cylinder Reo, and the 1902 four-cylinder, air-cooled Franklin, which was the first Franklin produced and the first four-cylinder car made in America. The Franklin won easily.

WHY do manufacturers of America's highest-priced cars use Lovejoy Shock Absorbers as standard factory equipment?

BECAUSE these makers have proven that Lovejoys increase comfort, lengthen service, reduce repair expense and enhance the riding and wearing qualities of even the finest cars.

On any car—and with Balloon Tires, particularly — Lovejoy Shock Absorbers eliminate gallop or pitch — prevent sidesway — check rebound—stop all ruinous twist and strain. They neutralize, completely, every shock between roadbed and rider.

Lovejoys will last longer than your car—and make your car last longer. Every working part moves in oil. Once adjusted they require practically no attention. Guaranteed for three years.

HIGHWAY MEMORIAL TO DANIEL BOONE

Kentucky Hopes to Finish Its Section of Route This Year.

By the Associated Press.

FRANKFORT, Ky., June 27.—The routing of a historic highway—the Boone Way—will be completed this season, E. N. Todd, Kentucky State Highway Engineer, is advised.

Kentucky's part of the highway will be of macadam, and hard, finely graded earth, tar surfaced, Todd said, and will be finished this season.

Much of Historic Interest.

Historic points are many along the highway named for the pioneer. There is Boone Cabin, N. C., on the Yadkin, now set apart in a little park, with the original cabin, Boone's old 1750 home, with the monument and markers on the ground.

Boone monument at Boone, Watauga County, N. C., near Sycamore Shoals, where a large portion of Kentucky Territory was purchased at 3 cents an acre in a treaty Col. Henderson concluded with the Cherokees, is another.

Natural Tunnel, Scott County, Va.; Cumberland Gap and King Solomon's Cave, near by; the site near Barbourville, Ky., where Dr. Walker's party erected a cabin in 1750, the first put up in Kentucky Territory, are others of interest to the twentieth century professor of history summering on four wheels.

Great Salt Peter Cave, in Rockcastle County; Boone's Gap, Fort Estill, Boonesboro, Fort Whitley, Lincoln County; Shakertown, High Bridge, Brooklyn Bridge and highway tunnel—Boone tunnel—the only one in Kentucky; Lexington, the heart of the Bluegrass country; Frankfort, the State capital, where the remains of Daniel and Rebecca Boone are resting.

Many Branches of Highway.

Fort Harrod, at Harrodsburg, the first permanent settlement in Kentucky, where the Lewis and Clark expedition to the Northwest started, is on the way. At High Bridge, near Shakertown, Ky., one of the highest bridges in the world over a navigable stream, 320 feet high, takes the Boone Way over the Kentucky River.

Shakertown, established by the Shakers in 1818, was the home of a colony that flourished for about a century. The Shakers allowed no marriages. The last of them died in 1923.

The monument at Boone, in Watauga County, N. C., is on the site of Boone's hunting cabin of 1760. The memorial was made of concrete from stones taken from the foundation and chimney of the cabin.

To Frankfort this highway, so rich in lore, recently brought thousands of the descendants of the Indian hunter in the first family reunion of Boones for over 150 years.

Outside of Kentucky the Boone Way will run in many directions. One division is planned to Lake Superior; another down to Savannah, Ga.; another to Kansas City. The Kansas City link was arranged to connect with St. Louis and Des Moines, Ia.; Boone, Ia.; Minneapolis and Duluth. The southern route through Kentucky and North Carolina has many ramifications.

In Kentucky the State Highway Commission is giving preference to work on this memorial highway.

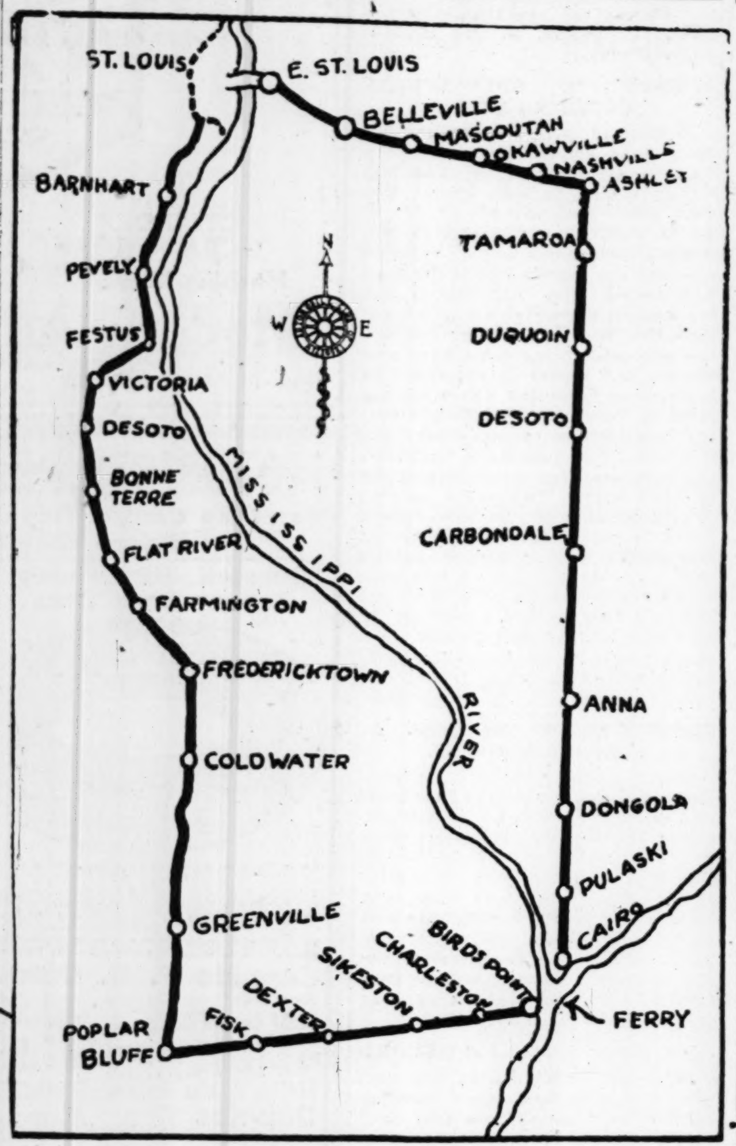
Week-End Motor Trip to Cairo and Poplar Bluff



ABOVE is the route for a Fourth of July week-end tour planned by George Drummond, head of the Touring Bureau of the Automobile Club of Missouri, and the Automobile Editor. It traverses interesting sections of Illinois and Missouri, and offers hotels at Cairo and Poplar Bluff, as well as in some of the smaller cities. It can be taken in either direction, and offers a beautiful side trip over State highway No. 42 west from Poplar Bluff through Doniphan and Alton—called one of the most scenic parts of this State and a region of joy for fishermen with its rivers and creeks. The entire route is pavement and gravel road.

To travel the route through Illinois first, cross the Free Bridge, then continue out Tenth street to State street. Turn right on State street to Forty-third street, right on Forty-third, two blocks to Park Drive, and left on Park Drive to Edgemont. Then go right on West Main street and continue to the Belleville public square. Continue through square and pick up route No. 15 markers. Continue ahead three blocks on East Main street, then right to end of street and left into highway No. 15. Follow No. 15 through Mascoutah, Okawville, Addieville and Nashville to Ashley Junction, and there turn south on No. 2 through Dujuein, Carbondale, the hilly country around Anna, Dongola, Ullin, Pulaski and Mounds to Cairo (160 miles from St. Louis).

Ferryboats operate every half hour from Cairo across the Missouri to Bird's Point from 6 a. m. until 6:30 p. m. They operate on half hourly schedule also from Bird's Point, Mo., from 6:30 a. m. until 7 p. m.

From Bird's Point there is pavement to Charleston, then gravel and pavement through Sikeston and Dexter to Poplar Bluff (about 230 miles from St. Louis by this route.)

From Poplar Bluff, it is 21 miles to Doniphan and 55 miles to Alton, through most picturesque country that fishermen will find a joy forever.

Returning from Poplar Bluff to St. Louis, go north on highway No. 23 through Greenville and Coldwater to Fredericktown, then follow No. 9 through Lamotte, Mine and Farmington to Flat River, Desloge and Bonne Terre to De Soto. A short distance beyond De Soto, swing right into a good gravel road through Hematite to Festus, then go north with a short detour or two on concrete to St. Louis. This gives an all-weather route all the way. By this route it is about 170 miles from Poplar Bluff to St. Louis. Of course, there is nothing to prevent one from going straight over the hilly Lemay Ferry road from De Soto to St. Louis.

TELLS OF PADUCAH-NASHVILLE ROUTE BY WAY OF METROPOLIS

Many motorists bound for Nashville and Florida are using a route north of the Ohio river to Paducah and are ferrying the Ohio river at Metropolis, Ill., instead of going to Mound City, Ill., ferrying the Ohio there and going via Barlow and La Center. The latter route has been generally recommended for some time and still is recommended by the Southern Illinois Motor Club.

The Metropolis route was used by Charles A. Fitzgerald of Overland, Mo., who returned the past week from a trip to Nashville. "The routes are the same to Belleville, then over No. 15 to Ashley Junction and down No. 2 as far as Villa Ridge," Fitzgerald reported. "At Villa Ridge, however, you can go east on a road marked with an orange circle, and travel through Grand Chain to Metropolis, where you ferry the Ohio river and go to Paducah. It is 43 miles from Villa Ridge to Metropolis, and the road is fine dirt with gravel in it.

"From Paducah to Hopkinsville the going is splendid over gravel roads. But one never should try the highway from Hopkinsville through Trenton and Guthrie, for it couldn't well be worse. This highway apparently was covered with rock two years or so ago, but, because of some local fight, nothing has been done on it, so it is full of rocks and crater holes that wrench a car and threaten every minute to smash the springs.

"The best route from Hopkinsville is by way of Clarksville to Adams, then to Nashville. From Adams to Nashville there are tarvia roads that are fine going."

NOTED RACERS TO MEET.

Peter de Paolo, winner of the recent Indianapolis and Altoona races, and Tommy Milton will be among the racers who will compete in a 100-mile race July 4 over the Rockingham speedway at Salem, N. H. This speedway has a band of steel rails, registering with the hubs of cars, that is spiked to heavy posts completely around both sides of the track.

TREND TO COMFORT IN CAR BODY DESIGN

More Attention to Standards of Women in Closed Cars. Predicted.

More attention to the comfort of passengers, especially women, a deference to women's standards rather than to men's, and a swing toward more headroom, were predicted at the recent convention of the Automobile Body Builders' Association at Detroit.

Wider seats, and seats that do not slant so sharply toward the back as to be difficult for a stout woman to arise from, also are foreseen.

Some sacrifices of appearance and style for greater headroom appear inevitable, it was declared.

Increasing use of the nitro-cellulose lacquer finishes, and development of such finishes until they will dry in a very short time, also were predicted.

INQUIRIES ABOUT ROADS AND TOURING ANSWERED IN SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH

INQUIRIES about motoring routes to any part of this country or Canada will be answered as far as space permits, through a special "How to Go" department in this automobile section, if the writers so request. Motorists should bear in mind that the automobile section closes each week at noon Friday, and that letters coming in later than the first mail Friday morning cannot be answered through the Post-Dispatch until the second Sunday thereafter. Letters which cannot be answered in the automobile section will be replied to by mail.

The Post-Dispatch Travel and Resort Bureau is prepared to give road and touring information free to everyone who calls at the bureau, which is in the main office on the ground floor of the Post-Dispatch Building.

A small charge is made for maps—10 cents for maps of the individual states, and 12 cents each if mailed; 50 cents for atlases of maps of the eastern or western parts of the country and 14 cents extra for first-class postage; $1 each for atlases with maps of every state, and 16 cents extra for first-class postage. The atlases have camp sites throughout the country.

A map of the highways, lakes, ponds, streams and sloughs for 40 to 50 miles around St. Louis is 20 cents—24 cents if mailed.

BEAUTIFUL DAY'S TRIP CAN BE TURNED INTO WEEK-END JAUNT

the improved section of No. 21 ends and there follows 15 miles of varied surface—rock, earth, natural gravel and soft dirt—but it is not bad driving and local citizens say that here, as in other unimproved sections of this tour, the underlying hard pan and rock make wet-weather driving possible. At the little town of Caledonia No. 32 leads east, unimproved, to Bismarck and Flat River.

Just across the Iron County line the other arm of No. 32 leads 55 miles west, again unimproved, to Salem. From this junction on, there is 11.4 miles of high-class road into Ironton. A short distance to the east, a considerable mountain range springs up from a rather level section of country, flanking the route all the way to Arcadia Valley. This range is a rounded mass of rock hiding beneath a solid camouflage of trees. Beyond it lies Iron Mountain, center of Missouri's one-time iron kingdom.

Granite still is a monarch in this section and at Graniteville the road is hemmed in by hills of bold granite rocks and quarries where the great walls of metropolitan edifices are produced. In the surrounding towns granite is even used for trimming garage walls. Next comes Pilot Knob and its companion summit, Shepherd Mountain. Gen. Sterling Price, C. S. A., in his famous "raid" in Missouri in 1864, met Union forces in a battle at Pilot Knob, after marching up from the South through Arcadia Valley. The outnumbered Federal garrison slipped out of their fort at night, afterward and worked west to Rolla, under pursuit. That valley today is so peaceful that it is hard for an American to visualize the smoke and blood of battle there.

On to Fredericktown.

Now it won't do to advertise eating places, but—Skidamaree pulled up with a snort at a garage just outside of Ironton, when she made this trip, and a man there directed her driver and Felix to an establishment where the chicken was fried to the psychological turn. Ironton is about 111 miles from St. Louis, and is the seat of Iron County. Its neighbor immediately to the south is Arcadia, where you turn east on No. 70, which may well be termed a "rocky road to Dublin," leading, as it does, past Lake Killarney, and being quite rough. Fortunately, its roughness won't hurt tires, with careful driving. South of Arcadia, No. 21 traverses the narrow valley of the "Shut-in."

This is the center of a summer resort and summer home section in the sleepy green hills. No. 70 follows a narrow ledge overlooking Stout's Creek, which is a rock-bound trickle of water, with occasional clear pools. Beyond is Lake Killarney, attractive to many eyes. Work on a half dozen culverts along this byway indicates that the State is preparing to convert it into a real highway, but, in the meantime, machines have to hop around the ditches at these spots. Eleven miles east of Arcadia good gravel surface begins, running into Fredericktown, seat of Madison County, after 8.4 miles.

Into Heart of the Lead Belt.

At Fredericktown No. 23 starts south, a good gravel road for Poplar Bluff and the Arkansas line. Just north of town, by taking No. 23 in that direction, you will reach No. 9, a State primary highway. At this junction a stretch of about five miles of concrete on the way to Cape Girardeau has just been completed, but, going north on No. 9, you will find good gravel for 18 miles into Farmington, seat of St. Francois County, a Veterans' Bureau agricultural school and a State asylum.

This is the heart of the lead belt, Flat River and Bonne Terre being to the north. On the way you pass an old works with the name of Mine Lamotte, reminiscent of the early French influence in this region.

Another Interesting Road.

Leaving Farmington, retrace your way a mile on No. 9 to No. 68, to the east. After 3.5 miles of gravel, No. 68 turns into a country road variously composed of earth, well-packed sand and natural gravel, but mostly sand. There is 17 miles of this, through Weingarten and New Offenburg, to No. 25. Repeatedly the road crosses the Missouri & Illinois Railroad tracks and the rolling hills are interspersed with broad wheat fields.

No. 25, to the south, leads six miles into Ste. Genevieve, the picturesque oldest town in Missouri, but your turn is north, through the settlement of Zell, beyond which there is an unusual hairpin curve in an isolated canyon. For 23.5 miles is a fine gravel road, from No. 68 to a point just south of Festus, except for 2.2 miles at Bloomsdale, where there is a wide creek ford, pending completion of a bridge, and a stretch of unfinished surface. Near Festus a detour into that town and its neighbor, Crystal City, home of a big glass factory, is encountered.

You pick up No. 9 again in Festus and shortly reach a mile of concrete, then a mile detour around some green concrete, which soon will be open, and then the highway is paved all the way to the city, it being about 26 miles from there to the Post-Dispatch Building. The concrete goes just behind the smelter town of Herculaneum instead of through its dusty streets.

There are in the course of this tour a number of fords of small streams, such as are found on various Missouri roads. None of them is troublesome, except in high water, but machines must go slowly through them.

What is more interesting, the whole countryside traversed is populated with live things. An occasional harmless black snake wriggles across your path, young rabbits perch on the ditches, coveys of quail flutter unafraid, red birds and blue birds dash across the vista and doves coo in the distance. They all sing Missouri's charms.

BUILT AS FASTEST TRACK.

A new automobile speedway at Laurel, Md., on which the first race is to be held July 11, should be the fastest in the world, according to racing men. It is one and one-eighth miles around, and is pitched 48 degrees on the turns. To make high speed possible around the turns, the track has been built 40 feet high, three feet higher than any other in the country.

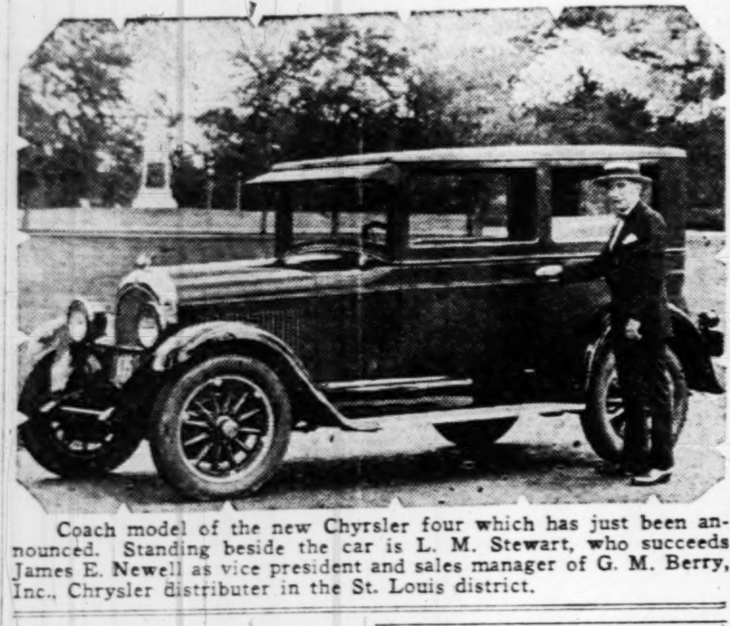
What's New in Cars

New Chrysler Four Looks Like Six of the Same Name



Coach model of the new Chyrsler four which has just been announced. Standing beside the car is L. M. Stewart, who succeeds James E. Newell as vice president and sales manager of G. M. Berry, Inc., Chrysler distributer in the St. Louis district.

CHRYSLER FOUR EXHIBITED IN ST. LOUIS.

A NEW 4-cylinder Chrysler car with body design similar to that of the Chrysler six is announced by the Chrysler factory and is being shown by G. M. Berry, Inc., 2621 Locust boulevard. One of the new fours, a coach, was taken out for a run over St. Louis streets and through Forest Park and proved itself exceptionally powerful and quiet, the engine operating without vibration and the acceleration being unusually swift. The models are touring car, club coupe, coach and four-door sedan, prices ranging from $895 to $1095 at the factory.

"The new Chrysler four is the outgrowth of research, design and test which first resulted in the conception of the Chrysler six," says Walter P. Chrysler, head of the Chrysler organization. "Adaptation of the results achieved in the six to our four-cylinder model has been going on since the appearance of the six."

With 3⅝-inch bore and 4½-inch stroke, the engine delivers 38.5 horsepower. Uniform fuel distribution to all cylinders, complete combustion, accurate valve action, efficient operating temperature, large capacity cooling system and generous water jacketing of cylinder walls and valve ports, are factors that make this general efficiency possible. "You can drive this car all day under heavy load or at top speed and the engine will not overheat or lose power," Chrysler says.

Engine lubrication is by positive, full-force feed, sending a continuous flow of oil under pressure to all main bearings and, through drilled passages in the crankshaft, to all connecting rod bearings. Elimination of vibration is due to balancing rotating and reciprocating parts: short, heavy and rigid crankshaft; with light pistons and connecting rods; dynamic balance of parts that revolve such as crankshaft, clutch hub and flywheel, and matching of connecting rod and piston assemblies to the fraction of an ounce.

"But the engineers have not stopped there in disposing of vibration," Chrysler continues. "One of the unusual features is the method by which the engine is isolated from the frame to prevent disturbances due to road irregularities from being transmitted to it through the chassis. The engine front end is mounted on a floating platform spring. The usual rigid bolting to the chassis frame at the front end is lacking. Fastenings of the rear engine arms to the chassis have rubber bushings and pads interposed, eliminating the destructive contact of metal with metal. Thus the engine is literally cushioned on rubber. This arrangement gives no opportunity for rumble or tremor to reach the body of the car or its occupants. It promotes unmistakable smoothness of engine and chassis operation. Chassis is unusually sturdy. In addition to the customary strong, stiff cross members, is a stout torque tube at the front and a wide, strong, integral brace of heavy-gauge metal at the rear. The radiator is also bolted rigidly to the chassis frame side members.

Steering mechanism is especially designed for balloon tires. The king pins are provided with ball thrust bearings rather than the customary plain type.

Chrysler Lockheed four-wheel brakes are optional at extra cost.

All closed bodies are by Fisher, with one-piece vision-ventilating windshield, rapid acting window lifters and high quality upholstery and hardware.

"The four's abilities include a gasoline economy of 25 miles per gallon, acceleration from practically a standstill to 25 miles an hour in eight seconds, and a speed range remarkably adapted for unusual power in hilly country," Chrysler says.

HUPMOBILE CLUB SEDAN HAS NEW BODY LINES.

THE first showing in St. Louis of Hupmobile's new and unusual club sedan on its four-cylinder chassis is being made by the Weber Implement and Automobile Co., Hupmobile distributer. New body lines, more room inside the car, easier entrance and exit, increased comfort and convenience, new upholstery and new patented ventilated windshield with automatic wiper, are among the refinements expected to make this most popular Hupmobile model even more sought after, says George Weber, president of the Weber company. "Though improvements in the car have been many and the value made considerably greater, the price remains as before. The body of the new club sedan is four inches longer than heretofore. Three inches of this is added in the rear compartment. Doors are two inches wider than in the former model. Finish is duco, optional in Hupmobile blue or beige. The car looks larger, longer and more striking. This is accentuated by the trunk rack at the rear. Because of its three doors, tilting seats on entering or leaving the car is not necessary. Since it was introduced in January, 1924, the club sedan has become the most popular Hupmobile ever built. Approximately 75 per cent of all Hup four-cylinder production is devoted to it.

NEW STAR COACH OFFERS NEW SEAT IDEA.

A NEW Star coach has a new idea in coach interior construction. In place of the conventional entrance plan, whereby the back of the rear seat has been folded twice forward, and which has proved the greatest asset to two-door inclosed car construction, Star advances a unique entrance plan which immediately clears a wide entrance and exit to the rear seat. The new construction provides, as have the others, that the back of the seat fold down flat, but, instead of the conventional forward fold of the entire seat, it is so hinged that it may be folded toward the driver's seat. In addition, the coach is unusually roomy, particularly in the rear compartment, so that it is not necessary to "cramp" at all in the rear seats, when the front seats are in position. It has standard equipment of balloon tires, disc wheels, four-wheel brakes, three ventilators and the "million dollar motor." It is highly finished in a tan and black combination, and the body is handsomely striped. It has exceptionally wide windows, and the top is decorated by an art-curved bow in the rear quarters. A long list of accessories come listed as standard equipment on the new Star coach.

FOURSOME CABRIOLET ON GARDNER 8 CHASSIS.

A NEW Gardner eight-in-line foursome cabriolet is being shown by the Tilton-Gardner Motor Co. The main seat is wide, roomy and unusually comfortable. Upholstery is finest quality mohair, harmonizing with outside body finish of two-tone musketeer and matchlock gray duco. The rumble seat in the rear deck, which provides seating capacity for two, is upholstered in machine-buffed Spanish leather. The whole windshield frame is a solid aluminum casting, designed to eliminate the clearest possible driving vision. usual blind corner and give the There is no annoyance from glare caused by sunlight or from strong headlights of cars behind. There are corner post lights for interior illumination, handy compartment back of the main seat for packages and tools, a sliding plate-glass window in the rear for added ventilation. Double-barred bumpers front and rear, five Disteel wheels, five balloon tires, cover for spare tire and snubbers all around are standard.

FOR SCRIPPS-BOOTH CAR OWNERS.

The Oakland Motor Car Co. has taken over the repair parts stock of the former Scripps-Booth division of General Motors and will supply parts for the 22,000 odd Scripps-Booth cars now running, through its dealers.

TO DRIVE CAR ACROSS U. S. WITHOUT STOPPING IT

LIEUT. LEIGH WADE, one of the world fliers, and Linton Wells are expected in St. Louis this week in the course of an effort to drive a Packard eight touring car from New York to Los Angeles without once stopping the forward motion of the car. Never before, so far as is known, has an attempt been made to drive from coast to coast under such circumstances and the feat is many times more difficult than driving across without stopping the engine; in fact, seems impossible, so there doubtless will be much interest in the attempt. It entails much organization work to see that the car is not held up at railroad crossings or by traffic conditions in cities. The drivers will take on oil, water, gasoline and food as they go and will relieve each other at the wheel, driving 24

WHITE TRUCK CO. OFFICE HERE WINS TROPHY.

The St. Louis district office of the White company came into possession last week of a large bronze plaque awarded by Walter C. White, president of the company, in a nation-wide sales contest. The local office sold a greater number of White trucks and busses in proportion to its quota than any other district in the Western region. Manager John L. Grice and his force of 47 employes received the trophy at a dinner at Hotel Chase given by Vice President George F. Russell, who is in charge of the Western region. The name of each employe is engraved on the plaque. Each diner was given a small bronze pin, done in the style of the plaque. "A good truck to sell, good teamwork to sell it and a good supply of astute, careful truck buyers in St. Louis are all reasons for our victory," said Manager Grice in accepting the trophy from Russell. Sales of White trucks in the first six months of this year have almost doubled the best previous six-month record in the St. Louis district, Grice said. Stanley P. Seward, advertising manager of the White company, and his assistant, Charles E. Oswald, came from Cleveland for the dinner, and Vice President Saunders Jones of Atlanta attended. Jones was in charge of the Western region until early this year, and formerly had his headquarters here. After the dinner the trophy was moved to the White company building, 4151-61 Forest Park boulevard.

TOOL BOARD CUTS COSTS FOR ORTHWEIN FIRM.

The Orthwein-Chevrolet Co., 3016 Locust street, has installed a tool display board which has interested W. S. Knudsen, president, and R. H. Grant, general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Co., sufficiently to cause them to make a special visit to the Orthwein service shop. On this board, which is strategically located in the shop, is every device used in repairing and servicing Chevrolet cars, so arranged that mechanics can get necessary tools with the least loss of time. The shop and parts department are so efficiently laid out, and are kept so clean, says Percy Orthwein, president of the firm, that labor costs are cut to a minimum and the firm is able to make good its statement that no car ever was soiled in its shop. Grant is said to have been so interested that he spoke of trying to have Chevrolet dealers throughout the country use the same sort of tool board.

CHANGE IN OFFICERS OF G. M. BERRY, INC.

James E. Newell, who has been vice president of G. M. Berry, Inc., since its organization, has decided to devote all his time to the Newell Motor Car Co., which operates two used car stores at 3015 Locust street and 3422 Locust street. L. M. Stewart, formerly of San Francisco, has been elected vice president and manager of G. M. Berry, Inc., to succeed Newell, and will assume his new duties July 1. Stewart was a former business associate of George M. Berry at the Willys-Overland Co. of Toledo. He was with Willys-Overland several years as retail manager at Louisville, factory representative in North Dakota and Montana, two years as Overland distributer in Western Montana, five and a half years as San Francisco branch manager and latterly vice president of the Willys-Overland Pacific Co. He will give particular attention to development of service for Maxwell and Chrysler owners in the St. Louis territory.

NEW SALES MANAGER FOR BENJAMIN MOTOR CO.

Walter ShawVan has just been appointed sales manager of the Benjamin Motor Co., Velie and Stutz distributer in this district. ShawVan has been in the automobile business for 18 years, and has had much experience in Detroit automobile plants. At one time he was Western supervisor for the Bethlehem Spark Plug Co., in which Charles M. Schwab, who is behind the Stutz company, is interested.

CHANDLER CLIMBS GRADE NO OTHER HAS MADE.

The grade from Salt Lake City to Brighton which for years has defied all efforts to climb it in high, has been conquered at last by a stock Chandler, powered with the Pikes Peak motor and sealed in high gear. Brighton is 4800 feet higher than Salt Lake. The ascent is by a mountainous road, with difficult turns, narrow bridges, and steep grades. In the 26 miles, there are 63 curves, and some of the longest and steepest grades must be attacked immediately after rounding sharp bends. This, of course, means that the grade must be taken at low initial speed, adding greatly to the difficulty of the course. The run was observed by three Salt Lake newspaper men. After a minute examination it was certified that the car was strictly a stock model, with the standard gear ratio of 4.45 to 1.

WILLYS-KNIGHT SIX ON CROSS-COUNTRY TRIP.

A transcontinental motor trip to test the endurance and riding qualities of the new Willys-Knight six-cylinder model was started from Boston. The car is a regular stock touring model which was driven East from the Toledo factory by J. C. MacCracken, who will conduct the car to the Pacific Coast and then return to Boston by way of Los Angeles and the Southern route. The westward journey is by way of Albany, Buffalo, Cleveland, Toledo, South Bend, Chicago, Milwaukee, Davenport, Des Moines, Omaha, Lincoln, Spokane, Portland, San Francisco to Los Angeles.

In addition to four-wheel brakes, a rectifier, which cleans surplus oil and fuel and returns the cleaned oil to the motor base, and an air purifier, are standard equipment.

OFFICERS ARE RE-ELECTED.

Officers have been re-elected by the Association of Cylinder Grinders of Missouri and Illinois as follows:' President, A. R. Solomon, Modern Auto Repair Co., St. Louis; vice president, Oscar F. Bloebaum, St. Charles, Mo.; secretary, J. E. Percival, Percival Auto Repair Co., St. Louis; treasurer, Edward Emme, H. and H. Machine and Motor Parts Co.; sergeant-at-arms, Edwin P. Mertes, K. and M. Machine Works.

JEWETT IN SPECTACULAR CLIMBING FEAT.

A stock Jewett touring car has just been driven from Modesto, Cal., to the floor of the Yosemite Valley sealed in high gear. The feat was accomplished by W. A. Jones, Paige-Jewett dealer in Modesto. Modesto trade officials checked the Jewett before the start and sealed the differential and transmission gear cases. The car took the most difficult grades and the sharpest turns with ease and always had power to reserve. The seals were inspected again on arrival at Yosemite. California motor authorities vouch for the statement that this is the first time this trip has been made by any car in high gear. Two more notable hill-climbing victories are among Jewett's recent achievements. On Decoration day a Jewett special that won highest laurels last year made the best time up a long and difficult hill at Port Jefferson, N. Y. At Rockford, Ill., June 7, in a contest open to all makes listing at $2000 or less, a stock Jewett was first.

HUDSON-ESSEX DEALERS IN NEW SHOWROOMS.

The Steinger & Tuthill Hudson-Essex Co. has bought the new sales and service building at 3438 South Grand boulevard formerly occupied by the Hambuechen Paige-Jewett Co. The building is to be extensively redecorated, and then will be used for displaying Hudson and Essex cars and for office quarters. The maintenance department, for day and night service, will be continued just around the corner at Gravois and Cherokee.

NEW RICKENBACKER RECORD

"Cannon Ball" Baker has just piloted a standard stock Rickenbacker Six phaeton to a new road mark between Chicago and Detroit. Plowing through more than thirty miles of sandy highways, gliding around the corners at forty miles per hour, and after a delay of six minutes at railroad crossings waiting for trains to pass, Baker drove his Rickenbacker six car into Detroit 5 hours, 28 minutes and 30 seconds after checking out from Chicago. The 270.5 miles were driven at an average of 49.4 miles an hour. This beats the time of and Chicago by 1 hour 52 minutes the fastest train between Detroit 30 seconds. Eight hours is considered fast time for the ordinary motorist in an ordinary automobile. The run was made in the black of night when traffic is at its lowest ebb.

ALL DAY LONG AT TOP SPEED

All day long you could drive the Hupmobile Eight at top speed, if you had the clear road to do it on.

A speed spurt is one thing, but it takes a wonderful car to hold top speed hour after hour.

The Hupmobile Eight can stand it, and you can stand it—and right there are two of the new things this car brings to motoring:—

Soundness and endurance not ordinarily built into any but racing cars; an ease of handling and riding, a certainty of control, you won't find in one car out of fifty.

A new kind of car, with a new kind of results—that's what the Hupmobile Eight is.

HUPMOBILE EIGHT

The Scrappiest Six on Wheels Today

We now have with us the scrappiest Six you've ever laid eyes on—beautifully designed, splendidly built, powered by one of the smoothest six-cylinder motors that ever pulled a hard hill in high—

The new Gardner Six.

Member of a famous family—and a mighty husky member it is. Needlessly stout and sturdy, perhaps, for the mere boulevard tourist—

But a godsend for the man who likes to take sand, mud, gravel, rough roads and steep hills as they come—and lick 'em to a standstill.

This new Gardner Six can stand a lot of that kind of going because it's got the right stuff in every inch of it. Six-inch frame. Six cross-members—two of the tubular type. Rear springs almost half the total wheelbase length.

Altogether more beauty, more style, more comfort, more power, more performance, more durability, more happy miles between the front bumper and tail light than $1395 ever before bought in an automobile—and you don't need opera glasses to see it.

Come in and make us prove it.

Unusually attractive dealer proposition open for St. Louis and St. Louis County. Get in touch with us.

MUCH STATE ROAD AND BRIDGE WORK PLANNED

Start to Be Made at Graveling No. 47 South From Warrenton, Mo.

Bids were received at Jefferson City Friday on many more miles of State highway construction. Included in the work to be let were important construction on Route No. 12, the south of the river highway from St. Louis to Kansas City; on No. 14, the St. Louis-Springfield-Joplin primary road; on No. 8, the Hannibal-Macon-Chillicothe-St. Joseph primary highway, and a number of others.

In the St. Louis Territory.

One project bid for was six miles of 20-foot gravel on No. 12, west from Union in Franklin County, and three stretches of 20-foot gravel, aggregating nine miles, in Osage County, on the sections of No. 12 between Mount Sterling and Linn and between Linn and Loose Creek.

Bids were received for three miles of 30-graded dirt on No. 14 north and south from Conway, in Laclede County, and for four and one-half miles of 30-foot graded dirt on No. 14 between Phillipsburg and Lebanon, in the same county.

Of interest to many St. Louisans will be the news that bids were asked for four and seven-tenths miles of 20-foot gravel on No. 19 between Cuba and Steelville, and for bridges over the Meramec River and Yadkin River. The Meramec bridge will have five 110-foot concrete arches.

A four and four-tenths mile stretch of 12-foot gravel is to be laid in Warren County on No. 47, between Warrenton and Hopewell. No. 47 branches off from No. 12 (the Manchester road) at Villa Ridge and runs to Washington, where there is a ferry, and continues on the other side of the Missouri River through Dutzow, Marthasville and Hopewell to Warrenton, where it intersects No. 2, the primary St. Louis-Kansas City highway. From Warrenton No. 47 runs north to Hawk's Point then east to Troy, where it connects with No. 9, the St. Louis-Wentzville-Hannibal highway.

Other Road Projects.

The new work on No. 8 will include: 9 6-10 miles of 18-foot concrete between Stewartsville and Cameron, in De Kalb county, and 5 2-10 miles of 30-foot graded dirt between Callao and Macon, in Macon county.

A concrete bridge 339 feet long, with 3 80-foot arches, will be built over Sinking Creek on No. 19, between Salem and Eminence.

Nearly 5 miles of No. 15 are to be graveled in Camden county south from Mack's Creek toward Tunis. No. 15 runs from the Iowa line through Edina, Shelbyville, Paris, Mexico and Fulton to Jefferson City and through Eldon, Linn Creek, Tunis and Buffalo to Springfield.

3 years old still looks new!

"One afternoon, some years ago, I was admiring my neighbor's car. I thought it was new until he told me it was more than two years old; and that he kept it looking new by cleaning it occasionally with Common Sense. So when I bought my car, a little later, I also got a bottle of Common Sense, and used it on the car about once every five or six weeks. My car is now three years old, and the finish is perfect; with a lustre that is richer, and if anything, more beautiful than the day I first saw it in the salesroom."

If your car looks dull, and perhaps a bit commonplace, go over it with Common Sense. It is so easy to use. You will be amazed with the quick, brilliant, lasting results. And remember, it is not a "finish" nor the false lustre of a layer of wax, but your car's own original, permanent finish, sparkling again. Repainting saved and a better job done, at a cost of only $1.00.

Your favorite Accessory dealer or Druggist can get it for you readily if you insist. Or direct from the Laboratory, postpaid, $1.00.

The Four Major Reasons

To those familiar with the chief reasons for Graham Brothers remarkable growth, these four points loom most conspicuously in explanation of their leadership and lower prices:

1. Price advantage.
2. Exceptional quality.
3. Power and dependability of Dodge Brothers Engine.
4. Character of Dodge Brothers Dealer organization.

Better than a written guarantee of continuous satisfaction, these reasons are too fundamentally important to escape the attention of judicious truck buyers.

If we had a car!

"If we had a car," says Mr. Average Man, "my wife could drive me to work in the morning. That would cut the time it takes me to get there by 15 minutes. I'd have an hour and a half more leisure each week and I'd save carfare:—

"My wife could do the family marketing where prices are lower. If we had a car we would save enough on the food bills to pay for gas and oil:—

"Getting ready for the theater or a social call wouldn't be the hurried affair it is now. If we had a car, we could get there quickly, conveniently, economically.

"Then, too, if we had a car and could spend our week-ends in the country, the Summer wouldn't seem nearly so long or so hot. Just to get away for one day in seven seems like having a weekly vacation, and it is certain the children would enjoy it even more than anyone, if we had a car."

RADIO FOR THE AMATEUR AND EXPERT

LOG OF STATION KSD ROSTER OF NOTABLES

In the Three Years of Its Existence It Has Broadcast 1434 Programs.

Station KSD, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, completed its third year last Friday. The log of the station shows that from June 26, 1922, to June 26, 1925, it broadcast 1434 programs, not including its daily market and news service. Of these 444 were put on the air in the first year, 409 in the second year and 581 in the third year.

In the three years, 771 programs were sent out direct from the KSD studio and 663 from points outside the studio, including 22 from outside St. Louis.

The number of individuals who took part in KSD programs was 1383. This is exclusive of the personnels of orchestras and bands and stage performance ensembles. The participants in the programs represented 15 countries, 25 states of the Union and 115 American cities and all five races. The station broadcast 45 concerts of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra and 37 performances of the Municipal Opera.

The service given by the station included complete broadcasting of both national conventions last year, and many addresses by notable men, including Presidents Harding and Coolidge and candidates on all tickets in the last national election. The New York String Quartet and Francis Macmillen, violinist, performed for radio for the first time in the KSD studio.

Other noted artists who have been broadcast by KSD are:

Tamaki Miura, soprano; Marguerite Namara, soprano; Maria Ivogun, soprano; Helen Traubel, soprano; Elena Gerhardt, soprano; Carolina Lazzari, contralto; Paul Althouse, tenor; Olga Samaroff, pianist; Alfred Cortot, pianist; Ethel Leginska, pianist; Ignaz Friedman, pianist; Marie Kryl, pianist; Rudolph Ganz, pianist; Ossip Gabrilowitsch, pianist; Percy Grainger, pianist; Joseph Schwartz, baritone; Arthur Middleton, baritone; Jacques Thibaud, violinist; Michel Gusikoff, violinist; Max Steindel, violoncellist; Julia Claussen, mezzo-soprano; Sascha Jacobsen, violinist; Alfred G. Robyn, organist; Charles M. Courboin, organist; Josef Rosenblatt, tenor; Elizabeth Kerr, soprano; Ulysses Lappas, tenor; Gladys Swarthout, contralto; Mario Valle, baritone; Elda Vettori, soprano; Max Pantelieff, baritone; Maria Luisa Escobar, soprano; Manuel Salazar, tenor; Frances Peralta, soprano; Jeannette Vreeland, soprano; Alice Gentle, soprano, and Jose Mojica, tenor.

During the week WOC, at Davenport, Ia., was authorized to increase its power to 5 KW, making the third broadcaster to go on this maximum power. The others are WLW and WSAI at Cincinnati.

At the same time, WEAF, New York, was permitted to increase its wattage to 3 KW., and WCBD, at Zion, Ill., went up to 2500 watts.

Winding of Coils.

To space wires on coils the correct distance, start the coil with thread and wire, at the same time applying considerably more tension to the wire than when no thread is used. After the coil is wound and the end of the wire fastened, the thread may be unwound.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The Post-Dispatch Radio Department cannot undertake to answer questions by mail.

Q. I have added two stages of radio frequency amplification to my regenerative receiver. The secondaries of the radio frequency amplifying transformers are wound with 50 turns of No. 24 wire. These are shunted by .0005 condensers. The set tunes too sharp. Only one-quarter of the condensers are needed to get up to 545 meters. Do I need smaller condensers or must the windings be changed? E. W. P.

A. To obtain the proper balance between inductance and capacity one must try a number of combinations until the set covers the broadcast range of wave lengths. In your case it appears that you need smaller condensers. Try .00025 mfds. Before buying new condensers reduce the number of turns of wire on the coils and take several plates off of the .0005 condensers. Experiment with various arrangements of inductances and capacities until you have found the right combination. It is impossible to recommend the windings and condensers to use in a radio frequency transformer without mentioning specific apparatus or going into minute details, and even then the constructor will deviate slightly from specifications and his set consequently will tune a little too high or too low.

Q. Will you please print a good diagram of a one-stage amplifier and a list of the parts necessary to build it? Q. H.

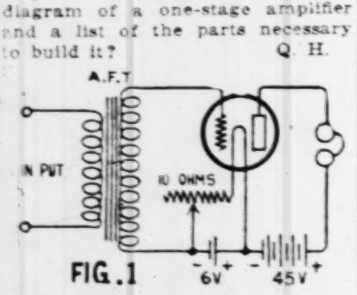

FIG. 1

A. A diagram of a one-stage amplifier is shown in Fig. 1. The parts necessary are an audio frequency amplifying transformer, 3½ or 4½ to 1 ratio, UV 201-A tube, 10 ohm rheostat, tube socket and 45-volt B battery. If you use only 45 volts on the plate of the tube no C battery is necessary providing you follow the drawing carefully.

Q. My radio set is not working right. What should be the length of a single wire antenna, including lead-in and ground wire? N. C. E.

A. You have not told us what kind of a set you are using. Generally the total length of the antenna from the far end to the ground connection should be about 125 feet, but don't warry if yours is a little shorter or a little longer than that. If your set is not working as it should we would suggest that you call a radio repair man and have him look it over. There are so many little things that can happen to a set that it would be impossible to suggest what might be the trouble unless you could give some information that would indicate what is wrong.

Q. Will you kindly publish a wiring diagram of a crystal set with a one-stage audio frequency amplifier? A. T.

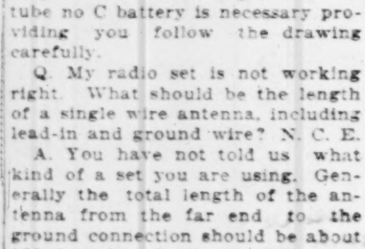

FIG. 2

A. A diagram of a crystal set with a one-stage amplifier is shown in Fig 2. This type of set is exceptionally good for the reception of local stations. If the crystal detector is very sensitive, and the set is constructed properly, the combination will be capable of picking up several of the distant high-power broadcasting stations. For details of the amplifier see the answer to the question asked by Q. H.

Q. Where can I get some Q. S. T. cards for a friend of mine who lives in Sidney, Australia? E. O.

A. Cards used by amateurs to acknowledge the reception of other stations may be obtained from a number of printing companies that advertise in the columns of QST, the official amateur publication. A copy of this magazine can be obtained from local magazine stands or by writing to the A. R. R. L. headquarters at Hartford, Conn.

Q. A coil and a condenser of .0005 mfd capacity in parallel have a minimum tuning range of 200 meters to 600 meters. What would be the minimum and maximum range of the same coil with a .00025 variable condenser across it? L. C. La P.

A. About 200 to 400. Read the answer to the question asked by E. W. P.

Q. I have a four-tube set and use WD 12 tubes with 6 ohm rheostats. I wish to use a 6-volt tube, either a 201-A or a 200. Can these be used with six volts without changing the rheostat? A. C.

A. If you desire more volume of signals we would recommend the use of 201-A tubes instead of WD 12s. All that you need to do to make this change is to insert the 201-A tubes in place of the others and use a 6-volt A battery. Avoid the use at one time of two different kinds of tubes. The 200 is a more sensitive detector than the 201-A. However, the plate and filament voltages are more critical than those required for the 201-A, hence our recommendation of 201-A tubes throughout.

NEW ARRIVALS ON THE RADIO MART

The Walbert Manufacturing Co. of Chicago has a new light on tuning, in form of a Panelite that can be mounted on the panel of a set so as to throw a light over the tuning dial. The Panelite in many respects is like an automobile dashlight. It is easily adjusted to throw the light in any position and can be mounted on the panel in a few minutes. It is as simple to mount as a telephone jack. All that is necessary is a 9-16 inch hole in the panel. Insert the light and tighten a nut that fits on the back. Connections are made to the A battery leads in the set. The bulk used is small and it only consumes 1-3 of an ampere.

This company is also making the Walbert Filament Lockswitch, which provides a simple and positive filament control and in addition the exclusive feature of permitting the operator to protect his set and tubes during his absence by removal of the key or plunger of the switch, thereby locking his filament circuit and making it impossible to light the tubes. The switch can be installed on a set in a few minutes and it is mounted through a single hole, eliminating superfluous drilling of panels. All parts of this switch are highly nickeled.

A highly efficient loud speaker unit of the bi-polar type, adaptable to either loud speaker horn or victrola, and embodying many desirable features, has been placed on the market by the Inter-Ocean Radio Corporation of Jersey City under the trade name "Operola." Its acoustical design is arranged not only to give very good volume but also to assure a mellow tone at the proper pitch. A thumb screw on the back of the case permits adjustment to prevent possibility of chattering, due to overloading when used with powerful receiving sets and unusually strong B battery current. The unit is convenient in size, although containing an oversize diaphragm. The case is of black molded bakelite.

Wave-Length Range.

Two simple principles applied to the average receiving set will enable the operator to keep in tune with all waves from 200 to 600 meters. If a coil of wire is placed in series with the antenna, it has virtually the same effect as increasing the wave of the antenna, thereby making it possible to pick up higher wave lengths. The larger the coil the greater will be the increase in wave length. If a variable condenser is placed in series with the antenna or ground wire, the wave length range of the set is reduced. The smaller the capacity of the condenser the greater will be the cut in wave length. To place a coil in series with the antenna, connect the lead-in wire to one end of the coil and run a wire from the other terminal of the coil to the antenna binding post on the set. A series condenser is connected the same way.

Value of Two Aerials.

It is a good plan to employ two aerials, one a short one for local stations, the other a long one for distant reception, with a convenient change-over switch.

NEW ALTERNATING CURRENT TUBE

Instructions for Changing Wiring of Receiver to Eliminate "A" Battery.

By WILLIS P. CORWIN, of KSD Staff.

Radio fans have been waiting patiently for the new vacuum tubes that can be operated direct from the house lighting circuit, as is an electric iron or toaster. A number of such tubes have been designed and tested in the research laboratory, while only one has actually been placed on the market. This is the new McCullough A. C. tube, which is under production at the present time.

The internal construction of the McCullough tube is very similar to that of the ordinary tube except that the filament is inserted in a small porcelain tube and the complete filament unit is inclosed in a metal tube. This metal tube is the electron emission element which is heated by the filament. This particular arrangement makes it necessary to bring the filament wires out of the top of the tube. The advantage gained by this assembly is that no actual connection is made between the wires carrying the alternating current and the electron emission element.

A small step down transformer such as is used for running toy electrical apparatus and ringing door bells is required to light the filaments of the A. C. tubes. This transformer should have a maximum capacity of at least 75 watts. The secondary should be equipped with taps for regulating the amount of current flowing through the filaments. These are usually made to cover a range of from four to six volts. When using from one to three A. C. tubes, four volts is the correct value. Four or five tubes require five volts and six tubes or more six volts.

The connections for the filament leads and transformer are shown in figure 1. All of the secondary or filament leads should be at least No. 14 wire. Smaller wire would become hot and cause more or less trouble. The filaments are all connected in parallel. One side of the two main leads from the transformer should be grounded to kill the alternating current hum. If a bad hum is noticeable place the transformer farther away from the receiver. The manufacturer of the tubes recommends that the step-down transformer be placed a foot or more from the receiver.

A few slight changes are necessary to adapt the A C tubes to the ordinary receiver. The negative filament terminals at the tube sockets should all be connected together. This connection is then used for all grid returns as is shown in Fig. 2. The positive filament terminals at the sockets are left open, as there is no connection to these. The positive lug on the base of the tube is a blank. The grid return from the detector tube is attached directly to the negative filament bus bar. The grid returns from the radio and audio frequency amplifiers are also connected to the negative filament lead, but through the correct "C" battery. A "C" battery is quite necessary when using the A C tubes, as it is not possible to obtain any grid bias through the potential drop across a filament rheostat.

The grid and plate connections to all tubes are wired as in the ordinary receivers. Plate voltages up to 150 volts may be used on the plates of the amplifiers and from 45 to 90 volts on the detector tube. The A C tubes will work in any kind of a circuit. The manufacturer has not furnished a chart showing the "C" battery voltages that are required for the various voltages on the plates of the amplifiers, so we assume that the well-known bias voltages are adaptable to the new tubes. These can best be determined by experiment.

A set of the McCullough tubes were tried out a short time ago in the KSD laboratory and the claims of the manufacturer were found to be justified. More volume was obtained with the A. C. tubes than when ordinary tubes were used. The receiver tuned slightly better when the A C tubes were used, due possibly to the increased volume of signals. It was found that the maximum volume was determined more by the capacity of the loud speaker than by that of the tubes. The naturalness of tone was exceptionally good.

A very slight a. c. hum was noticeable when the set was not in tune. However, when the set was tuned to resonance the hum disappeared entirely. The presence of the hum when the set was untuned might have been due to the alterations made in the receiver or to the fact that we used only a 50-watt step down transformer which was not quite large enough to handle the load without excessive heating.

ALIFORNIA LEADS IN RADIO FIELD

s More Stations Than Other States, but Congestion Is Greatest in Middle West.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Cali nia with 47 licensed stations is present leading the United tes in the matter of radio broad ting. With just two stations less Illinois second, and then comes nsylvania with 40 is third. Ohio h 35 voices is fourth and New k with 34 is fifth. Nevada re ins the only State without a adcasting station.

These facts were disclosed by the partment of Commerce which the first time issued a radio vice bulletin listing all of the adcasting stations according to states and cities in which they located.

An interesting observation made the broadcasting situation is half of all the radio voices of United States are located in states, the five mentioned and s, Missouri, Michigan and a. The Middle West, therefore, maintaining the lead over the r sections of the country in erection of stations. California erected more new stations in the past year than any other state, with Washington close on its heels. Washington now is in tenth place with 19 licensed broadcasters. The list of states follows:

California, 47; Illinois, 45; Pennsylvania, 40; Ohio, 35; New York, 34; Texas, 27; Missouri, 24; Michigan, 23; Iowa, 22; Washington, 21; Wisconsin, 18; Massachusetts, 17; Nebraska and Indiana, 16 each; New Jersey, 15; Minnesota, 14; Colorado and Tennessee, 10 each; Kansas, 9; Oklahoma, 8; Arkansas, Florida and Oregon, 7 each; Georgia, Montana, North Dakota, Rhode Island and Utah, 6 each; the District of Columbia, Virginia and Maryland, 5 each; Idaho, New Mexico and South Dakota, 4 each; Kentucky, New Hampshipe, North Carolina, Vermont, West Virginia and the Philippines, 2 each; and Delaware, Wyoming, Alaska, Hawaii and Porto Rico, 1 each. In addition there are 10 portation stations licensed by the department, all of them using class A licenses.

Of the American cities, Chicago, with 16 broadcasting plants officially listed as belonging to the Illinois city, leads New York City, which has 12 stations. Philadelphia comes third with 11 stations and New Orleans and St. Louis are tied for fourth place with nine stations each.

MUSTER DAY PROGRAM FEATURE OF THE WEEK

Great Chain of Stations, Including KSD Will Aid in Demonstration of National Defense.

The most notable feature on the schedule announced for KSD this week will be the "Muster Day" program on the evening of July 4, broadcast by Station KSD and 28 other American radio stations. This program will be given chiefly at Washington, D. C., but there will be portions taking place in New York City, Chicago, and at other points throughout the United States where corps commanders are stationed.

The nature of the program is similar to that of September 28 last and is a test of the communications facilities of the United States. The program will begin at 8 o'clock, Central Standard Time, opening with exercises in Washington, in which Major-General Charles McK. Saltzman, chief signal officer of the army, will be the master of ceremonies. Gen. Saltzman's address will be followed by a short address by Acting Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis, and following that there will be an address by the Vice President of the United States, General Charles G. Dawes, who will speak from Chicago.

Following Vice President Dawes' address there will be a conversation between Gen. Dawes and Gen. John J. Pershing, the latter talking from Washington and Gen. Dawes from Chicago. Then Gen. Pershing will address the public and the officers of the army, talking about 10 minutes, and he will be followed by W. S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., speaking from New York. Following his address, Gifford in New York and Gen. Pershing in Washington, will converse, and then the Chief of Staff of the Army will receive reports from the commanding Generals of the various corps areas at different points in the United States.

The exercises will be concluded at about 9:30, with an address by Gen. Saltzman.

The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. has linked up various stations by land wire in such a way that the 29 stations broadcasting the exercises will get all of these voices and will broadcast them on their respective wave lengths simultaneously the time varying according to the location of the station. This will be one of the largest link-ups not only of broadcasting stations, but points from which the matter to be broadcast is to come in the history of radio telephony and will, it is hoped, excel in perfection of detail and quality of transmission the remarkably successful test of Sept. 28 last.

Another outstanding feature of the week is the address scheduled for tomorrow night by the noted American actress, Margaret Anglin. Miss Anglin who is to take the principal role in Sophocles' "Electra" to be presented next week and the week following at the new Garden Theater in University City, will discuss the modernization of the Greek drama in her radio talk at KSD. She will be introduced to the radio audience by Flint Garrison, president of the Garden Theater Association, the organization which is bringing Miss Anglin to this city.

Other events of the week will be the usual theater and hotel concerts with a short studio program on Friday night at 8:30 by two infant artists, each five years old, Billy Boles, pianist, who plays classics, and Tommy von Achen, juvenile yodeler, who already has been heard by KSD listeners. A short talk on "A Safe Fourth" will be given on Friday evening by Karl Christine of the National Safety Council, and on the same evening there will be a program of whistling with guitar and banjo accompaniment given by E. A. Thurman, Luther Vogeler, S. Clark, Charles Dietz and Frank Suda.

Bright Surfaces Best.

The parts of a radio set work best when they are bright. A dull surface usually means that corrosion has taken place, which offers resistance to high-frequency radio currents. As radio-frequency currents travel on the surface, it may pay to brighten the parts of the set sometimes.

COLLEGE GIVES RADIO PRIZE

Recognition of undergraduate research work in radio telegraphy was made at the one hundred and twenty-ninth commencement of Union College, when Edmund B. Redington, of Waverly, N. Y., a senior in the class of 1925, was awarded the Bailey prize, given each year to the senior who contributes most to the advancement of the college. The prize is in the form of a silver loving cup.

The particular bit of research for which the prize was awarded consisted of making a radio transmitter oscillate on the extremely low wave length of 3.8 meters. This was accomplished by using standard equipment in the form of two 50-watt tubes. Previously oscillators had been made to operate on four to five meters, but until the Union College Radio Club developed its low wave length oscillator, it had been necessary to dispense with the tube sockets and also to remove the tube bases. It had also been deemed essential to nullify the internal tube capacity. The oscillator devised at Union College, however, used this capacity rather than an external condenser, and by using extremely short connections between the tube sockets they were able to obtain an unusually short oscillatory circuit, which, of course, determines the frequencies.

For the Notebook.

Radio receiving troubles are caused by installing unmatched parts.

An aerial that is badly corroded can be cleaned with a rag saturated with gasoline.

All circuits must be at least slightly regenerative to obtain maximum distance and volume.

When working about the set, always throw off the switch and disconnect the battery wires from the batteries.

Spliced wires should be soldered to insure a permanently good electrical contact. The wire corrodes in time, making the contact less conductive, and causing loss of signal strength.

To find the positive and negative posts on a storage battery, dip the wires in a dilute solution of salt in water. Bubbles will form most copiously on the wire attached to the negative terminal of the battery.

Lighting Plant at Garden Theater Is Unique

WHEN the new Garden Theater opens a week from tomorrow night with Margaret Anglin's production of the "Electra" of Sophocles, it will place in operation a lighting system which, according to the management, will be more powerful and up to date than that of any other theater, indoor or open air, in the city. The current will comprise a connected load of no less than 1000 amperes. Two engineering publications are said to have sent representatives to prepare articles on the installation.

The quantity of current employed will be one and one-half times as large as that consumed by all the rest of University City. Three miles of special cables have been strung from the transformer heads at Olive street and Spring avenue. The power will be taken from the Cahokia plant rather than from the Keokuk cables, the reason being given that the East St. Louis current is steadier and less affected by weather conditions.

Footlights Eliminated.

ONE innovation in the system is that there will be no footlights, which the directors regard as obsolete and obstructive to the stage. Instead, the principal illumination will come from long-distance projecting spotlights erected on pylons on either side of the stage, and so screened as not to annoy the eyes of the audience.

The entire control of the lighting system will be concentrated in a small pit facing the middle of the stage, instead of at one side or the other, as is usual. The operator at the Garden Theater will be able to see exactly what effects he is obtaining, instead of guessing at them. The primary colors, red, yellow and blue, together with white, may be co-ordinated by means of dimmers and switches so that, like a painter with a palette, and nuance of tint, quality and intensity may be obtained.

Cluster of 42 Spotlights.

THE approaches, parking space, fountains, terraces and sunken gardens will be illuminated by a cluster of 42 spotlights, each of 2000-candle power, which will be mounted on a single tower 60 feet high, and will light an area equal to four city blocks.

Floodlights of various tints will illuminate the auditorium, and at the end of each row of seats there will be lights to cast a soft glow over the steps and aisles. Many of these features, it is asserted, will have their initial introduction at the Garden Theater.

Beethoven Conservatory Concert.

The fifty-fourth annual graduation concerts of the Beethoven Conservatory of Music will be held on Wednesday and Thursday afternoons at Vandervoort Music Hall. Diplomas and medals will be awarded to 37 graduates and postgraduates.

Radio-Cinema Not a Peril For Theater

Science Likely to Fail in Transporting Personality, but Device Might Rid Playhouses of Undesirables.

By HEYWOOD BROUN,
Drama Critic of the New York World.

NEW YORK, June 27.

IT is reported that the day is near when the visual image of the player can be carried on the waves of the air as well as the sound of his voice, and that soon we may all watch the unfolding of drama from an easy chair, each of us in his own parlor.

Some of the managers are already alarmed. William A. Brady has spoken pessimistically in public of the future of the theater in the face of the new menace. Though I might be inclined to weep at the disaster which threatens the managers, the confusion of the ticket speculators would almost atone for the new dispensation.

But even though I try to see the new form of entertainment with the eye of the future, I am not yet convinced that the theater is about to pass. Certainly in its present form radio is not thrilling when it attempts to broadcast a play. I have heard farce, tragedy and light comedy sent through the air, and although I was wholly familiar with two of the pieces, they were all but incomprehensible with sight of the actors and the action missing.

Wee Actors on Wall Paper.

EVEN if the day does come when we may see tiny figures strutting about upon our wall paper, I think invention may lag and fail in the transportation of personality. A reasonably amusing substitute for the theater is conceivable, but something just as good is still too far away for any member of this generation to grow concerned.

Nor does it seem to me that this invasion of the dramatic field by the radio would kill the very flower of the theater. Granted that managers, as we know them, might suffer severely, that does not mean that art would also sicken. Personally, I should be pleased to think of a day in which "Abie's Irish Rose" could be shown to all its many millions of admirers in a single evening and then forgotten.

It seems fair to assume that the radio-cinema, or whatever it is to be called, would concern itself chiefly with drama of the broadest possible appeal. There would still remain a public eager to attend more specialized performances and to watch subtle players appear in person.

They Never Would Be Missed.

ONE cannot be sure, but there is at least a chance that in such a straining and selection audiences might be purged of many who never would be missed. The constant talkers might be content to remain at home where they could gurgle and comment at top voice.

And with them might depart the extremely susceptible who see pornography in every flare of frankness and most flashes of fun. These people might feel more secure in doing their theatergoing at home where censorship could be achieved by the simple act of pressing a button or twirling a dial.

And those who arrive late—perhaps they would be content to watch a canned comedy rather than to step and trip upon the feet and ankles of their prompter fellows along about the middle of the first act or the beginning of the second.

Best Plays Written for Fun.

ANY form of aerially syndicated drama must make its greatest appeal to those of little faith and small enthusiasm in the theater proper. There would remain a smaller band but a group more sensitive and responsive.

I do not believe that the very great rewards which are possible in the theater have much to do with the brilliance of the American drama in recent seasons. I am sure, for instance, that while the authors of "What Price Glory?" have enjoyed the experience of prospering greatly, neither was animated in the beginning by the thought that he was engaged upon a play which was likely to be a popular success of any considerable proportions. And much that is best in the American theater has been done modestly and for the fun and adventure of the thing rather than for the great rewards.

More Brains and Less Money.

I AM not at all certain that affluence has not marred many a movement in the native theater. When any producer (or producing group) grows rich he does not thereupon become more courageous and risk experiment. On the contrary, he turns conservative and seeks out sure successes lest the pile of chips in front of him diminish.

A little grinding poverty would help a great deal in the New York theater. Certainly we might easily have more amusing musical shows if only the producers were com-

"Dolly Varden" Next at Municipal Theater

THE Municipal Theater Association's sixth production of the summer will be a musical comedy entitled "Dolly Varden," by Julian Edwards and Stanislaus Stange, which will have its opening performance tomorrow evening. Tonight will be the last chance to hear Reginald de Koven's admirable romantic comic opera, "Rob Roy."

Edwards, an English composer, contributed "Princess Chic" to last summer's repertory. He was also the composer of such successful stage pieces as "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," and "Elfinella," besides symphonies and overtures. He was conductor of the Royal English Opera. Stange, who transformed Shaw's "Arms and the Man" into the libretto of "The Chocolate Soldier," wrote the book and lyrics of "Dolly Varden." This work was first produced in America at the Herald Square Theater, New York, with Lulu Glaser as star of the cast. Those taking part in the Municipal Theater's presentation will be as follows:

Capt. Richard Belleville	Leo de Hierapolis
Capt. Horace Harcourt	Forrest Huff
Lord Gayspark	John E. Young
John Fairfax	Detmar Poppen
Lieut. Marlow	James Clark
Lieut. Gragsby	Leonard Berry
Letitia Fairfax	Yvonne D'Arle
Lady Lucette	Elva Magnus
Lady Alice	Clara Schlief
Dolly Varden	Eleanor Henry

Story of the Work.

THE Dolly Varden of the operetta is an orphan who has been left in the care of one John Fairfax. Under the terms of her father's will she is to lose her inheritance unless she marries a man of Fairfax's choosing. As a safeguard against an interloper's winning her hand, the young lady has been brought up in a secluded country place where she has met no men except those approved by Fairfax. It is his intention to wed Dolly Varden and thus obtain her fortune.

The action takes place in the gardens of the Fairfax home, Beauchamp Towers, London. The time is a day in June, 1725. As the opera opens plans are under way for the marriage of Fairfax's sister, Letitia, to Lord Gayspark, a self-styled wit, who confesses that he is being married for his title and is marrying for money. His Majesty's ship, the Dolphin, has anchored nearby, and Capt. Harcourt of the navy visits the Fairfax home. He proceeds to fall in love with Letitia, though he has been known as one who looks upon the fair sex with little favor.

Troubled Course of Love.

DOLLY VARDEN, brought to the Fairfax home for the wedding, makes her entrance "walking in a sedan chair." Fairfax has evolved a contrivance whereby she may walk without being seen, so that her charms will not beguile any man. A young army officer, Capt. Dick Belleville, catches a glimpse of her feet and ankles and contrives to see her face. These are enough to inspire him with matrimonial ambitions. The first act is devoted principally to Fairfax's attempts to thwart the affair between Dolly and Capt. Belleville.

In the second act, through the efforts of Harcourt and Gayspark, Fairfax is led to believe that it is Letitia and not Dolly whom Belleville loves. While trying to make sure that there will be no interference with the plans for his own marriage, Fairfax falls into a trap prepared by Harcourt and unwittingly gives his consent to the marriage of Dolly and Belleville. This is done by having Dolly masquerade as Letitia and informing Fairfax that it is Belleville, and not Gayspark whom she loves. In the presence of witnesses he consents to an elopement. Through the activity of the principal characters, Gayspark is eliminated as Letitia's prospective husband and the opera ends with Harcourt stepping into the place made vacant.

At the Movie Houses

DELMONTE—Madge Bellamy in "Wings of Youth." A dancing act on the stage.

KINGS AND RIVOLI—"Up the Ladder," with Virginia Valli and George Fawcett.

LOEW'S STATE—"Man and Maid," with Lew Cody and Renee Adoree. On the stage, Rita Owen, dancer and Joe Thomas' Saxotette.

GRAND CENTRAL, LYRIC SKYDOME AND CAPITOL—Colleen Moore in "The Desert Flower."

MISSOURI—Richard Dix in "The Shock Punch." Paul Biese's orchestra on the stage.

BROADWAY SHOW BOOKED FOR TEXAS STATE FAIR

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DALLAS, Tex., June 27.—Booking a Broadway musical show for a state fair is considered in the theatrical world as somewhat of a new departure. It has been accomplished by the managers of the Texas State Fair, which opens here Oct. 10.

"Sky High," a current New York production, together with its company of 108, led by the comedian, Willie Howard, has been engaged to christen a new $500,000 auditorium, which is now under construction at the fair grounds. There will be two performances a day for 16 days.

The Theatrical Calendar

MUNICIPAL THEATER—Tomorrow night, opening performance of "Dolly Varden," a musical comedy in two acts, by Julian Edwards and Stanislaus Stange. Tonight, concluding performance of Reginald de Koven's romantic comic opera, "Roy Roy."

GRAND OPERA HOUSE—The Jack de Sylva Revue and eight other variety acts, together with "Chalk Marks," starring Marguerite Snow, as a photoplay feature.

LIBERTY MUSIC HALL—"The Broadway Revue."

Nothing But Precedents, Sterling E. Edmunds Points Out, Disguising the Savagery of Power Over Weaker States.

"The Lawless Law of Nations," by Sterling E. Edmunds, LL. D., professor of international law in St. Louis University Law School. Published by John Byrne & Co., Washington.

Reviewed by William F. Woerner of the St. Louis Bar.

THE title itself flashes the salient thought stressed throughout this book. Indeed, one might almost say that in its 427 pages the author puts and answers two conundrums: (1) When is the law not the law?—When it is the law of nations. (2) Why is a nation not a nation?—Because it is "the sovereign state" (in the Edmundsian sense below indicated).

Sedulously searching through all authoritative writings, legal lore and historical developments pertaining to his subject, the author carefully deduces what was or now is claimed to be the accepted law governing the external relations of the Powers toward one another—that is to say, what constitutes the structure known as the law of nations.

Whereupon, undaunted by the fact that he dissents from the works of the accepted master-writers on the subject, and the cant of Janus-faced statesmen for centuries, this iconoclastic author then proceeds with refreshing fearlessness and vigor to attack and smash the pretended existence of the entire structure of international law, using for this purpose the powerful sledge-hammer of hard specific facts as revealed in the actual history of events.

The very first sentence he boldly begins: "There is to be found in the whole realm of legal learning no more anomalous collection of fallacies, no more deceptive body of affirmations masquerading under the name of science, than that pseudo-branch of jurisprudence which, for nearly three centuries, successive historians have presented to us under the title of the Law of Nations or International Law. This is strong language but I think I shall be able to justify it."

No Existence in Fact.

And throughout the book he consistently demonstrates by a multitude of cited occurrences that the so-called rules and regulations of the Law of Nations have in substance and reality no existence at all; and that whatever semblance thereof remained wholly disappeared in the maelstrom of the Great World War.

International law has been, or at all events now is, whatever happens to express the will of those in control in the great military powers of the world. It varies as do their interests; these interests are no longer thrones or religions, but private monopoly in trade, in oil, coal, iron, markets. Its alleged rules are applied against but not in favor of weak nations. The so-called international law is, according to Edmunds, merely a gloss of hypocrisy thinly disguising the savagery of power. And only to a degree does he distinguish modern America from the other powers.

All through the book the author reiterates a sharp distinction between the nation and what he terms "The Sovereign State," by the former he means the people, by the latter the ruling officials in control of them.

For instance, speaking of the transition from the conception of absolute monarchy to that of constitutional government in domestic affairs, he says: "However, in foreign relations, man was told that all of the civilized societies of the earth taken together constituted the Society of Nations, when in actuality, the nations or peoples themselves count for nothing in this society—but small groups of willful and ambitious men, masked as sovereign states and corrupted by power, count for everything. Again, he (man) was told that a system of law termed The Law of Nations governed this society, when, on analysis, it is revealed that this so-called law is nothing more than the changing precedents set by unlimited assertions of uncontrolled power, in the hands of the same small groups of individuals.

The tests of morality and justice are openly rejected as inapplicable to the conduct of entities that acknowledge no superior. * * * There is unrestrained violence, recognizing no rights beyond the interests of sovereign states and their manipulators, though plausible pretexts and deceptions abound in the system to conceal its naked savagery." We read that "the longer we study the prevailing system of the so-called Society of Nations the clearer it becomes that its inherent vice lies in its fraudulent organization of ruling politicians throughout the world, disguised and glorified as sovereign, that is, omnipotent states, whose power no people can limit, constitutionally or otherwise. Nations, peoples, are rightfully the ones at interest in any genuine Society of Nations, yet in the prevailing one they are reduced to mere pawns in the game of power which sovereign states are ever engaged in."

No Arbiter Possible.

The author correctly points out the fatal defect which nullifies all possibility of sane and binding efficacy in international law. This fatality is the conception that each Power is absolute and omnipotent, recognizing no earthly or celestial law or restraint, accountable to no standard whatever. The result of such a system necessarily means that there can be no such thing as law between nations—the only arbiter is the brutal power of armies and navies, and the sole and vicious determinant is the selfish interests of the "small group of men" in control of the government, overriding the welfare of their own people, as well as those of other lands.

For this same reason—that the nation or people are in all international matters aloof from their own Government, and controlled even in our representative form by the small group of rulers he calls "The Sovereign State"—the author is not sanguine of betterment in this field. He holds that only a revolution on the part of the people against the prevailing system—the call of one people to another—can bring relief. For "The Sovereign State" will never of its own accord willingly abdicate its power, meaning thereby that the "Small Group" will not voluntarily give up their opportunities for plunder and exploitation, domestic and foreign, by themselves adopting or agreeing to those limitations of arbitrary power that are necessarily involved in substituting the reign of law for that of force. Sovereignty and law, he says, are contradictions in terms. "It is only when states cease to be omnipotent that peoples will be permitted to build up a system of law adequate to their inter-relations." Again: "No, we cannot chain down sovereign states. They have never, and never will, voluntarily place fetters upon their liberty of action—they will adopt makeshift restrictions on belligerent action, but always with reservations and undisclosed doctrinal qualifications."

Conceding that governments are not wholly heedless of public opinion, the author says they all know how to swing it as they wish; that false ideas of nationalism, national honor, glory of empire, "transform peoples into mere herds of sheep to be led by the wolves set over them."

He concludes that there is no hope under prevailing governments. The only prospect for the salvation of man lies in "a new political upheaval, the counterpart of that begun in the late eighteenth century, which must close the protecting circle of constitutional government around him."

Entertaining these convictions it is inevitable that Dr. Edmunds expects nothing from the League of Nations or the World Court, both of them offspring of that "Sovereign State" to which he attributes the maladjustment of world relations. He argues that the tribunal is not a World Court, for lack of compulsory jurisdiction, providing no redress for a State that is wronged unless the State that is guilty will assent to the court's jurisdiction. "What would become" he ironically asks, "of the advantage of irresistible combined military power if the possessors of that power admitted the superiority of law, and the right of a court to subject the great and small alike to its principles? So the court's jurisdiction was made voluntary, that is the states were left without any obligation to use it. The Great Powers in control desire no approximation to accepted standards of justice. * * * If there is any new law to be made the Powers who control the league propose to make it. * * * The League Court will never command confidence, until it can administer * * * a body of law designed to protect the rights of peoples, instead of fortifying the privileges of governments."

Yet attention may be called that the author, strangely enough, omits all reference to the fact that in this very respect there were, at the time of his writing, already 21 nations which had solemnly accepted the obligation to submit to compulsory decision any international controversy that might arise between them; in other words to substitute a law decision for a war decision. And he also fails to say that the court had already made accepted decisions in a number of cases between nations, which otherwise could have been settled only by war.

Disarmament a Dream.

Neither does the iconoclast look for any real progress by voluntary disarmament, which he says is a dream that ignores man's innate love of power. The Washington conference, he says, made only apparent concessions, maintaining the naval proportion in capital ships, reducing their number only because progress in aerial warfare makes ships of little value in future wars. As to prohibition of poison gases, he finds it "of course" that no power "has shut down its chemical laboratory or ceased its feverish search into the secrets of science for the deadliest of its agencies of destruction."

Unlike many of the world's advanced thinkers, codification of International Law has no attraction for Prof. Edmunds: "It must now be clear that a system so essentially vicious cannot be codified without stereotyping the most grievous wrongs. Codification * * * is largely an artificial device working in the interest of the powerholders and against the citizen." But, quaere, may we not ask why would not a sane revision, by a permanent body of accredited jurists, with lee-way for amendments to meet new exigencies as they arise, afford the very opportunity desired to eliminate what the author calls these "grievous wrongs?"

Peace Terms Unenforcible.

Discussing the cruel and vicious Treaty of Versailles, the author says its provisions are unenforcible, and the crushing burdens it imposes will be tolerated only so long as the victim remains helpless, and that here, as in other cases of onerous treaties cited by him, "so, in time, will Germany throw off the burdens piled upon her by the Treaty of Versailles, and with the sanction of the Law of Nations, of course." With biting but forceful logic, he lays bare in the cold light of eventualities the violation by the victors of all their solemn promises, and the premeditated betrayal of all those alleged noble purposes under the hypocritical guise of which the "Sovereign States" had duped their own peoples into waging the World War.

Speaking of the European allies he says: "Never had the masses of mankind been rallied to such a pitch of righteous enthusiasm. But what were the tangible objects of all these governments, except that of the United States—objects never lost sight of for an instant, but never mentioned? Spoils! We see more clearly today. Behind the backs of their peoples—who were sacrificing their lives with an almost religious fervor, these governments were most seriously concerned with secret treaties to divide up the colonies and territory of Germany; and all the while heightening the wrath of the world against Germany by accusing her of having such an object. It was all cant, to keep the stream of young men flowing to mutilation and death. . . . It is this trifling with the noblest sentiments of the living, this treason to the dead, by governments, that is the unpardonable crime of the Great War."

Analyzing secret treaties between the allies, the author concludes that "the secret Franco-Russian plans for the Great War were laid in 1892 and carried to completion in 1914," and he states that there was foundation for Germany's charges of hostile encirclement. He minimizes the invasion of Belgium by showing that it was anticipated by all nations, including Belgium, ever since 1892, saying that "Germany's action was wholly within this lawless law." In the propaganda of her enemies the acts of Germany in Belgium, including deportations, were vehemently denounced as contrary to the law of nations, and the peoples, wholly ignorant of that law, "were successfully duped in that belief. Yet there was no legal guilt."

No Legal Guilt.

He asserts that the execution of Edith Cavell was clearly within Germany's war-rights, and had been paralleled by the French and Belgians, but that it furnished splendid propaganda to the allies to play upon their people, ignorant of recognized "war-rights." The author goes on to show the shameful violation by the allies of the rights of all neutrals, and criticises our unlawful seizure of all German shipping found in our ports; he pronounces Germany's submarine as savage beyond naval precedent, "yet "no more so than the daily practices of both belligerents in their bombardments;" and that it is now an accepted weapon of war.

He excoriates the policy of seizing private property of resident enemy aliens, "resurrected by France and imitated by the United States" and by us prosecuted with a "ruthlessness surpassing that even of our associates," denouncing the treacherous confiscatory sales of German patent-rights and other property; adding "nothing of the sort stains the record of the German empire, however wicked it may otherwise have been." The post-war military occupation of the Ruhr he condemns "as such a diversion of commerce and manufactures as will reduce a whole people to starvation, if necessary, to compel submission to the blockader's will. As it is practiced it may be far more savage than direct slaughter." Speaking of the allied practice of using their savage colored colonial troops, guilty of sickening atrocities, Edmunds adds that "it was, of course, sheer hypocrisy in the entente allies to complain of the violation of the usages of war by German troops, when the victorious great Powers could adopt such an expedient."

And so he goes on, delivering blows impartially to all belligerents on both sides, exposing their conduct with a courage that has become scarce since the war-hysteria first throttled free speech.

Space forbids further comment along these lines, but the above will suffice to give the reader their general tenor. It is fair to say, however, that the reader is not asked to take the author's unsupported ipse dixit assertions, for he carefully fortifies his statements by citation to actual facts, documents and events, many disclosed only after the war ended.

Against Paternalism.

Discussing the philosophy of the general principles of government, Dr. Edmunds proves himself a radical Jeffersonian. He seems impatient of any government at all, and is especially bitter toward the paternalism of recent times. Of this he complains: "Not content to have man free to seek his own happiness it makes the effort to procure that happiness for him, a doctrine acted upon more and more by every modern state. It is the powerholder who makes the decision as to what measure will conduce to happiness, never the people themselves."

The less government the better he likes it. And he strikes a basic truth, now often lost sight of, in observing that "it is a primary purpose to limit the power of government to the mere giving of security against internal and external aggression, leaving the individual free otherwise to develop according to the exercise of his own faculties." In short he stands for the sound conception that it is the primary function of government not to seek to make the individual happy by law, but rather to to make him free.

It is true that the work smacks a little of didacticism. It is also true that it voices a pessimistic protest against existing conditions, and contains but little of a constructive nature. But it scientifically exposes the fundamental defects of the existing world-order. On the whole this book is not only worth perusal, but will be of permanent value on the library shelf as a book of reference on International Law, because of the lawyer-like method in which the writer's assertions are supported by numerous citations of authorities, particularly in the foot-notes.

RED CROSS TO TEACH LIFE SAVING METHODS

Free Instruction to Be Conducted by Swimming Experts at Sherman Pool.

Free instruction in life saving and artificial respiration methods will be given by Red Cross swimming experts at Sherman Municipal Pool, Kingshighway and Easton avenue, starting next Wednesday and Thursday evenings. There will be classes for boys, girls and adults, which will continue all summer.

The free instruction is part of the 1925 "Make the water safe" campaign of the St. Louis Chapter, American Red Cross, which for the past seven years has sought to prevent drownings and accidents in rivers and streams around St. Louis. Placarding the banks of the Meramec with warning signs against careless practices in the water, is included in the campaign. Life saving classes for the Boy Scouts are given weekly, and next month the Red Cross will conduct classes for members of the St. Louis police force.

The Sherman Pool classes are given in co-operation with William F. Yorger, Municipal Superintendent of Recreation, and will be as follows: Wednesdays from 5:45 to 7 p. m. for boys and men, and Thursdays from 5:45 to 7 p. m. for girls and women.

Capt. Fred Potthoff, head of the Red Cross Life Saving Corps, will conduct the classes for men and boys, and Miss Josephine Hose, well-known St. Louis swimmer and diver, those for women.

An appeal to the public to take advantage of the classes is made by Red Cross officials, citing the number of accidents and drownings already scored up in St. Louis this year.

"The automobile is taking more and more people every year out to streams which are unsupervised in any way, and preventable accidents are frequent," said J. L. Mauran, chairman of the St. Louis chapter, Red Cross, yesterday. "A knowledge of life saving and resuscitation methods is of inestimable value and may mean much to week-end parties along the Meramec. The best swimmers are liable to accident, and we read Monday after Monday of the Sunday casualties. Join the Red Cross free classes and help make St. Louis a "water safe" city.

Bringing Wildness to the Home.

INCIDENTALLY, I am beginning to wonder why so much is said by the moralists concerning the devastating tendencies of modernity. It seems to me that the world is very directly engaged at the moment in making the home more attractive than ever before.

Much may be said against the bootlegger, but he does deliver his wares into the fastness of the family. And certainly no one is more of a stay-at-home than the man who brews and malts for himself. Only within the last five or six years has the head of many a household discovered the fact that his house contained a kitchen—which is the very heart of the home.

And consider the manner in which the radio has served to consolidate the family by bringing jazz off the highway and putting it into the living room. If invention keeps up the way it is now progressing there will not be a single activity once associated with wild roving which cannot be maintained better and with more comfort within the home itself.

Theater Guild Has Summer Revue.

NEW YORK, June 27.—The Theater Guild's first summer revue is "The Garrick Gayeties," and it turns the organization's cast topsy-turvy, what with principals appearing in the chorus and choristers becoming principals. Its director, Harold Clurman, is the only stage manager New York has ever seen who is a sure enough Doctor of Philosophy. He took the degree at the Sorbonne in Paris. After being assistant stage manager at the Provincetown Theater, he carried Cleopatra in a carpet in the Theater Guild's production of "Caesar and Cleopatra."

CRITIC SHOULD SEE HIS OWN AGE DOWN VISTA OF CENTURIES

the most coveted musical posts waged eager rivalry.

Mozart and Bach.

AS for Mozart, all the world is aware that Kapellmeister Sarti declared that the German composer could not tell D sharp from E flat, that "he must have ears cased in iron," that "music is bound to go to the dogs when such barbarians take it into their heads to compose," and that "this is music to butcher the ears."

Mr. Newman, going back to the original manuscripts, has no trouble in proving that Sarti was not writing of Mozart's music in general, but of the introduction to his C Major Quartet; and also that, putting aside his excessive vehemence of epithet, the critic was perfectly justified in censuring this passage, which remains today an example of writing that is esthetically unsuccessful. Mozart's popularity is shown by the fact that his operas were produced as fast as they were composed. The informed opinion of him in his own day was no doubt phrased by Haydn in his famous exclamation to Mozart's father: "Sir, your son is the greatest musician of whom I have ever heard!"

Regarding Bach, it was only during the second half of the nineteenth century—due in large part to his own retiring and provincial disposition—that the bulk of his compositions became available in published form. "We can hardly blame people," Mr. Newman remarks, "for not seeing the greatness of a man whose work they had no opportunity of knowing."

Don Carlo Gesualdo, Prince of Venosa, a musician of the seventeenth century, was known as the "chromaticist," and his innovations in harmony anticipated the idiom of Chopin in a remarkable manner. He is often cited as a composer who was three centuries ahead of his time. On the contrary, Mr. Newman affirms, and quotes abundant proof, Gesualdo's contemporaries had a just sense of his greatness as a path-breaker; but they were also very accurately aware that he did not possess the genius to utilize his discoveries artistically.

Beethoven and Wagner.

WHATEVER Beethoven's personal hardships, it was perfectly and internationally understood, while he was still alive, that he was the greatest musician then upon the earth. Wagner posed as a sorely persecuted man, but he was during his lifetime the most popular composer in Germany. It was not he who hounded the opera house intendants with prayers that they would produce his music dramas, but just the reverse. He might have had productions all over Europe if he had not been so unmitigated a martinet in his requisitions as to cast and direction. This was despite his unsavory morals, his malignant personality, and his reputation in all the opera houses of the continent as the most pestilent nuisance extant. Similarly, Hugo Wolf's eccentric exactions regarding the publication of his songs did not prevent his being famous while still alive.

The conclusion, therefore, is reached that, "contrary to the accepted legend, there is no case in musical history of a composer being so much in advance of his time that only a few chosen spirits were capable of appreciating and understanding him.

"There is no need, then, for the critic of today to turn over to posterity the task of seeing contemporary music in its true focus. Our own age can be as sure as any other which are its first-rate and which its second-rate composers. The true reproach against past criticism in general is not that it has failed to welcome the great master, but that it has been too generous in its welcome to many who were only minor masters."

The Tribunal of Culture.

AND who are the arbiters, in each generation, a consensus of opinion among whom establishes a final verdict regarding contemporary composers? Not the pedagogues, Mr. Newman hastily urges, for their faculties of assimilation have been petrified by arid theory. Not other composers, for they are nearly always flagrantly unfair to one another. Certainly not the vast rabble of concert and opera goers, whose illiterate impressions are of little more account than those of so many Hottentots.

The true magistracy, declares Mr. Newman, the tribunal which has never yet been reversed by posterity, is the oligarchy of intelligent and educated musicians—orchestra directors and players, trained singers, pianists and violinists, the whole body of professional practitioners of the art.

To this expert aristocracy the critic should belong, and does belong, in fact, providing he is capable—that is, if he is equipped with sound musical culture and the logical processes of judgment. Lacking such armament, he is an impostor and charlatan, whose decisions are as negligible as the verdicts of a kangaroo court. The notorious differences of opinion among critics may be referred largely to competence and incompetence.

"Ruddigore" and "Her Regiment."

GIVEN, then, technical training and an austere faculty for aloofness, the critic, according to Mr. Newman, may go about his task with comfort and surety. As to the comfort we are not quite certain. Trying to observe one's own period from a perspective of a century or so is an arctic and solitary business. Except for the minority of adepts, the critic necessarily loses touch with his public.

For instance, Mr. Newman's court of professional musicians might not pronounce "Ruddigore" an immortal masterpiece, but would undoubtedly recognize it as a creation of decisive talent. The verdict upon "Her Regiment," despite Victor Herbert's charming musical gewgaws, would probably be that it is perishable rubbish. Yet the former was intensely disliked and the latter immeasurably relished by large sections of the Municipal Theater's public. A critic who told the scientific truth as to the relative merits of these two works would of course have the suffrages of the orchestra players and of the better singers in the cast; but by a considerable proportion of the populace he would be regarded as eccentric, if not downright malevolent. The simple fact would be that he was viewing the productions from the vantage of art, and not from the point of view of temporary and mob entertainment.

His Occupation Gone.

SCRUTINIZED down a vista of 100 years, almost the entire subject-matter with which a critic deals, if he be a reviewer of the stage as well as of music, shrivels into nothingness. Forth into limbo vanish all revues and musical comedies, virtually all operettas, not a few operas, 99 out of 100 plays in the commercial theater, and sizable portions of nearly every recital and symphony program, together with all actors and interpretative musicians. For these phenomena, in Mr. Newman's view, are the material not of criticism but merely of musical journalism, which is vanity and vexation of spirit. It is the sense of treating almost exclusively with ephemerae and futilities which embitters the days and nights of the critic.

"I look from the window of this house," writes the author, "down the noble hill, and take in the vast curve of the sea coast. If I am going to make a properly proportionate map of the district I must be careful not to put in every insect on every leaf, every swimmer in the bay.

"This, of course, is where it becomes so difficult to be both critic and journalist. The latter cannot help a great deal of his time being wasted on mediocrities of the hour; but it is all to the detriment of the fineness of his perceptions and his sense of proportion as a critic.

"The shopkeeper, taking in and dealing out small change all day, gets no sort of training for thinking in thousands. But it is in thousands that the critic think, for it is only the thousands that ultimately matter, not small change of art." (K

Newcomer in Grand Opera Cast

MISS CHARLOTTE RYAN.

A NEWCOMER in the cast of Guy Golterman's third Grand Opera Festival at the Municipal Theater, beginning Aug. 17, will be Miss Charlotte Ryan, soprano, of the Metropolitan Opera Co. Miss Ryan will sing the title role in "Aida" and Micaela in "Carmen." She is prima donna of the first season of municipal opera in Atlanta, Ga., which is now in progress at the Auditorium in that city.

Looting the Classics To Make Jazz "Hits"

NEW YORK, June 27.

"YES, we have no" . . . original jazz tunes. They are all stolen, according to the publishers of jazz music, who are now defaming their own product, not in the course of some mad outbreak of impartial truth, but of a belligerent controversy with the composers who write the ditties which they print.

The jazz composers of Tin Pan Alley, so the complaint runs, pilfer their melodies from one another, from the older generation of popular songs and particularly from the classics. The most striking recent case is that of "Bananas," in which nearly the whole of the immensely popular and lucrative song was burglarized from Handel and Balfe.

Plundering "The Messiah."

THE damning thing about jazz music in general is that the only worth-while parts are taken from what is known as high-brow music; and it was these stolen parts, undoubtedly, on which the success of "Bananas" was based. The other portions are weak and flat.

The catchiness of "Bananas" comes, first of all, from its strikingly rhythmic first theme, which is taken note for note from one of the most familiar pieces of classical music, the Hallelujah Chorus from Handel's "Messiah." "Bananas" proceeds with a most banal phrase of ragtime vintage, and then comes a lilting, colorful passage of four bars which is, in syncopated form, taken from one of the most popular of operatic airs, "I Dreamt I Dwelt in Marble Halls," from Balfe's "The Bohemian Girl." Leave out these stolen passages and "Bananas," as music, is nothing.

The very popular "Marcheta" is a slow, syncopated version of a theme from Nicolai's "The Merry Wives of Windsor"—a motive which also does service in "What'll I Do?" and "Memory Lane."

The Looting of Chopin.

THEN there is the well-known "Poor Butterfly," with an opening phrase that caught the public ear and which is a slight variation of the melodic progression beginning the familiar air, "Then You'll Remember Me," also from "The Bohemian Girl."

It is related that Harrison Fisher, the illustrator, who is a devotee of Chopin, one day played for Harry Carroll of Tin Pan Alley a phonograph record for the Fantasie Impromptu, and pointed out the beauty of the slow middle movement. Carroll took the hint and produced the popular "I'm Always Chasing Rainbows," which was almost a literal transcription of Chopin's melody.

The success of this bit of larceny spread the notion that Chopin might have composed another good tune or two, and so, from the pen of Harry Tierney, came "Castle of Dreams," the foxtrot hit in "Irene." It is simply a syncopated version of the second melody of Chopin's familiar "Minute Waltz." To Beethoven's Minuet is ascribed the origin of "Rose of No Man's Land," so popular during the war, and of "Apple Time in Normandy."

Sad Instance of "Avalon."

THE most dramatic case of this sort was that of the ill-fated "Avalon," which was sung by Al Jolson and which registered an enormous success. It was observed by musicians that it was a simplified form of the aria, "E lucevan le stelle," in Puccini's "Tosca."

This fact may have had a mild academic interest to the public in general, but it struck poignantly upon the bosoms of Puccini and of his publishers, G. Ricordi & Co. Puccini, like Richard Strauss, was no believer in the theory that musicians should starve to death, and the Messrs. Ricordi know no peers in the matter of collecting just dues.

They went to court about it, and there was a settlement, which rumor put as high as $25,000. "Avalon" disappeared from the market. Tin Pan Alley moaned, and made a resolution to confine its cribbing thenceforth to classics on which the copyrights have expired.

TUBERCULOSIS DAY BALL GAME AND FETE ON JULY 15

St. Louis Browns and Boston Red Sox to Play and Boys' Marathon Race Will Be Held.

25,000 PRESENTS FOR PATRONS DONATED

Girls' Relay Race, Healthiest Family Contest and Flag Drills on Program for Annual Event.

The eleventh annual Tuberculosis day will be celebrated Wednesday, July 15, with the usual baseball game and fete, it was announced yesterday by the Tuberculosis Society of St. Louis. The proceeds of the celebration are used to finance the society's public health work in this community.

The big event of the day will be the ball game between the St. Louis Browns and the Boston Red Sox. The Browns took part in the first major league game played for the benefit of the society in 1915. There will also be other attractions, including a marathon race, girls' relay race, healthiest family contest, flag drills and an athletic burlesque.

Presents to Be Distributed.

During the last few weeks presents to be distributed to patrons of the society have been pouring in at headquarters. More than 800 local merchants and manufacturers have made donations and 25,000 presents already have been received. Formerly the presents were given as attendance prizes, but changes will be made in the method of award because of the present police restrictions on awards of that sort. A meeting of the Executive Board of the society will be held Tuesday to decide on the method of award.

One of the means of revenue this year, as in past years, will be the sale of educational souvenir programs at 25 cents the copy. The sale will be in charge of society matrons, who will be assisted by hundreds of girls and young women.

This will be the fifth year that a junior marathon has been held. Last year more than 650 boys entered the race. For six weeks they were given physical training, and were kept under strict medical surveillance. A splendid opportunity was thus afforded to disclose any physical defects in these boys so that they could be corrected while the boys were young.

Workout Every Sunday.

Just prior to the start of the race, another physical examination was made of each entrant by physicians to insure his fitness to run on that particular day. The defects exposed by these examinations were followed up by the social service members of the Tuberculosis Society, and in many instances, they were immediately corrected. This procedure will prevail again this year.

The boys have already had several weeks of training under the leadership of Joe Forshaw, former Olympic star of the Marathon. A workout is held every Sunday morning in Fairgrounds Park. This race is held under the auspices of the A. A. U.

The girls' shuttle relay race has also become an annual affair, this being the fourth year for this event. Last year 234 girls representing more than 30 teams from the various playgrounds, schools and turnvereins entered the contest. This year, William Yorger, supervisor of recreation of the municipal playgrounds, is in charge of the race, and at a meeting yesterday he announced that every playground in St. Louis would enter a team.

NEW YORK CLOAK AND SUIT INDUSTRY HAS DOLE SYSTEM

Unemployed Are Paid From $1,200,000 Fund Borne by Workers and Employers.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 27.—New York now has a modified form of unemployment dole in the highly seasonal cloak and suit industry.

Hundreds of workers, idle a requisite nine weeks this season, recently began receiving weekly benefits of $10. The payments came from an unemployment insurance fund of more than $1,200,000, originally conceived by a special commission appointed by Gov. Smith, and now jointly borne by employers and employes themselves.

Workers pay in to the fund one per cent of their wages each week they are employed. Manufacturers contribute two-thirds of the weekly payroll. If the manufacturers tack on the amount of their preponderant assessment to the selling price of cloaks and suits, it has been said, the workers will be receiving part-pay vacations during otherwise "off" seasons, two-thirds of which will be paid by the well-dressed woman.

The gubernatorial commission, however, saw substantial benefits accruing from this unemployment insurance. If it alleviates labor distress and unrest it may conceivably curtail costly interruptions and stoppages in the industry, a saving which would more than "pay the freight," it was said.

Union demands at the bottom of past strikes, it was pointed out, had always calculated the extent of idle time as well as working time in reaching the figure which the union leaders fought for as a living wage.

Under the present system, unemployment benefits end after 12 weeks and may not exceed $120.

RADIO HEARD NIGHTLY IN EGYPT

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

CAIRO, June 27.—A number of broadcasting stations in Europe and the British Isles are usually heard well in Egypt, and Egyptians as well as Europeans living here are not slow in taking advantage of the music. The stations heard best are London, Newcastle, Aberdeen, Bournemouth and Chelmsford in England, the Savoy Bands of London relayed on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays being especially popular.

Rome, Munster, Stuttgart and Vienna also are heard and a resident of Cairo can listen to a concert and news in Italian from 8:40 to 9:30 p. m., then get the news and the weather from Stuttgart in Germany, and before turning in for the night he can enjoy a late cabaret concert from Vienna.

"You can reduce - -"

"Why, Ruth, less than a year ago I weighed as much as you do. Of course, you can reduce!

"I tried everything, just as you have done—exercises and diet included—and still I was over weight. But one day Mother advised me to try Marmola Tablets. She said at one time she used them and lost ten pounds in a few weeks!

"Of course I just flew to the nearest drug store and bought a box. And you see what Marmola Tablets did for me!"

* * * *

For nearly twenty years, hundreds of thousands of men and women each year have regained slender figures by using Marmola Tablets. Last year alone, users purchased more than a million boxes!

Surely you would rather use these tablets and regain your slender figure, than try some unknown and perhaps harmful method of reducing.

Get some Marmola Tablets at any druggist's (one dollar a box) and try the pleasant way to reduce. Or if you prefer, a box will be sent to you in plain wrapper, postpaid, by the Marmola Co., 1833 General Motors Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

For 35 Years Neighbors Bowed to Him While He Swindled Rich and Poor

JOHN McGEE, RESPECTED CITIZEN OF MISSOURI TOWN, TURNED OUT TO BE A FORGER AT HIS DEATH

His Peculations Covering Long Period of Years Were Discovered When Insurance Papers Were Examined By Administrator of His Estate—It is Estimated That He Stole More Than $100,000 From Friends and Neighbors—Favorite Scheme Was to Issue Duplicate Notes and Pocket the Money Borrowers Paid to Him as Their Agent—Many Stories of Suffering Disclosed as Town Takes Toll of Its Losses.

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CARTHAGE, Mo., June 27.

HE found, probably, little in his head to talk about, but being a silent man, people thought him wise. Never displaying any emotion—perhaps he was incapable of emotion—Carthage folks believed him to be a strong man. That he was honest seemed to his neighbors a logical conclusion. The reputation of John C. McGee, therefore, was like a cloak of invisibility. Behind its shining virtue the man, himself, kept hidden.

Now, it never occurred to anyone in Carthage that the real John C. McGee might be different from his reputation. The popular image of John McGee was John McGee, as far as they knew. It was such an old and respected image. For more than 35 years Carthage people had bowed to it. This man had walked the streets, he had shaken hands with this friend and that, he had lived respectably and carried on his business without getting arrested or being charged publicly with fraud. Reputations like his need no more than negatives to exist and grow and flourish.

This reputation, this image that was accepted as John McGee, was not even founded on a clear past. He had come to Carthage in the '80s from nowhere in particular, and he never bothered to explain what his life had been before. Starting as an agent for the Frisco Railroad he had worked inconspicuously for a time. The town did not know, when he quit, that he was $500 short. Friends made up the deficit. They were much older men, these friends, and they charitably refused to gossip. When they died their secret died with them.

Setting out to build a reputation, luck led John McGee into "Loans, Real Estate and Insurance." It was a protective field for a nature such as his. Men seeking 8 per cent on notes and ways of dodging the tax, or to best life-long friends in deals on corner lots, or to insure haybarns for more than they were worth did not quarrel with McGee's personality. In fact, they rather liked the check he kept on his tongue. They found his graven, long-nosed mask of a face reassuring; it was like the door of a private safety deposit vault. When clients talk about 8 per cent they do not joke, so his unsmiling attention to details was sufficient. Then, too, his absolute lack of a sense of humor gave him an effect of steadiness. No giddy laughter for John McGee, no moments of irresponsibility.

A Vestryman

In the '90s he married Miss Helen Fabian, a Carthage girl. The match was regarded with universal approbation. She was well connected socially, and he was wise enough to follow her lead. Soberly he attended the card parties and other evening affairs to which his wife won invitations. With dignity he wore open-front collars to Grace Episcopal Church of a Sunday. He carried himself well in the atmosphere of this small and somewhat exclusive congregation. His manner was that of an ideal senior warden. He learned to bow and to usher ladies into a pew with a courtly hand. Several times he served on the vestry. But he seldom talked, he seldom smiled. He never betrayed himself. Those who marked him spoke of strong, silent men and still waters that run deep.

The reputation of John McGee was above reproach. He lived well, but not extravagantly. He bought a handsome home at 1508 Garrison avenue, yet it was not out of keeping with his position in the city. This much was expected of him. He never attempted more; never made a false step. He dressed himself and his family modestly. Little by little he added to the general impression. Here was a man, people thought, who could be trusted. Not a likeable man, nor a friendly man, but a good, honest man.

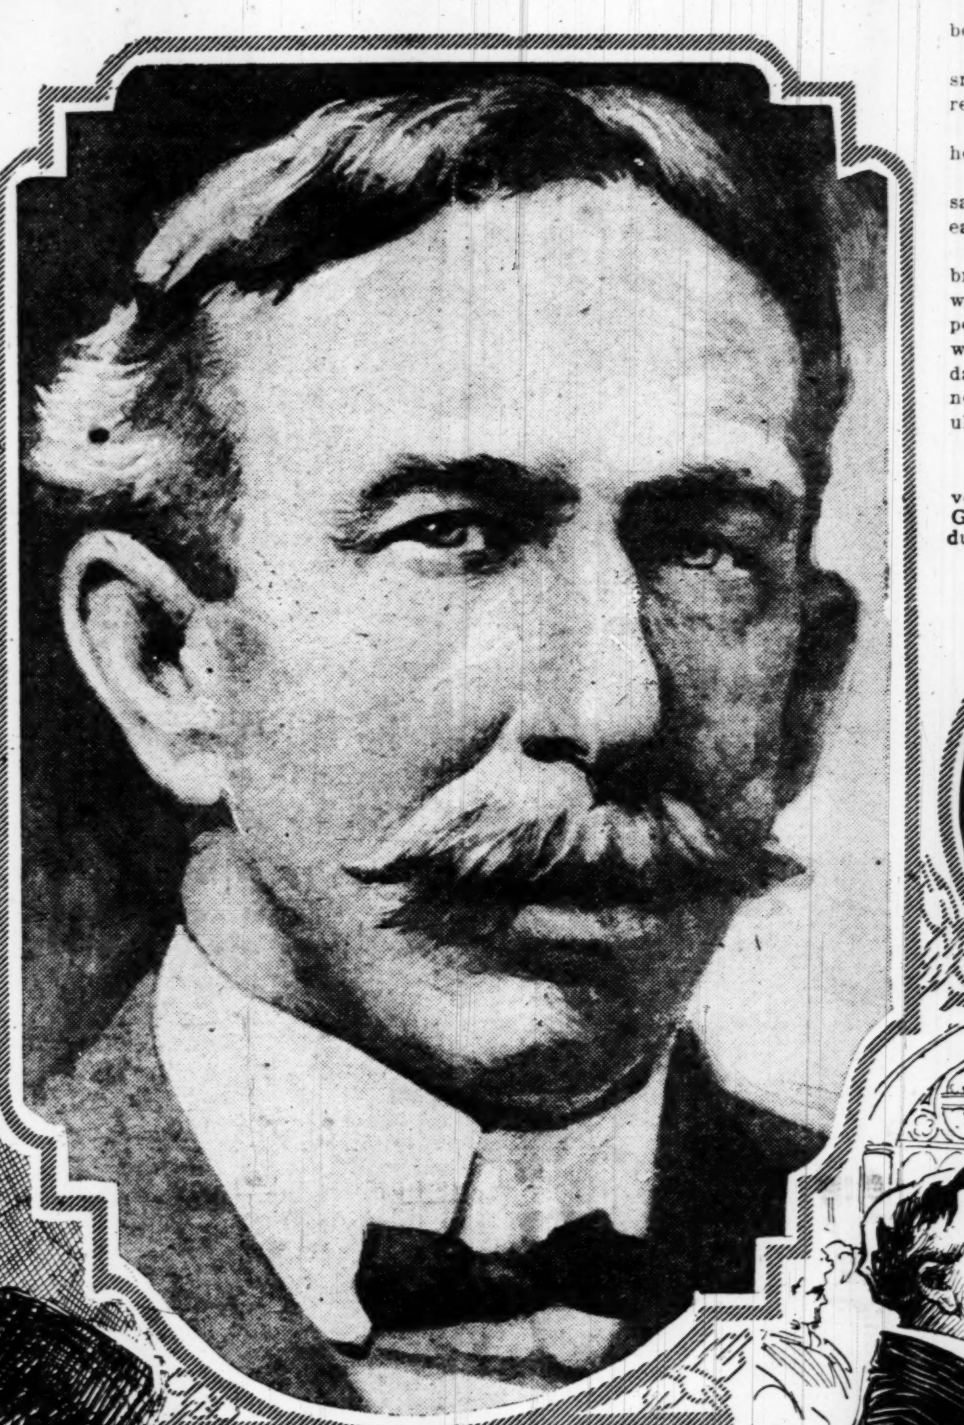
He reached the height of his influence about six years ago—in 1919, the year that his wife died. Friends about the square had a habit of comparing him to Col. House, Wilson's enigmatic counselor, who was something of a hero to Jasper County Democrats then. Physically he did resemble Col. House, but there the resemblance ended. Other comparisons in that day were also a great compliment to McGee and showed the preeminence of his position. In Carthage he was the leading financial agent. He handled the bulk of the loans that were made.

The Rich and the Poor

The deals that he arranged were of all sorts and his clients were of all sorts, too. He borrowed $1500 for Mrs. Catherine Blankinship, a widow, who ran the Carthage Hotel. He arranged a loan of $150 for Mrs. Mary Finley, another widow, who made her living weaving rugs at her cottage on Case street. He sold notes to Charles Turner, prominent merchant, and to Sam McReynolds of the Central National Bank and to W. J. Sewall, editor of the Carthage Press. He had out-of-town clients also. Old Charlie Meyers had gone off to California to live in retirement, turning all his financial affairs over to McGee. Other clients in a dozen cities had bought notes through him, or had borrowed. Rich and poor, black and white, they came to John McGee.

Mrs. Catherine Blankinship, in center, who paid off a $1500 mortgage on her hotel, only to discover that McGee had not credited her with a single payment and had instead forged her name to two notes for $1100 each.

JOHN C. McGEE.



He was trusted, with a childlike, unthinking faith that would appear ludicrous were it not that everything connected with John McGee should be treated with gravity. He accepted his clients' business in taciturn seriousness. They left their deeds of trust and abstracts of title, even their notes with him, never asking for receipts. They paid installments on mortgages or interest and did not request receipts. So invulnerable had his reputation become that it was held to be almost a studied insult to check on him in any way. Not that he ever consciously cherished this impression. His seeming indifference made the idea stronger.

After his wife's death, McGee altered his style of living, but in the right way, for the sake of his reputation. He sold the house on Garrison avenue. When his daughter graduated from high school he sent her to the University of a neighboring state. Taking a $2-a-week room at the Y. M. C. A., his frugality became more and more pronounced. He ate at the Mecca Restaurant on the square, picking up meals for the most part, a sandwich and glass of milk. His one relaxation was the Elks' Club, to which he had belonged for many years. Occasionally he would entertain members of his bridge club there. But otherwise he attended strictly to business in his modest office, located on the second floor of a building just off the square.

The house in Carthage where McGee resided with his family when he was reckoned among the town's foremost citizens. He sold it after his wife died in 1919 and went to live in a $2-a-week room at the Y. M. C. A.

He began to age, and the measured tramp of his feet slowed and a deeper somberness grew on his face. But the old dignity, the old prestige, the old reputation remained. There had been no sprees in his life and there would be none. Solemnly he went about his business, making loans and handling interest payments, with now and then a venture into real estate. He had no close friends to make more gracious his evident decline. His only close associate was Mrs. Blanche Fabian, widow of his wife's brother. She had volunteered to look after his daughter, buying her clothes and chaperoning her on her infrequent visits to Carthage.

A few weeks ago the time came. He had suffered an attack of grippe. One day he called a taxi driver. He had a small satchel in his hand.

"I want you to take me to the hospital," he directed.

The taxi driver made a joke.

"Say, you haven't gone in for doctorin' bones, have you, Mr. McGee?"

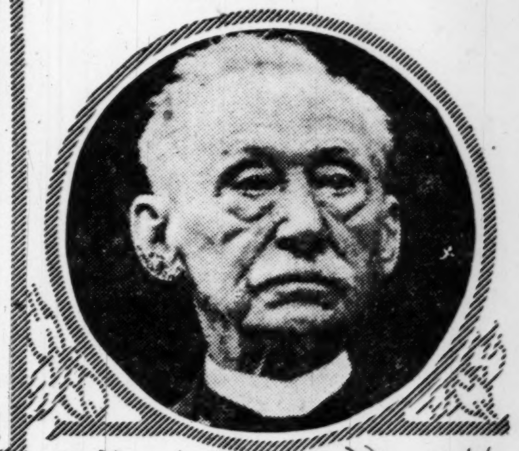
But McGee did not smile. He had stopped smiling altogether now, not a very great renunciation, you felt, looking at him.

"I've been sick and I want to recuperate," he explained.

He died May 31 at the hospital. Physicians said that death was caused by Bright's disease.

Friends sent flowers. Prominent lodge brothers acted as pallbearers. The funeral was held from Grace Church. The local papers carried obituaries, giving John McGee what was considered to be his due. The daughter came home from school for the funeral, and left shortly after. There was speculation as to how well John McGee had been fixed. Most folks thought he would leave a sizeable estate.

Major S. E. Wetzel, 85-year-old Civil War veteran whose $2750 invested through McGee may be lost because McGee sold him duplicated notes.



Then, one day about a week afterwards Sam Boggess, who had engaged to wind up McGee's insurance affairs, made a startling discovery.

What They Found

The accounts kept by John McGee were suspiciously involved. Nothing was exactly as it should be. Boggess called in L. E. Koken, appointed administrator of the estate in the absence of a will, and a hasty examination revealed the truth.

John McGee had been a crook.

The news spread through Carthage in a whirl and buzz of startled gossip. It was the most amazing news that could have happened. And it stunned wherever it surprised, because so many had done business with McGee or had friends or relatives who had. Just what was wrong? How much was involved? Who were involved?

When the correspondent was in Carthage the total of McGee's shortage was approximately $74,000, official figures. More than 30 clients were named as standing to lose directly by his thieving and more than 100 were involved in the sorriest mixup that ever struck the town. These are the official figures. It is known that much more than the sum named is actually tied up, the probable total may reach $200,000, and the list of victims may grow to 100 or more. Few families in town or countryside but what are affected directly or indirectly by the scandal.

John McGee, the unimpeachable, had been a crook.

The story of his trickeries is as yet incomplete, a partial roster of betrayed trusts. But several examples will serve to show their nature and how he managed them.

Charley Meyers—He and McGee had railroaded together in the old days. When Charley went to California a few years ago to live with his daughter he left his Carthage properties and money totaling $18,000 with McGee. He gave McGee the key to his safe-deposit box, and with it power of attorney. McGee promptly proceeded to rob him of everything he possessed. He did this in many cunning ways, but the method most often employed, the check-up has disclosed, was the pocketing of payments on Charley's notes.

Victim Faints

McGee lent his client's money on notes secured by mortgages or deeds of trust. The borrowers would pay off the notes from time to time. But McGee never sent the money to Charley or credited it to his account. Instead, he pocketed all these payments, merely sending Charley interest to keep up the pretense that the borrowers still owed the entire sum. On several occasions McGee released the borrowers after they had paid off mortgages, but did not advise Charley of this. Another means he used to cheat Charley was to buy for him a note that had been duplicated. On this duplicated note he paid interest to keep Charley from discovering the worthlessness of the security.

Charley, who is 80 years old, fainted when he got off the train at Carthage and was told how his old friend had swindled him of the savings he had husbanded against his old age.

. . . . . .

Mrs. Mary Finley—In her cottage on Case street she told the correspondent how she had borrowed $150 through McGee. She paid regular installments on the loan, which she supposed he had credited to her account. Instead, he had kept her money and the full amount of the note was standing against her when found in McGee's papers. Her financial plight was so desperate that several Carthage business men have taken the loan off her hands.

. . . . . .

Maj. S. E. Wetzel—An 85-year-old Civil War veteran living in retirement on his pension at 1217 South Main street. He had $2750 which he placed on loans through John McGee. He told the correspondent that these notes were for $250, $400, $1000 and $1050. McGee either forged the makers' names to duplicate notes or got them to sign duplicate notes by a ruse. The borrowers of Maj. Wetzel's money were farmers. After they had signed one note in each case, McGee called them in and said: "By the way, that note you signed is illegal. There's an error in it. Please sign another." He would point carelessly to the first note they had signed and then flip it into a waste basket. Trusting him, they would sign the second note and not ask to see the first torn up. Then McGee would retrieve the first note and have two notes to sell.

The Major Philosophizes

Maj. Wetzel says that he thinks two of the notes he holds are the original notes, but he is willing to split 50-50 with the holders of duplicates. He takes his loss philosophically.

"I used to be in the loan business," he told the correspondent, "and I ought to know all the tricks. But this man fooled me. I never thought he'd dare such crude forgeries."

. . . . . .

Mrs. Catherine Blankenship—A widow. For the last 10 years she has run the Carthage Hotel to support herself and two children. She borrowed $1500 through McGee, giving a mortgage on the hotel as security. She says that she paid McGee fully $1500 plus interest in installments.

"I'd take the money to him and he'd mark my payments down in a big book," she told the correspondent. "They say now that the book has disappeared. They say that I'll have to pay that $1500 over again."

This is not the worst of it. Two notes for $1100 each bearing Mrs. Blankinship's signature were sold to clients by McGee. She says she did not sign either, and that both are forgeries.

"I kept the checks I paid him," she said, "but I find that he wrote on each one after I had given it to him, 'For insurance.' I didn't give it to him to pay for insurance. I paid those checks against the mortgage. He deliberately cheated me."

A lawyer is trying to make a test case of her misfortune to see if she can be held responsible for McGee's acts. If she can prove

Charles B. Davies, Prominent Kansas Merchant, Confesses Paying for Three Attempts on His Wife's Life

Stool Pigeon Tipped Off the Police After Gang Had Bled Davies for Year and a Half—Seven Suspects Under Arrest in Kansas City Confess Parts in Plot, but Deny They Participated in Actual Assault on Mrs. Davies — She Was Attacked in October, 1924, by Her Husband's Hired Assassins, Who Slugged and Robbed Her and Left Her for Dead—Two Other Attempts Miscarried.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, June 27.

WHEN the Monday morning papers reached Concordia, Kan., last week one of the first to open a Kansas City Journal-Post was Charles B. Davies, retired merchant and prominent citizen. What he saw, spread on the front page in black type, caused him to pale. Members of the underworld gang whom he had hired to murder his wife had been caught and had confessed. The jig was up.

It is said that Charles Davies marched straight in to his wife and handed her the paper.

"This is substantially correct," he is reported to have told her.

In the next few minutes little Mrs. Davies learned how the husband she had loved for years had plotted to kill her. She learned how, while she lived with him in ignorance of his real feelings toward her, he had hired thugs in Kansas City to put her out of the way. There it was, the whole ugly story, displayed for all the world to see.

There was no scene. Without waiting for his wife's verdict Davies left their handsome home and went to the home of his mother. He was later arrested, and signed a confession, which he has now repudiated. Held in jail there now with four men and a woman who are accused as his paid confederates, he appears to have left his home and wife forever.

Mrs. Davies did nothing dramatic after reading the story. She merely shut herself behind locked doors and refused to see reporters. This attitude she has maintained to the present time. Some friends have quoted her as having said she would stand by her husband. Other friends say she told them she was through with him. The public of Concordia and Kansas City, hesitant to believe either of the versions, is awaiting Mrs. Davies' own statement. Will she refuse to appear against her husband? Or will she demand stern prosecution of the accused? These questions have kept interest in the case alive. The only indication of her feelings so far has been her refusal to sign a $10,000 bond for her husband. Failing to make this bond, Davies is obliged to remain in jail.

A "Pigeon" Snitched

The expose was brought about by a stool pigeon who tipped off the police that a certain gang in Kansas City had been dickering with Davies for more than a year and a half. First members of the gang had agreed to act as gunmen for him. Then, they and others turned on him and extorted hush money.

Three attempts on Mrs. Davies' life, all alleged to have been instigated by her husband and paid for, were made. On the night of Oct. 14, 1924, members of the gang, named but not as yet positively identified, hid in Mrs. Davies' bedroom and slugged her as she entered. Davies was reading in the living room downstairs at the time. After rendering Mrs. Davies unconscious the thugs robbed her of her diamonds and other jewelry and fled. The attack was not successful. Mrs. Davies recovered and went to Denver to regain her strength.

Members of the gang followed her there and sought to plan a second attack, but things went wrong and the murder was not attempted. Later, when Mrs. Davies returned to Concordia, gunmen who are said to have been urged on by Davies, plotted a third attack. This, however, came to nothing.

Davies, in his confession, admitted paying Walter Moseley, a police character, $2000 to kill his wife. Moseley was to get $2000 more when the work was accomplished. After the first attack failed, Davies said, Moseley wanted to try again but he had changed his mind. Then, other members of the gang began to blackmail him.

Police rounded up one woman and eight men. They gave their names as Mrs. Mabel Stewart, Walter Moseley, Jack Hayden, Lloyd Canfield, Gus Boles, Fred A. "Pat" Bird, S. M. "Cotton" Jones, Ray Bryan and Kenneth Fibelkorn.

Grey McNear and Walter J. Emery, named as leading conspirators in the plot are now serving prison terms. According to the police, Mrs. Stewart, Emery, McNear, and Moseley took part in the actual attempt on Mrs. Davies' life. Mrs. Stewart, Moseley, Ray Bryan and Lloyd Canfield are held in jail at Concordia.

In their statements to the police all the gang suspects arrested denied any connection with the assault on Mrs. Davies, but admitted having negotiated with Davies. By implicating each other they have involved the entire gang, either in the murder plot or in the blackmailing activities which went on after the first attempt failed.

The whole thing began when Davies decided to put his wife out of the way. His motive has not been explained except by the report that Mrs. Davies is wealthy. In the confession, which he now repudiates, he made no reference to motives. But it appears that he was turning the idea in his mind for a long time. His decision was to have her murdered by hired assassins.

Now the first step was to get in touch with a man or men who did that sort of work. This was a problem for a while, and he solved it quite accidentally. He was reading in a Kansas City paper one day about the activities of Lee Bird, a local gangster. Perhaps, thought Davies, this fellow Bird would be just the man. So he sat down in his office at the Elks' Club and wrote Bird a letter, hinting significantly at the sort of job he had and asking if Bird would take it.

Unfortunately, Bird was slain the night before Davies mailed his letter. He had tried to shoot it out with detectives. The letter was opened by the dead man's father, Fred A. "Pat" Bird. This worthy did not handle work such as Davies offered, himself, so he wrote the Kansas stranger offering to help in any way he could short of actually filling the job. Davies replied, thanking him for his offer of assistance and suggesting that he pass the letter on to some of the late gangster's associates.

Bird handed the letter to Jack Hayden. Whether Jack was the first to read it does not appear, but according to Davies' confession he was the first to show up in Concordia. Jack and Davies talked it over at the Elks' Club and Davies offered him $2000 to kill Mrs. Davies during a faked holdup. Hayden, however, "didn't go through with the job," Davies told the County Attorney.

A Gunman Takes the Job

The next applicant for the job to call on Davies was Lloyd Canfield, Hayden's roommate. He, too, had read the letter and hastened over to Concordia to have a conference with Davies. According to the latter's version Canfield told him that Hayden "didn't have the guts to go through with it," but that he, Canfield, would do the job. But Canfield backed down in the end. He told Davies he was not a gunman. Davies then gave him $200 to find a gunman in Kansas City. In his confession, Canfield admits taking the $200 and another $200 later on, but says he made no effort to employ a killer for Davies.

Meanwhile, Davies received another applicant. His name was Walter Moseley. This visitor got right down to business and seemed fearless. Davies, much impressed with him, raised the price for the work to $4000, half of which was to be paid when Moseley accepted the job. After several conferences with Moseley at Concordia the deal was closed. Negotiations were completed in August or September, Davies said. He paid Moseley $2000 for "the bumping off" and promised to pay that much more when the job was done.

During all these negotiations Davies went home to his wife in the best of spirits and she never suspected that he harbored murderous thoughts. Nor did anyone else in Concordia.

Davies says the plan for the murder was very vague. "I was to be beat up and shot up in a stick-up sometime and my wife killed," he confessed, "but Moseley didn't tell me when or where." Not the least troubled by this uncertainty, Davies went about his business not knowing when he was to be wounded and his wife slain before his eyes. Pleasant prospect! Yet it does not seem to have weighed heavily on Davies.

The time came on the night of Oct. 14, 1924.

Davies and his wife had been visiting his mother in Concordia and returned home about 9:30. They sat together in the living room for half an hour and then she went upstairs.

They Didn't Deliver

"While I was sitting in a chair in the living room at my house and my wife had gone upstairs, I heard my wife cry. I went upstairs and was hit on the head by whoever was there. I saw two men, but don't know who they were."

When Davies came to himself his wife was unconscious and bleeding from scalp wou She had been beaten over the head with a re volver butt or some hard instrument. The thugs had robbed her of her diamond ri She was not mortally hurt, however, and a short time recovered. Then, she went to Denver to gain back her strength.

Davies claims the first intimation he h that this had been a fake robbery and an at tempt to murder his wife was 10 days afte wards when Mrs. Mabel Kessler, known al as Mrs. Mabel Stewart, came to see him at th Elks' Club. She wanted the "rest of th money," which he took to mean the $2000 h had agreed to pay Moseley if the attempt w successful. Accordingly he told the Kessle woman that he would not pay, as the jo hadn't been carried through.

The chief plotter confessed not to know the trip Mrs. Kessler, Walter Emery an Grey McNear made to Denver after the fi attack on Mrs. Davies. At Denver th planned a second attempt on her life, but d vided counsel spoiled the plot. Davies admi ted, however, that last March he talked wi Moseley again, at which time Moseley offere to "go through with the job" for $2000 mor Davies claims that he declined the offer, sa ing he had come to his senses and would ha no more plotting.

Blackmailers visited him for a year and a half after the first murder plot, Davies admi ted. He said that Moseley, and Ray Brya the ex-deputy Sheriff and Sam Gash all tri to extort money from him by threatening t tell his wife what he had planned. Davie asserted that he refused their demands an that they got no money from him at any ti Statements made by the other suspe would seem to indicate to the contrary, th Davies was blackmailed by various membe of the gang and paid out more than $7000.

Davies' Confession, Made at Time of Arrest, Which He Now Repudiates

Davies' confession, made Tuesday to authorities at Concordia, was as follows:

"My name is Charles B. Davies. My age is 55 years. I live in the city of Concordia, Cloud County, Kansas. My wife's name is Mabel P. Davies.

"About a year ago last spring, I met a man by the name of Moseley. Previous to that time I met a man by the name of Jack Hayden in Concordia and at the Elks club we had a conversation about holding me and my wife up and during the holdup to 'bump off' my wife, but he didn't go through with the job.

"Then I met a man by the name of Canfield who told me that Hayden didn't have the guts to do it and said he would. That was a few weeks after Hayden had been here. We had our conversation in the Elks club also. I offered them $2000 each time I had conversations for doing the job.

"Canfield didn't come through and then Moseley came here a short time after Canfield was here. Confield didn't do anything.

"Moseley and I had our conversation concerning the 'bumping off' of my wife in the Elks club and I offered Moseley $2000 to do the job.

"I paid Moseley $2000 cash after the time or rather at the time of the conversation and also was to pay him $2000 more after the job was done. This conversation occurred along in the month of August or September, 1924. That was the last time I saw Moseley before the holdup occurred, which was on October 14, 1924.

"Walter Moseley never told me how the job was going to be pulled, but I supposed it was going to be pulled outside somewhere. I knew that the job was going to be pulled some time, but did not know when or where. I was to be beat up and shot up and my wife killed.

"I don't know who did the job, but on October 14 I and my wife were home about 9:30 p. m. I sat in the living room and my wife went upstairs about 10 p. m. We had been sitting in the living room until that time. We had been to my mother's before we went home.

"While I was sitting in the chair in the living room at my house and my wife had gone upstairs, I heard my wife cry, after which I went upstairs and was hit on the head by whoever was there. I saw two men, but don't know who they were. The two men who talked with me about the deal wanted $2000 for the job, which I agreed to pay.

"After the job was pulled, Walter Moseley came to Concordia in March, 1925, and wanted to go ahead with the deal and get the rest of the money. I told him I had come to my senses and would not go through with it, and Moseley told me at that time that he would get me.

"Before that time and after the job was pulled and about 10 days after the said incident, a woman by the name of Mabel Kessler came to the Elks club and wanted the rest of the money and it was the first time that I knew that the holdup was the nature that it was.

"Since the time of the holdup, Moseley and a man by the name of Bryan and one by th name of Cash, have attempted to blackmail me, but I never paid them any money. I knew at the time that I made this deal with Moseley for the holdup and the 'bumping off' of my wife that I was doing wrong and I wouldn't have done it, but must have been crazy at the time.

"At that time I was drinking a lot of 'moonshine' whisky and must have been out of my head to agree to anything as I did. I have made this statement under no threat nor promise, and swear that it is the truth, and I have made the same in the presence of Carl Moore and Leon W. Lundblade at the courthouse, this 22d day of June, 1925. So help me God."

Dr. David Wise—A prominent Carthag physician. He bought a farm on which ther was a mortgage held by W. A. Turner, a merchant, in the sum of $3500. Dr. Wise assumed this mortgage and began making payments to McGee, his personal friend. In fact, McGee met both Dr. Wise and Turner socially and often played cards with them. McGee had arranged the original loan and was presumably looking after Turner's interests. Instead, he pocketed the money Dr. Wise paid him and did not tell Turner that any of the mortgage had been taken up. To keep Turner in the dark McGee paid him the stipula interest on his loan regularly. He kept on receiving and pocketing payments from Dr. Wise until he had taken in $3000 of the $3500 loan.

They Never Guessed

Dr. Wise knew that Turner held the mortgage on his farm, but it never occurred to him to mention to Turner that he had made a payment. He believed implicitly in McGee's honesty and supposed that he was promptly paying Turner all the money turned into him. Had the doctor once referred to it McGee would have been exposed. But his thievery in this case did not come out until the other day. Now Wise has filed suit to force Turner to accept the $500 balance of the note and call it paid. Turner contends, however, that McGee was Wise's agent and that the loss should be his.

Edward Hansford—City Constable. He borrowed $1650 on his house through McGee and paid it off. McGee never credited him with a cent and did not release the mortgage, although assuring Hansford that he had done so.

. . . . .

Mrs. Frances Rorick—Widow. Lost $550 through payments to McGee which he did not credit.

. . . . .

As the audit goes on slowly the ramifications of McGee's affairs deepen the maze. Instances in which McGee either forged or tricked signers into duplicating notes and then sold the notes to business and professional men are numerous. C. F. McElroy, W. A. Turner and W. J. Sewall, editor of the Carthage Press, hold identical notes for $150 against a farm couple who admit signing two of them at McGee's direction. Byron A Sam McReynolds, banker, and a client of Senator A. W. McCawley's hold duplicated notes for $1000 signed by another farm couple.

When clients had paid off notes to McGee and he had pocketed the money he sometimes actually released the security they had put up. Then, to fool the lender, he would issue a fake extension of the loan and go on paying interest. If the lender wished to call in the loan McGee would persuade him to place it elsewhere and sell him a forged note. But always he paid interest regularly to keep borrowers and lenders from becoming suspicious. It was characteristic of him, too, to insist on keeping his clients in the dark, so that a borrower would not know who held his loan. Therefore he could neve

Dr. Young Wore Ring Taken From Hand of the Rich Wife He Murdered With Dentists' Gas

Detectives Seizing on the Clew Were Convinced That He Had Guilty Knowledge of Mrs. Grace Grogan Young's Disappearance, and Grilled Him Until He Confessed—Tells How He Killed Her With Gas After He Had Made Her Drunk, and How He Hid Body in Cistern of Lonely Cabin—Police Believe He Had Planned to Kill His Stepson, Charles Patrick Grogan, Heir to $2,000,000 Estate of "Olive King," Who Had Named Young as Chief Beneficiary.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, June 27.

DR. THOMAS YOUNG, the dentist, was so greedy for wealth that he dreamed gross, swollen dreams of riches, and in his waking hours told bombastic yarns about the money he had, as if by them he could make his dreams come true. Friends and relatives soon found him out, but strangers he could impress for a time with pompous lies of this fortune he had made in oil and that fortune he had made in real estate. The truth, which everybody discovered sooner or later, was that Dr. Young got a scant living from his practice and had never won a cent in speculation.

There are about four ways in which a man can become wealthy. He can earn the money, he can win it in speculation, he can steal it and he can marry it. Dr. Young had made up his mind to marry money. You could tell that by the way he batted his eyes at women and smiled his thin-lipped, sneaky smile. He had been married twice, once bigamously, but had got rid of both wives through divorce. Neither had been rich. Dr. Young was resolved not to marry again until a woman came along who could give him what he desired above all things—gold.

MRS. GRACE GROGAN YOUNG

This rich woman he sought happened along two years ago. She was Mrs. Grace Hunt Grogan, beautiful widow of Patrick Grogan, the millionaire "olive king." Quickly, the dapper little dentist managed an introduction. He knew that modesty and humbleness would never do. When he talked to Mrs. Grogan for the first time he told her several yarns about his income. He gave her to understand that he was the most successful dentist in Los Angeles with a handsome suite as his office. He waved his hands and his eyes glistened behind his horn-rimmed spectacles, and fantastic air castles took shape. "Oh yes," he would say, "I find making money rather easy, don't you know? I mean that when I go into big deals I always seem to hit it right."

Big deals. Money. How he loved to talk about them! But in the present instance he knew that he must furnish a little more than talk. So he rented handsome offices for a month, to which he took Mrs. Grogan for a look about. He explained his Ford coupe with an easy laugh and: "My tastes are simple and an unmarried man should economize, I think." What little money he had he spent where it would have the greatest effect. Simple tastes. He lusted for Mrs. Grogan's jewelry, her motor cars, her homes. His fingers itched for the crinkly checks she could write. He had found his way to fortune at last.

He Marries Money.

She accepted him for what he claimed to be and listened to his wooing. Several times he must have paused in the love affair to make sure of her financial standing. He learned, of course, that Patrick Grogan had left his $2,000,000 estate in trust to his son, Charles Patrick Grogan, but had provided his widow with an income of $1000 a month. The boy, who was 16 then, lived with his mother and she spent for him the liberal allowance provided from the accrued interest and profits of the fortune. When he was 21 he would have the interest and profits and when he was 25 the entire inheritance would be released to him.

Dr. Young, though a trifle disappointed that the mother and not the son had old Patrick's millions, considered that to be stepfather to such an heir was enough. He proposed to Mrs. Grogan after a whirlwind courtship and was accepted. When they were married later and went to live in the handsome Alvardo Apartments, owned by the Grogan estate, the doctor did not have money enough to buy an overcoat. His wife paid for it, and for almost everything else from then on.

Mrs. Grogan-Young shortly discovered the manner of man she had married. She soon learned to accept the doctor's gorgeous yarns with a contemptuous smile. Her illusions concerning him could not have lived long. Soon she was telling her father, F. W. Hunt, how unhappy she felt, and how if her husband's cruelties continued she would be forced to seek a separation.

It was entirely characteristic of the doctor that he should have dropped all pretense with his wife. She meant only $10,000 a year or so, and he was after much more. He transferred his attentions to her son, young Charles Patrick Grogan. Between the two there developed a rather remarkable friendship. Young Grogan accepted Dr. Young as his pal; they chummed together; or rather, the doctor toadied to the boy. He went out of his way to be nice to him. It got so that in a very short while the doctor was discussing his future with him. The time came when young Grogan, in a burst of generosity, signed a will naming his stepfather as chief beneficiary.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Young was having her troubles. She told her father that she was afraid to divorce Young now, because of a trick he had played on her. He had concealed a camera in her boudoir and had taken pictures which he threatened to distribute among his friends if she persisted in her intention of divorce. Hunt advised her to return home—the Youngs were living in a handsome house on Kingsley drive by this time—and have nothing to do with Young. He reminded her that she was paying for the establishment, that it was her home and not his, and that she should shut herself away from him. This she agreed to do.

Another study of the murdered woman taken a short time before the tragedy.

Young Grogan Mysteriously Poisoned

In January of this year young Grogan became ill. The cause of it was this: He had trouble with a tooth and Dr. Young had filled it for him. After the treatment his face swelled and it looked as if he had septic poisoning. Mrs. Young was greatly worried, but did not suspect her husband. The Hunt family, however, did, and Mrs. Young's father told her of his suspicions. While refusing to agree, she conceded his request that another doctor be called in. Dr. J. A. Le Deux was summoned and under his treatment the youth recovered after an illness of three weeks. Had the affair come to the attention of the police Dr. Young would have been extremely embarrassed. Miss Dorothy Leopold, his pretty office assistant, had noticed him experimenting with germ cultures, and detectives might have put two and two together.

As it happened, the incident passed. Dr. Young and his stepson continued the best of friends. There was a definite change in Mrs. Young, however. She was ready now to listen to the pleadings of her father and her brothers, E. R. Hunt and H. A. Hunt. She was fully convinced that the doctor was a dangerous man. That appears evident from the frankness with which she discussed him at family conferences. After thinking it over for a week or so she announced her intention of going to Paris for a divorce.

The effect of this decision on Dr. Young can easily be imagined. He saw himself separated from the luxurious home on Kingsley drive, he who worshipped luxury, who hungered for the rustle of silk and was enraptured by the obsequious purr of a servant's voice. He saw himself separated from his wife's $1000 a month income. And worst of all, he knew that if Mrs. Young left him his relations with her son would be ended. Slowly perhaps, but inevitably they would drift apart. And would he continue to be named the chief beneficiary in young Grogan's will? Certainly, Dr. Young stood face to face with defeat. He had fastened upon this mother and son with the ugly passion of a leech. Now she was planning to shake him loose.

The Murder Plan.

He made up his mind to kill her.

He took every precaution. His own story of the crime, which is not believed in its entirety by the police, but which has not been challenged on point of fact, shows that he planned each step with care and cunning.

On the night of February 21, by his own admission, he drove his wife from their home to his office. There they drank whisky until she was befuddled. Then he took her out to a cabin he owned in Beverly Glen, an unfrequented spot lying at the foot of the mountains behind Beverly Hills, the Hollywood movie colony. When they reached the cabin she had fallen into a doze. Using a rubber mask and funnel, he administered somnoform to her—a liquid gas used by dentists for short anesthesia—until she no longer breathed. Then he stopped her nostrils with cotton and stuffed a rubber bag into her throat.

His next step was to dispose of the body. Previously he had dug a cistern under the floor of the cabin. Into this he threw the murdered woman. The body fell to the concrete floor of the cistern with such force that bones were broken and the face mutilated. But the doctor, in his frenzy, was not minded to care for delicacies of behavior. He worked hastily and fled the scene, driving back to the Kingsley place home.

He had prepared his story in advance by forcing his wife either at the office before the murder or at some other time—he says it was at the office—to sign several blank sheets of paper and address two envelopes. So the next morning he announced to Charles Patrick Grogan that his mother had gone off to Paris to get a divorce. In proof of this assertion he showed the youth receipts for $100,000 in Liberty bonds and $24,000 cash which had been signed, ostensibly by his mother. In reality, the doctor had faked the receipts by using the signatures in blank he had obtained from Mrs. Young.

DR. THOMAS YOUNG

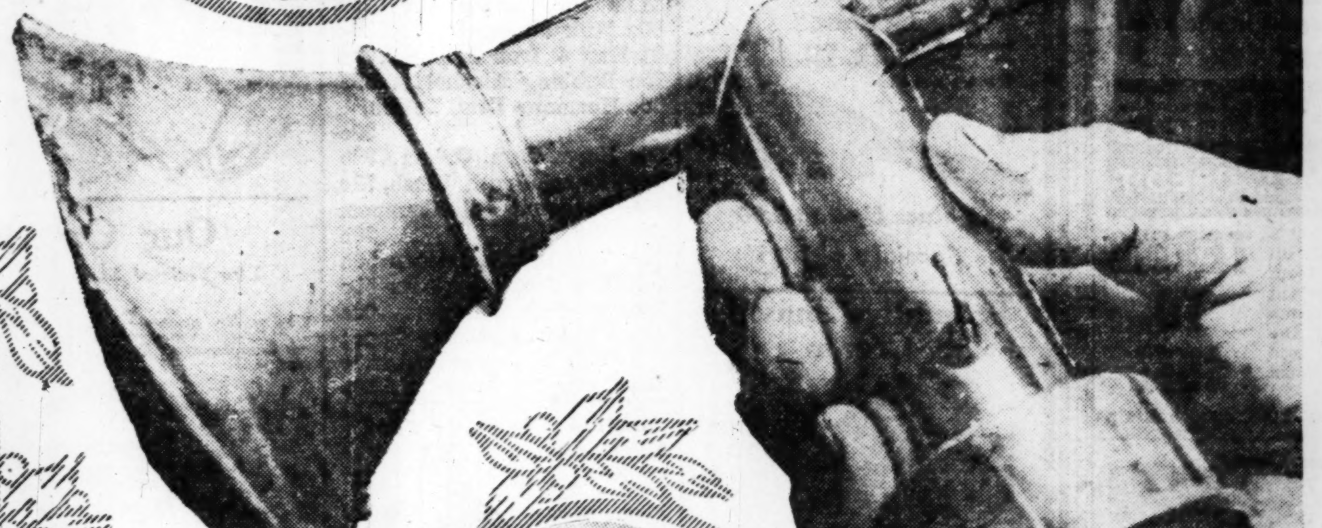
Young Grogan accepted the announcement readily. He had seen that his mother was unhappy and knew she had planned a divorce. Being only 18, however, he did not allow it to worry him, and had made up his mind to stand by his good old pal, Doc Young.

Son Visits Murder Scene.

The second day after the murder Dr. Young suggested to his stepson that they drive out to the Beverly Glen cabin. He explained that he wanted to pour more concrete onto the floor of the cistern because it was not thick enough. Charles Patrick agreed to the expedition. Arrived at the murder scene he cheerfully helped his stepfather mix the concrete and pour it into the cistern.

MISS DOROTHY LEOPOLD

The young woman assistant in Dr. Young's office who helped police clear up the case.



The tube and rubber mask used by Dr. Young in administering the lethal dose of somnoform, a liquid gas employed by dentists when extracting teeth. Dr. Young has confessed that he gave gas to his wife as she dozed in their automobile until she died.

The boy did not know he was helping to cover the body of his murdered mother.

Nothing in Dr. Young's attitude then or thereafter betrayed him. To observers he was his usual debonair self. While they worked concealing the body he joked with young Grogan. Afterwards, he arranged several parties at the cabin to which his stepson and Miss Leopold, his office assistant, were invited.

Mrs. Young's family was not so easily satisfied with the doctor's explanations. He showed Frank Hunt the receipts and even letters purporting to have been written by Mrs. Young from New York. But Hunt was sure his daughter would not have left Los Angeles without telling him good-by. He was certain that Mrs. Young had met with foul play at the hands of her husband. The Hunts suspected him from the first and their suspicions, growing with the weeks, finally aroused the police to action.

After nearly three months had passed, Dr. Young pretended to be convinced that his wife really had disappeared and was not in Paris waiting for a divorce. He engaged Walter Grant, a private detective, to trace her. In trying to make the thing look natural he outdid himself. He ventured to supply Grant with the serial numbers of the Liberty Bonds which Mrs. Young was supposed to have borrowed from him. The detective, conscientiously trying to trace the bonds, discovered that the serial numbers were fictitious. He questioned Young more closely and the doctor became confused. These suspicious actions turned Grant against his client and he communicated his suspicions to the police.

When the police, under direction of District Attorney Asa Keyes and Captain of Detectives James F. Bean took up investigation of Mrs. Young's disappearance they had nothing but a very strong suspicion of her husband to work with. Yet this suspicion proved enough.

Police Suspect Young.

Seldom has a suspect built up by his past life and habits so overwhelming a circumstantial case against himself as Young. His treatment of his wife seemed to be crying proof that he had married her for her money. His passion for money was common gossip among friends and acquaintances. Mrs. Young's personal estate was only about $60,000, but from what the Hunts told them, the police believed that Young intended to kill both his wife and her son. Young Grogan's illness after the treatment Young had given him for his tooth was a significant clew.

Accordingly, Dr. Young was arrested for questioning.

He might have come through the ordeal without convicting himself, but for one thing.

When arrested he was wearing a diamond ring which had belonged to his wife. He had coveted that ring. Doubtless his greedy eyes had gloated over it in prospect many times as it sparkled on his wife's finger. On the night of the murder he stripped it from her dead hand. His passion for wealth—diamonds, money, anything of value—betrayed him.

He wore the ring. And seeing it District Attorney Keyes and his assistants were convinced—utterly convinced—that he was guilty of murder. Had they been less determined they might not have questioned so long—two nights—or so severely. But the ring determined them. They were sure they had the right man. And after hour after hour of grilling, question and answer, question and answer, Dr. Young broke down. Three times he dictated to a stenographer his confession.

Then he directed the police to the cistern in the cabin. Mrs. Young's body was found, under a mask of concrete.

Checking over the details of the murder, police theorists are inclined to doubt that Dr. Young drove his wife to his office and got her befuddled with drink. They believe he murdered her in their home on Kingsley drive by administering somnoform while she slept, then took the body to the cabin. But this was the only point on which any doubt has been voiced. That Dr. Young murdered his wife is certain.

His attorneys are busily at work on an insanity plea.

compare notes with the lender and thus expose McGee.

Those who have delved into the tangle of McGee's affairs can only guess when his dishonesties began. It is supposed, however, that he had been cheating more or less for 15 years.

In order to keep his scehemes afloat it is estimated that he paid out $6500 a year in interest alone. Some clients demanded their money and he had to pay up. The interest, these payments and little losses for speculation were a heavy drain.

Whether McGee actually put away any of his stolen wealth, or whether it was consumed in living expenses and business losses is a moot question in Carthage. The general opinion is, however, that McGee was balancing a dangerous ball which required nearly everything he stole to keep going.

There is nothing but sympathy here for McGee's daughter. She is looked upon as one of the most pathetic victims of his misdeeds. She was popular among the young people of the town when attending Carthage high school and continues to own a long list of friends in Carthage. She is now 19 years old and in junior standing at the University of Kansas.

Mrs. Fabian told the corerspondent that McGee spent very little for his daughter's support. She was obliged to dress economically at school. When he sold the family home McGee remarked to her, Mrs. Fabian said "Now, maybe I can afford to send Helen to a university with this money."

Only once was McGee near detection. On that occasion he tendered Cashier Jacobs of the First National Bank a note of which the bank had an exact duplicate. This was pointed out to him and he hastily withdrew the second note, saying: "My mistake. This was just a copy I had for reference. I mistook it for another note." Jacobs says he thought at the time it "sounded funny," but believed John McGee to be an honest man.

That is the plaint one hears continually in Carthage now. People here are realizing now that the image they reared and called John McGee was a mocking specter of the truth. While they bowed to it the real John McGee was busy right and left, picking pockets.

CLOSED TIE-FLOATING SEASON TO SAVE BASS

Big Timber Companies of State Agree to Aid Izaak Walton League Movement.

So that bass may be safeguarded during their spawning season the tie companies of Missouri have agreed to suspend the floating of ties in Missouri streams between April 15 and June 1, it was announced yesterday by Harry A. Collins, secretary of the Izaak Walton League.

Collins appealed to the companies after anglers had complained that thousands of fish were being lost annually because the tie rafts floating down the Ozark streams during the spawning season tear away and destroy the spawning beds.

"The companies all replied promptly," said Collins, "and pledged themselves to suspend floating of ties during the season I outlined. It was apparent from their replies that they had had no idea of the damage the tie rafts were doing to the spawning beds."

The companies pledging a cessation of rafting in the spawning season are: Potosi Tie and Lumber Co., Abeles & Taussig Lumber and Tie Co., Consumers Tie Service Co., Manassa Timber Co., W. J. Foye Lumber Co., Hussey-Hobbs Tie Co., Scott Tie Co., Western Tie and Timber Co., National Lumber and Creosoting Co., W. J. Delano, Hobart-Lee Tie Co., Long-Bell Lumber Co., Egyptian Tie and Timber Co., Wright Tie Co. and Gross & Janes.

"The pledge of the companies will save more young fish that all the hatchers of Missouri can produce," Congressman Hawes, a member of the league declared. "Black bass are now nearing extinction, and the chance to spawn undisturbed will mean that they can populate our streams again."

CHIROPRACTORS TO CONDUCT DRIVE AGAINST INCOMPETENTS

Newly Formed Organization to Co-operate With Authorities in Campaign.

A campaign to put incompetent chiropractors in the city out of business will be launched soon by the newly organized St. Louis Chiropractors' Association, according to a statement issued yesterday by the Executive Committee.

Ways and means of conducting the campaign will be decided at the next monthly meeting of the association, July 7, and the campaign will start immediately thereafter. Guy Mullen, chairman of the Executive Committee, said yesterday it was the purpose of the association, not only to co-operate with authorities, but to obtain evidence against all persons engaging in the profession of chiropractic who have not obtained diplomas from reputable chiropractic colleges.

40-ACRE TRACT IN COUNTY SOLD BY SCULLIN ESTATE

Land on South Side of the Clayton Near Conway Road to Be Opened as Subdivision.

AMOUNT INVOLVED NOT DISCLOSED

Other Notable Suburban Deals Include Sale of 12 Acres Adjoining Algonquin Club Grounds.

By Berry Moore.

Activity in realty in St. Louis County continues to be maintained at a notable stage and from all indications is not restricted in scope. A movement which bids fair to be of large proportions manifestly is progressing in this field.

The Scullin estate, through the Mercantile Trust Co. executor, yesterday sold 40 acres on the south side of the Clayton west of the Conway road, to Frank Tegethoff, of Clayton, who has original subdivision plans. The amount involved was not disclosed.

The tract was formerly used as the St. Louis County Fair Grounds.

A tract of 19 acres adjoining on the east was sold through the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. for a client, but the identity of the purchaser is withheld.

Sale Near Algonquin Club.

A record transaction of the week embraced 12 acres on the Berry road, adjoining the golf course of the Algonquin Golf Club, through the McMichaels-Overhoff Real Estate Co., in connection with Kent Jarvis, realtor.

This tract was acquired by A. M. Allemang, president and H. W. Rush, vice-president of the Domestic Electric Co., members of the Algonquin Club, who contemplate erecting handsome residences on part of the tract for their own occupancy, and restricting the remainder for fashionable homes.

The former owner, Edith M. Deacon, a client of Jarvis, was paid at the rate of approximately $4000 an acre, which registers a new high price for improved land in this section of St. Louis County, according to the agents.

Description of Tracts.

The tract has a frontage of 1100 feet on Berry Road and a frontage of 1500 feet adjoining the Algonquin Golf Course, by which it is almost completely surrounded. It is on the east side of the Berry road and south of the Kirkwood-Ferguson line and is opposite the pretentious stone residence being erected by Edward T. Hall, president of the Ralston Purina Co.

The new addition which will be restricted to residences costing $25,000, will be known as Algonquinwood by virtue of the dense growth of timber on the land. It is receiving the attention of members of the Algonquin Club who have building plans, according to the McMichaels-Overhoff Real Estate Co. which has been made selling agent of the addition.

This activity reflects the growth of the city into the county and is increasing with crystallization of sentiment for extension of the city limits.

Davis Place Another Example.

Davis Place, just beyond the city limits on the Clayton road, forms a notable instance of the city's westward growth. An addition exclusively for duplex homes has been conceived in Davis place, which embraces the former estate of the late Samuel C. Davis. It is being developed on an ambitious scale by Everett Davis, president of the E. Davis Realty Co., which has been an important factor in urban expansion.

As was told in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch, the Ben Altheimer & Brother Realty Co., has purchased the Weber tract of 196 acres at the northwest corner of Page avenue and Woodson road for a subdivision of 50,000 front feet. The rush for lots in this addition has already begun.

Another noteworthy development incident to the city's growth, is Ridgeview on the Manchester road, which will be launched today by the Magray Realty Co., in connection with A. R. Schollmeyer & Co.

As a result of this movement obviously in response to the senti-

It is on the east side of the Berry road and south of the Kirkwood-Ferguson line and is opposite the pretentious stone residence being erected by Edward T. Hall, president of the Ralston Purina Co.

The new addition which will be restricted to residences costing $[illegible]5,000, will be known as Algonquinwood by virtue of the dense growth of timber on the land. It is receiving the attention of members of the Algonquin Club who have building plans, according to the McMichaels-Overhoff Real Estate Co. which has been made selling agent of the addition.

This activity reflects the growth of the city into the county and is increasing with crystallization of sentiment for extension of the city limits.

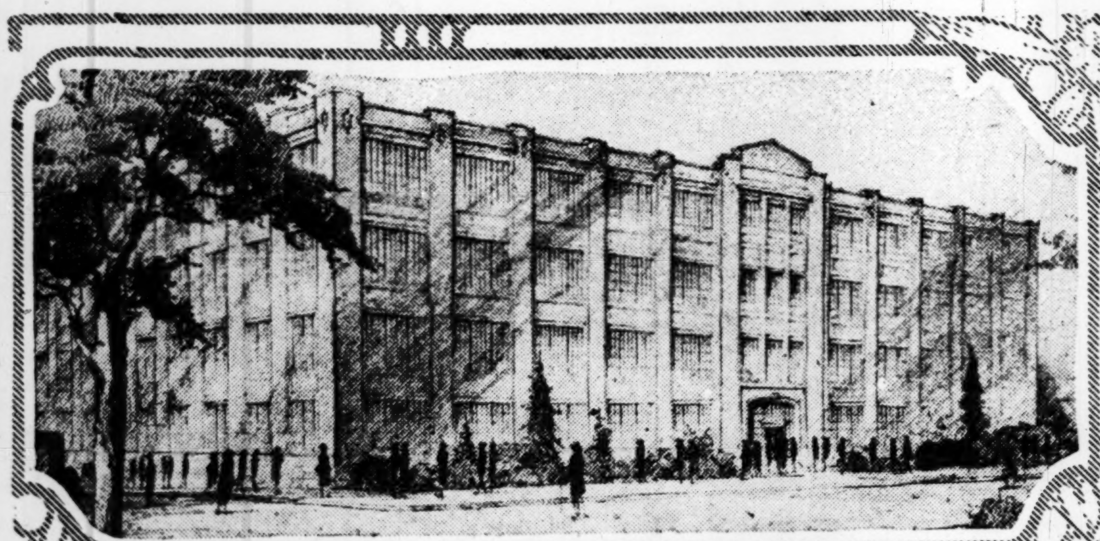
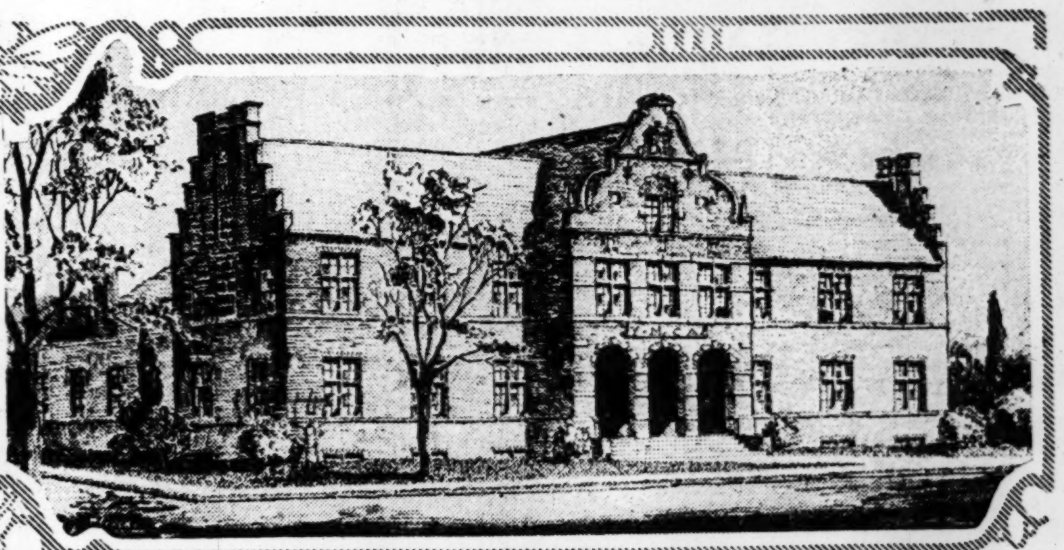
Another noteworthy development incident to the city's growth, is Ridgeview on the Manchester road, which will be launched today by the Magray Realty Co., in connection with A. R. Schollmeyer & Co.

As a result of this movement obviously in response to the sentiment aroused for annexation, there has been a very substantial advance in the prices of land in the suburban field.

New Y. M. C. A. Building, Fraternity House and Residences Under Construction

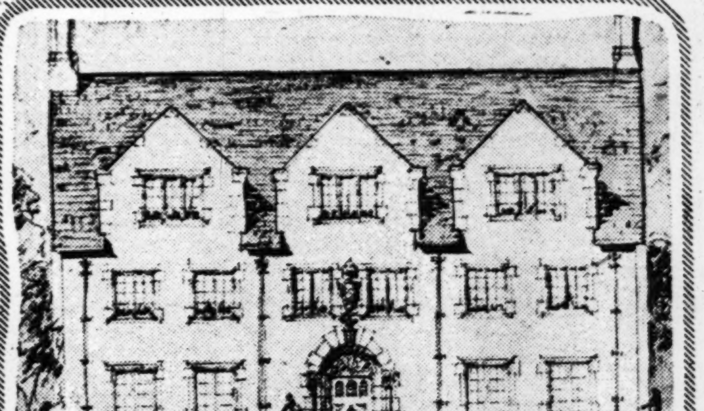


New St. Louis factory, to be built at the northeast corner of Forest Park boulevard and Boyle avenue, for the Johnson-Stevens & Shinkle Shoe Co. Le Beaume & Klein, architects.

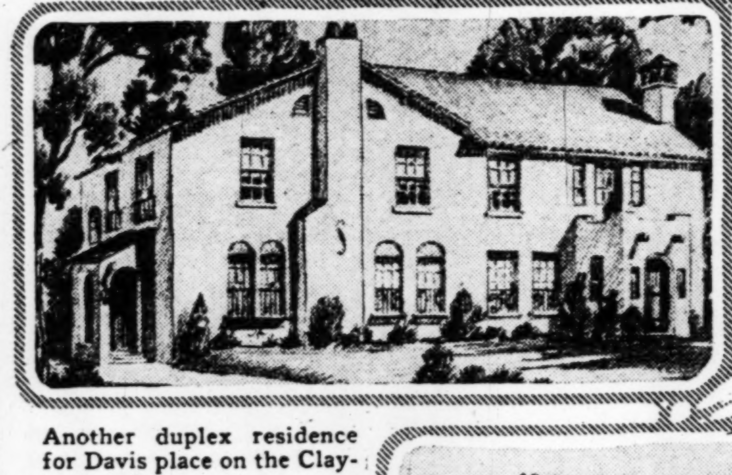


Building for Carondelet branch of the Y. M. C. A., to be erected at the southwest corner of Loughborough and Vermont avenues. Study & Farrar, architects.

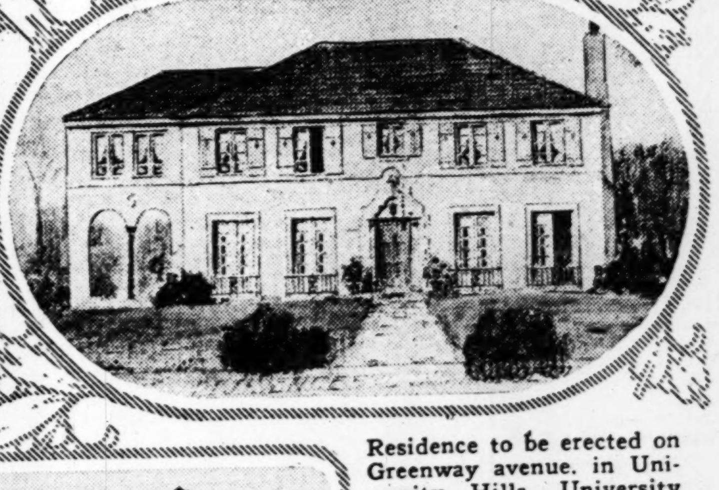
Residence of Wm. Le Beaume at 5320 Waterman avenue, which has been purchased by Mrs. Anne S. Wood.



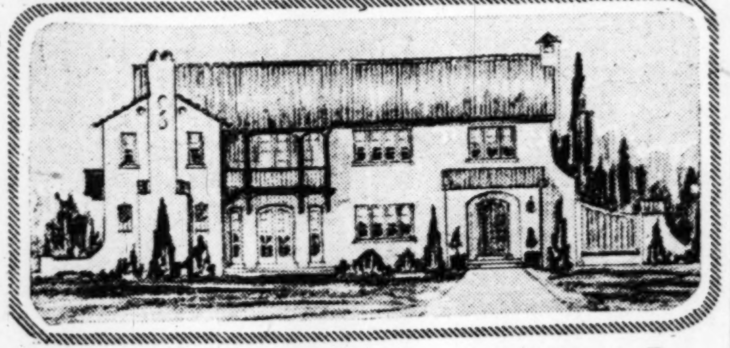
New chapter house, in course of construction on Washington University campus, for Tau chapter of Sigma Chi fraternity. Jamieson & Spearl, architects.



Another duplex residence for Davis place on the Clayton road.



Residence to be erected on Greenway avenue. in University Hills, University City, for Dr. A. H. Deppe. Kleingensmith - Rice - Wilkins, architects.



Spanish duplex residence, nearing completion in Pasadena, Webster, at Big Bend road and Selma avenue, for Edwin H. Hess.

CARONDELET Y. M. C. A. TO BE BUILT IN FALL

Fireproof Structure to Have Capacity of 1000 Men and Boys.

The second of the five new buildings provided for in the development fund, raised a little more than a year ago by the Young Men's Christian Association of St. Louis, will be begun early in the fall. The final plans are now being drawn by Study & Farrar, architects for this building, which is to be erected at the southwest corner of Loughborough and Vermont avenues.

The building is to form a unit of a civic center of which the Blow School will form the central motif. It is proposed that all the buildings of this civic group shall be designed in harmony with the present Blow School. The architects of the Y. M. C. A. will carry out their design in the same style.

The building is to be of a rich dark red brick of varying shades laid in Flemish bond, and will be enriched with cut stone details. The building is to have a capacity of 1000 men and boys, and the architects have so designed the building that two additional stories may be added.

The main wing of the building will contain social rooms for men and boys, administration offices and classrooms. In the rear wings of the building are placed the gymnasium and swimming pool. Bowling alleys are also provided. The building will be of reinforced concrete construction throughout and will be fireproof. The lot is well located and adapted to whatever additions may be required in the future, such as wings. A large playground to the west of the building is also to be a part of this plant.

PROPERTY AT 4491 WEST PINE WAS SOLD FOR $21,000

In the report of the sale of 4491 West Pine boulevard in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch the price paid was printed as $12,000 instead of $21,000, due to a typographical error. The property, which was owned by Jerome J. Schotten, was purchased by Elizabeth L. Moser through Edward L. Bakewell, realtor.

Hugo Wurdack Buys Lindell Drive Site

Of noteworthy interest was the purchase yesterday of 150 feet on the north side of Lindell drive, 2500 feet west of Union boulevard, by Hugo Wurdack as a site for a residence, through the Franciscus Realty Co. The ground was owned by Theron and Daniel Catlin.

Another purchase through the Franciscus Realty Co. was that of 200 feet on the south side of Forsythe boulevard, 1000 feet west of Skinker road, by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Taylor, a client of M. H. Rodemyer, who will erect a home on the site. Theron and Daniel Catlin were the grantors in this transaction.

WORK BEGUN ON $40,000 SIGMA CHI CHAPTER HOUSE

Work was started last week on the Chapter House, on Washington University campus, for Tau Tau Chapter of Sigma Chi Fraternity.

The house will consist of three stories and basement. It will be built of brick, trimmed with stone, and will contain sufficient sleeping quarters for 31 men. It will cost approximately $40,000 and the furnishings will cost about $5000 additional. It is expected to be ready for occupancy by Thanksgiving Day.

The construction is being carried out by Woermann Construction Co. Jamieson & Spearl are the architects. The house is being constructed under the auspices of Tau Tau Chapter of Sigma Chi Fraternity Building Association, which has had active charge of raising the funds and will operate the house for the benefit of the active chapter. Officers of the Association are: Daniel A. Ruebel, president; Lucius Robb, vice-president; A. Sidney Johnston, treasurer; George M. Hagee, secretary; W. W. Horner, Leigh Turner and Sherman Senne, trustees; Harry D. Payne is chairman of the building committee.

EDWARD L. BAKEWELL SELLS NATHAN FRANK RESIDENCE

Dr. Lillian Arensdale purchased, through the office of Edward L. Bakewell, the residence of Nathan Frank at 4404 West Pine boulevard. It is a 12-room house situated on a lot fronting 65 feet on West Pine and 125 feet on Newstead avenue.

Dr. Arensdale will occupy the residence as her office and home. She will remodel the first floor.

NEW FACTORY UNIT FOR SHOE COMPANY

Johnson-Stephens and Shinkle Build Annex on Forest Park Boulevard.

The Johnson-Stephens & Shinkle Shoe Co., in response to the growth of the business, has begun the erection of a large new factory building at the northeast corner of Boyle avenue and Forest Park boulevard, directly south of their present central factory. The lot measures 200 feet on Boyle avenue by 187 feet, 6 inches on Forest Park boulevard. The new building will be U shaped, with a frontage on Forest Park boulevard. The completed structure will contain about 120,000 square feet.

Of factory type mill construction, it will be thoroughly equipped with the most modern manufacturing and labor-saving devices. The building will be four stories high, its exterior of No. 100 face brick, and the large window openings filled with Fenestra sash. It will be heated from the central heating plant in the present factory building on Laclede avenue.

The first section of the building, now under construction, will be 53 feet wide by 200 feet deep and consist of two floors and a high basement. This unit, when completed, will provide 29,000 square feet. The plans have been prepared by La Beaume & Klein, architects, Compton building, and the construction is under their supervision. Thomas J. Manahan is the general contractor. Sprinklers are being installed by the Rockwood Sprinkler Co. The unit now building will be ready for occupancy about Aug. 15.

Albert T. Terry & Co. report having closed the sale of the home of William W. LaBeaume, 5320 Waterman avenue, to Mrs. Anne S. Wood.

Also sold the northwest corner of Twenty-ninth and Pine streets, improved with a double brick residence of 15 rooms, for John Keegan to Roscoe F. Crenshaw.

Residence of Charles P. Ladd at 4354 McPherson avenue to Samuel C. and James McCluney, trustees.

AIR CIRCUS TODAY AT SUBDIVISION OPENING

Squadron of State Guard Will Do Stunts Over Ridgeview on Manchester Road.

Stunt flying by an air squadron of the Missouri National Guard is a feature arranged by E. R. Bailey, general manager of the Magray Realty Co., for the formal opening today of the newest Schollmeyer development, Ridgeview.

The tract, comprising 53 acres, has a 900-foot business frontage on a high elevation on Manchester road between Denny and Geyer roads.

The frontage is divided into 32 business lots with corners 40 by 125 feet deep to a 20-foot business alley, and inside business lots 25 by 125 feet.

The residential lots havs a uniform frontage of 65 feet by 113 feet deep, east and west fronts.

The streets are 40 feet wide.

The Magray company, with offices at 204-5 Wainwright Building, is the selling agent. Walter K. Heikes is president.

Lieut. Arthur J. Smith of the 138th Infantry, Missouri State National Guard, has donated for the day the services of the 110th Air Squadron of the 35th Division of the Missouri Guard, with 10 planes commanded by Maj. W. H. Leininger, overseas veteran with several German planes to his credit.

The squadron will give an air circus over the subdivision for recruiting purposes.

The 138th Infantry band of 60 pieces, directed by Bandmaster Crow, will furnish music. Its services were donated by Col. A. E. Deitsch, commanding the 138th Regiment, Missouri National Guard. Incidentally this will launch a recruiting drive by Col. Deitsch to fill up the ranks of the 138th Infantry prior to its departure on Aug. 1 for the State encampment.

Sewers, water and electric mains, cement sidewalks, curbing and hard surfaced streets are now being constructed and will be included in the prices at which the lots are sold.

FEW LOTS UNSOLD IN WESTMOOR PARK

Westmoor Park, at the southwest corner of Clayton road and Pennsylvania avenue, is an outstanding subdivision success. Only 40 of a total of 730 lots remain unsold in this addition, which was placed on the market three years ago through the Joseph Darst Realty Co.

Many of the lots have been resold at profits of $10 to $30 a foot, according to Lawrence Darst, in charge of the development.

Flats, houses and stores aggregating in cost more than $200,000 have been erected in this addition. Since March 1, 76 lots have been sold to builders. The Darst Realty Co. is supervising construction of 45 flats and bungalows which are being offered for sale on favorable terms.

The tract, which was placed on sale by a syndicate headed by Ralph Coale and Edward Butler, has complete surface and underground improvements.

MANY SALES REPORTED BY WAGNER-GRANT-BELL CO.

The Wagner-Grant-Bell Real Estate Co. reports another busy month, with sales approaching the $1,000,000 mark. These figures include transactions involving apartment buildings, flats, vacant ground and residences, according to C. E. Cravens, sales manager of the concern. A notable number of high class residences in the city and in the county feature this showing, illustrative of an active and broad real estate market.

SITE ON BINGHAM AVENUE SOLD FOR BOX FACTORY

The Philip H. Lenz & Son Realty Co. reports the sale to the F. J. Schleicher Paper Box Co. of a lot fronting 655 feet on the north line of Bingham avenue. The paper box company will build a new factory on this site.

Philip H. Lenz & Son also report the sale of a 50-foot lot on the north line of McRee avenue to E. E. Baker, who has started building a four-family flat there.

You are invited to join the thousands who will visit "The Mansion" in Davis Place today. The large rooms of this stately, historical home have been transformed into an unusual exhibition of modern furniture and decorations by Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney. The wide, cool veranda, the huge lawn with its trees and shrubbery, the lake by the roadside, make it an ideal spot for your Sunday outing. You may bring your Sunday evening lunch and eat it on the grounds. "The Mansion" is your Country Club for the summer.

P. G. ANTON

The Sunday concerts by this popular St. Louis orchestra are attracting big crowds each week. Every member is an artist. The program ranges from classical to popular numbers. There are seats for 1000 on the lawn and parking space for your car. No charge or obligation.

REMEMBER
—the Free Musicales every Friday evening at "The Mansion." Public invited.

You Can Own a Half-Duplex in Davis Place for $15,000 and Up, With Reasonable Terms of Payment

Or you can own the whole Duplex, live in one half and rent the other half. These modern two-family dwellings are the last word in home satisfaction and economy. You carry the load of only half a residence and you have the advantages of living amidst ideal surroundings.*Davis Place is away from the crowded conditions, the heavy traffic, the unhealthy coal smoke of the congested city. Yet it is on the very edge of the solid building line, and connected with the city by three boulevards and two street car lines.Davis Place enables you to give your wife and family the environment you desire for them at a price you can afford. Lots at present selling for $70 a foot (amounting to $35 per foot for each family) will advance rapidly in the next 18 to 24 months. That is why shrewd judges of real estate are buying them in blocks of two or more.

Buy well located real estate and let St. Louis' growth make profits for you. Also buy from month to month First Mortagage 6% Real Estate Gold Bonds sold by this company. Each bond is secured by good income property. Issued in amounts of $50, $100, $500 and $1000.

Davis Realty Company

Ground Floor, Eleventh and Locust Streets

To reach Davis Place drive to the Clayton Courthouse, then south and west to the North and South Road, and turn south to the entrance to "The Mansion."

—An Investment
—A Home
—An Income

You have all three when you own a modern Duplex in Davis Place. Your investment is protected by restrictions which require all two-family dwellings to resemble single residences. No two plans can be alike. You live in a pretentious home with fine homes all about you. You can rent the other half and pay for the whole house with the income.

Gannondale

(UNIVERSITY CITY)

6, 7 and 8 Rooms

Gannondale is at Delmar Bl., between Hanley and the North and South Bls., Kirkwood-Ferguson car line or People's Bus from Delmar—6600 west.

Every Majestic Home, regardless of size, is built throughout of the finest material, erected under constant architectural and engineering supervision. Each Majestic Home is individually designed by an architect.

Every Majestic Home is a part of a Majestic community. All the homes in the community are Majestic Homes. In this way there is no uncertainty of community developments. The community standard is certain and fixed.

MAJESTIC BUYING PLAN

You can buy a Majestic Home just the same as you can buy any other home . . . . or you can buy a Majestic Home in a way that you cannot buy any other home. There is a Majestic way of home buying which permits the purchase of a home almost entirely out of income, rather than capital.

At both Gannondale and Los Angeles (St. Louis) one of the Majestic Homes has been completely decorated and furnished by Stix, Baer & Fuller. These furnished homes are open Sunday and daily until 9:30 in the evening.

Can You Afford to Speculate?

MARK THIS: More rich men in St. Louis owe their wealth to real estate investments than to any other cause—no other investment is so safe.

If you had invested at Kingshighway and Delmar when Grand and Olive was an assured fact, or at Hamilton and Delmar or in Delmar Garden very recently, what wisdom you would have shown.

An investment in UNIVERSITY PARK today, in this "PATH OF VALUES" along Delmar Boulevard is not SPECULATION.

There is only one Delmar Boulevard. Values decrease South and North in proportion to the distance from Delmar Boulevard.

Joy Home

We would be pleased to have you inspect a beautiful English-designed home that we have just completed. This home is furnished by E. E. Schnoldt & Co. It has a side entrance hall, large living room with open fireplace, nice-sized dining room and one of those handy Joy kitchens and a breakfast room on the first floor; second floor, one master bedroom and two others and two baths. There also is a toilet and lavatory on the first floor. This home has hot-water heat and an attached garage which is heated.

This home is located on Parkhurst terrace, which runs south of Swon, between Gray and Jefferson av., the most convenient neighborhood in Webster, and I think the prettiest.

This home will be open for inspection from 9 to 9 every day until sold, so if you can't come to see it today, come some day or evening during the week.

BUNGALOW HOMES OF 4, 5, 6 AND 7 ROOMS

Los Angeles is located 7200 west, just beyond the intersection of the Natural Bridge Road and the Florissant Road, and can be reached by automobile, bus or the Kirkwood-Ferguson car line.

Every Majestic home, regardless of size, is built throughout of the finest material, erected under constant architectural and engineering supervision. Each Majestic home is individually designed by an architect.

Every Majestic home is a part of a Majestic community. All the homes in the community are Majestic homes. In this way there is no uncertainty of community developments. The community standard is certain and fixed.

MAJESTIC BUYING PLAN

You can buy a Majestic home just the same as you can buy any other home.....or you can buy a Majestic home in a way that you cannot buy any other home. There is a Majestic way of home buying which permits the purchase of a home almost entirely out of income, rather than capital.

At both Los Angeles and Gannondale one of the Majestic homes has been completely decorated and furnished by Stix, Baer & Fuller. These furnished homes are open Sunday and daily until 9:30 in the evening.

PRICE WILL SURPRISE YOU
Mr. Homeseeker: If you have $1500 cash I want you to see what I have in a home and income proposition at 5352 Vernon av., one of the nicest and most convenient residential districts in good ol' St. Louis town, adjacent to grammar, junior high and high schools, churches, library, Union and Hodiamont cars and bus line, on a newly paved asphalt street flanked by shade trees. I have a well-constructed 12-room home with hardwood floors, tile bath and newly installed furnace, of which I use 8 rooms on the first and second floors and rent the four (full-size) room apartment on the third floor for $47.50. How's that? Beats a flat all hollow, doesn't it? The rooms are spacious and oh boy, what an invigorating breeze sweeps the entire house, even on the hottest evening. I have a large lot, 40x125 feet, with shade trees, hedge and flowers and a side drive leading to a two-car garage. The terms are less than rent. Card to inspect from REED BELL, 323 Wainwright Bldg. Olive 5738.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

J. A. T.—The old Century Theater was located on the north side of Olive street, between Ninth and Tenth. The entrance was, however, nearer to Ninth street than Tenth street. The above theater was opened on Sept. 28, 1896, and closed its doors April 12, 1913. The space occupied by the theater was added to the store of Scruggs-Vandervoort and Barney Dry Goods Co.

P.-D. READER.—Following is a recipe for pineapple frappe: 2 cups of water, 1 cup of sugar, juice of 3 lemons, 2 cups ice water, 1 can grated pineapple or pineapple shredded. Make a syrup by boiling water and sugar 15 minutes; add pineapple and lemon juice; cool, strain, add ice water, and freeze to a mush, using equal parts of ice and salt. If fresh fruit is used, more sugar will be required.

READER.—The following formula used in cleaning silver ornaments: Make a strong solution of soft soap and water, and in this boil the articles for a few minutes—five minutes will usually be enough. Take out, pour the soap solution into a basin, and as soon as the liquid has cooled down sufficiently to be borne by the hand, with a soft brush scrub the articles with it. Rinse in boiling water and place on a porous substance (a bit of tiling, a brick, or unglazed earthenware) to dry. Finally give a light rubbing with a chamois. Articles thus treated look as bright as new.

A. S. D.—Felt hats are dyed by repeated immersion drawing and dipping in a hot watery solution of logwood 38 parts, green vitriol 3 parts, verdigris 2 parts; repeat the immersions and drawing with exposure to the air 13 or 14 times, or until the color suits, each step in the process lasting from 10 to 15 minutes. Aniline colors may be advantageously used instead of the above. For a stiffening, dissolve borax 10 parts, carbonate of potash 3 parts, in hot water; then add shellac, 50 parts, and boil until all is dissolved; apply with a sponge or a brush, or by immersing the hat when it is cold, and dip at once in very dilute sulphuric or acetic acid to neutralize the alkali and fix the shellac. Felt hats can be bleached by the use of sulphuric acid gas.

READER—Postage stamps were invented in 1834 and were introduced into America in 1847.

Z. Y. X.—The sand, out of which glass is made, is melted until it is of about the consistency of molasses. It is then poured into a casting trough or a table mounted on wheels so it can be run close to the mouth of the furnace. The molten glass is poured into the trough through a sluice-way, and before it hardens, heavy rollers pass over it, reducing it to the required thickness. It is rolled to about nine-sixteenths of an inch, and then by further rolling and polishing it is reduced to the required thickness. It further passes through a smelting oven which thoroughly hardens it. Then, it is again polished.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

E. R. J.—They can take back the furniture if you do not keep up your payments on it.

MISS M.—A girl can marry without her parents' consent, at the age of 18, in Illinois.

R. S. A.—It is not necessary for a psycho-analyst to have a license.

PEENUTZ.—They can hold you to your contract, and can sue you for the balance which you agreed to pay on the book.

OLD LADY SMITH.—We do not know of any State which has a law prohibiting a man to hit another one who wears glasses, but there may be some.

F. S. S.—(1) If the easement is recorded then the purchaser takes the property subject to the easement. (2) You can advertise the property for sale and sell it yourself without employing a real estate dealer, if you wish to do so.

A READER.—We do not think that he can get any pay for the time after he was sent home from camp. However, he might consult a lawyer, or write to his Senator or Congressman regarding this claim.

LITTLE VIOLA.—His property would go to his mother and to his brothers and sisters, whether or not the latter were married. This is in the event that he left no will.

J. H. M. — A lease cannot be terminated by 30 days' notice. On the other hand, no notice whatever need be given at the expiration of the lease. The real estate company can hold the tenant responsible for the rent until the lease expires.

R. M.-444.—Unmarried mothers with their children are as a general rule excluded from the United States. If they were admitted, and later became public charges, or were guilty of immoral conduct, they might be deported.

MRS. S.—Of course the best thing for you to do would be to go down to Oklahoma and find out about your land for yourself. If you cannot do that, write to a lawyer in the county seat of the county where the land is located. Consult a legal directory at the Public Library, for the names of lawyers.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

LAURA.—Do not neglect such a condition; have a complete physical examination made, particularly of the chest.

EUGENE. — The condition is suggestive of a fistula, especially if the discharge has an odor. We advise your consulting a physician.

P. D. Q.—We do not know of a preventative against poison ivy. In the event of poisoning keep continuously applied cloths soaked with ice cold saturated solution of boric acid.

FRANK.—The condition is likely caused by faulty digestion or constipation or both. We suggest correction of constipation, if present, and a diet of easily digested food with plenty of fresh vegetables and fruit.

REGULAR READER.—(1) The operation can be corrected and we would not consider it a major operation. (2) We would advise the operation. It would take from two to three weeks to recover.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear father, John Krausert, who passed away June 26, 1924. Gone but not forgotten. Sadly missed by SONS, DAUGHTER AND GRANDCHILDREN.

In memory of our only beloved son, Everett Thomas, who entered into rest June 28, 1918. Sadly missed by his mother, Mary Alice Boss, and Four Sisters, Effie, Bessie, Thelma and Dolly.

In memory of Josephine Seekar, who departed this life June 24, 1922:

Where the sunshine loves to linger and the raindrops quickly fall,
Sleeping there so peacefully waiting for us all.

Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

In loving memory of my dearly beloved wife Bertha Haring, who departed this life one year ago, July 1st, 1924. Sadly missed by HUSBAND, DAUGHTERS, GRANDCHILDREN AND ALL WHO LOVER HER.

In loving momery of our dear father, William G. Thirolf, who left this life June 26, 1924.

Our dearest of hearts has gone,
The voice we loved is stilled.
The place made vacant in our hearts
Can never more be filled.

Sadly missed by wife and children and all who loved him.

In loving remembrance of our dearly beloved wife and mother, Mrs. Louisa Kessler (nee Muhs), who died June 25, 1924.

We often sit and think of you
When we are all alone.
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.

Loving husband and children.

In sad but everlasting memory of our dear beloved daughter, Mabel E. Jones, who passed away June 30, 1920.

Sadly missed by parents and all who loved her.
MR. AND MRS. CLARENCE J. JONES.

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Louis Loebig, who departed this life two years ago, June 24. Sadly missed by HIS WIFE AND FAMILY.

In loving memory of my darling mother, Pauline Schaefer, who passed away June 25, 1923.

Where the sunshine loves to linger
And the raindrops quietly fall,
Sleeping there so peaceful
Waiting for us all.

Sadly missed by daughter,
MRS. G. LEINE AND FAMILY.

In loving memory of our dear sister, Mary Edke, mother of Miss L. Erke, who departed this life one year ago, July 2, 1924.

Just a year has past, dear one, since God has called you
To the home where you have longed to go,
Where love and peace now surround you.
True, our Saviour who those love us so;
And the words that you have often spoken, has proved:
Yes, very true, that we feel your spirit present,
And which cheers and comforts us anew.

Sadly missed by her daughter and her loved ones.
REV. C. RINDERER.

In loving memory of our darling daughter, Gwendolyn Ingram, who departed this life June 27, 1924:

'Tis a year ago today you left us, darling Gwendolyn, and life without you, my darling, is not the same; we miss your smile and cheery face, the sunshine of our home, but now is dark and dreary, Gwendolyn, since God has called you to His throne. Sadly missed by the FAMILY.

In loving remembrance of our dear brother and husband, Albert Miller, who departed this life June 24, 1924.

The golden sun is shining
Upon our Albert's grave.
One we loved so dearly
And tried so hard to stay
And when we lost our Albert
We lost our dearest pal.
We love you and we miss you
And forever shall.
So rest in peace, dear Albert;
Your place in heaven bower.
The day when we shall meet you
Grows nearer every hour.

Sadly missed by
WIFE, MOTHER, SISTERS AND BROTHER. (c)

In memory of our beloved wife and mother, Mrs. Catherine Brantigam, who departed this life June 28, 1924.

Our home is no home
Our mother's not there.
The angels have taken her
Out of our care.
Dark is her room, empty her chair,
She has gone to her home
Peaceful and fair
A mother true and kind.
No dearer friend on earth we'd find.
Therefore God grant her eternal rest.
Do not ask us if we miss her.
Oh; there's such a vacant place
Oft we think we hear her footsteps
Or we see her smiling face.
We miss you here, we miss you there,
Oh, mother, we miss you everywhere.

Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

Anybody can spend heavy dough for a used car. It takes a smart man to buy a good used car cheap.

He goes to Yahlem's.

HEADQUARTERS YAHLEM'S FOR USED CARS

If cheap prices were music, Yahlem would be the world's biggest brass band. Now he is the largest used car dealer. But that's 'nuff.

EXTRA! EXTRA! EXTRA!

6000 SATISFIED CUSTOMERS CALL YAHLEM "USED CAR KING"

"NO INTEREST" PUTS YAHLEM IN FIRST DIVISION!

This may look like a newspaper "extra," but honest-to-goodness, folks, it's the biggest real extra ever published. Yahlem has whaled the stuffings out of used car prices and that's the "why" of his leaving competitors in the dust.

You ain't seen nothin' till you see Yahlem's used cars.

15 Swell Reasons Why You SHOULD Trade at Yahlem's
1—No Interest
2—Cheap Prices
3—No Brokerage
4—A Year to Pay
5—300 Used Cars on Display
6—No Red Tape
7—No Fuss
8—No Foolish Questions
9—6000 Satisfied Customers
10—Satisfaction Guaranteed
11—Biggest Dealer in West
12—No Competition
13—Real Bargains
14—Regular Fellows
15—No Hokum

How come 198 Good Folks bought used cars from Yahlem in May?

Simple as flopping off a log. When people trade with the Used Car Wizard they know he has nothing up his sleeve.

Every time Yahlem sells a car he makes a new booster. Boosters bring their friends.

And that's that!

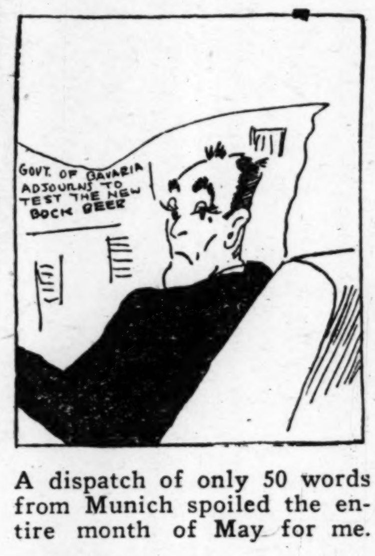
Ring Lardner's Letter to the Editor

TO THE EDITOR:

Not long ago I seen a acct. of a debate between 2 college debate teams and the subject disgust was whether or not the newspapers should ought to publish crime news and whether the publication of same was libel to increase crime or decrease same and the acct. did not state what arguments was used on one side or the other side but the side that spoke vs. publication win the debate and what they must have argued was that the romance and heroics connected with a bold burglary or hold-up or murder inspires young readers to follow the example to say nothing of the financial gains enjoyed by the criminals till they get caught.

However the undersigned ain't never felt no crave towards law breaking by reading about it and if anything just the opp, and a specially when I follow the story up and see the finish of the boys that went wrong. The glory and excitement and currency which comes as a reward of grand larceny and etc. ain't never going to make up for spending a summer without golf at Joliet, Sing Sing or Jefferson City or wearing a piece of braided hemp for a neck tie.

THEY may of been quite a thrill to be got out of the story of Joe Diamond's iron nerve as he set in the chair waiting for them to turn on the current but when the story was printed Joe was where newspaper deliveries is very uncertain. And wile a good many of us was no doubt envious at all them love letters the gals was writing to Gerald Chapman still and all I personly would rather have the postman hand me a dozen gas bills through my own front door than a 1000 mash notes between the iron bars of a Connecticut death cell.



GOVT. OF BAVARIA ADJOURNS TO TEST THE NEW BOCK BEER

A dispatch of only 50 words from Munich spoiled the entire month of May for me.

No I don't believe crime news makes others go and do likewise, but I do think they should ought to be a censorship for newspapers which would bar out news that certainly does incite people to not only crime of all kinds, but to divorce, revolution, sedition, wife desertion, anarchy and all around nashing of teeth, the news I refer to being the hundreds of items and stories which appears in the papers every day and which the sole purpose of same seems to be to make everybody wished they was somebody else.

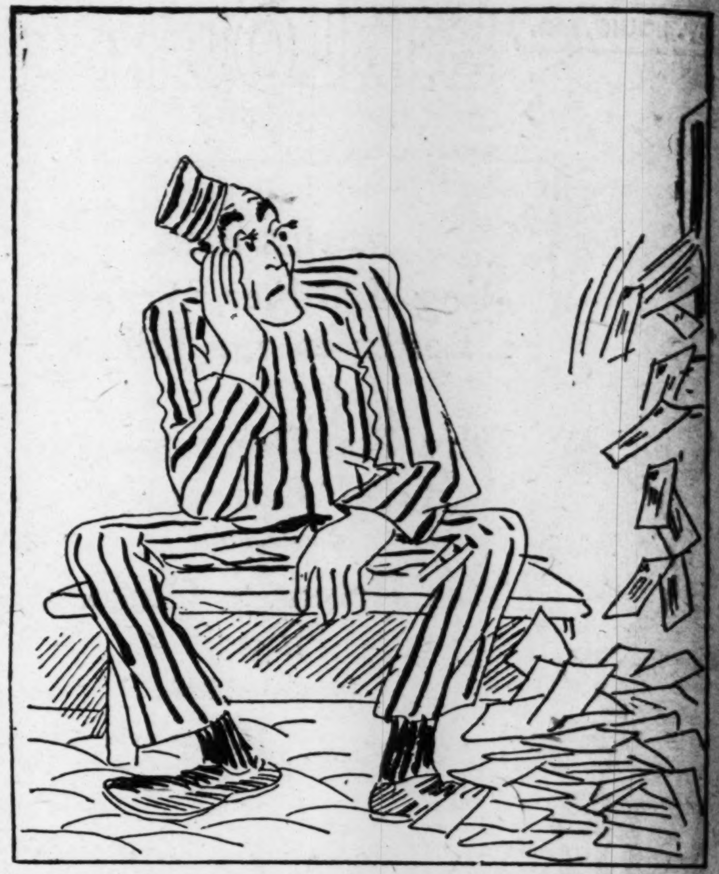
A sample of the kind of item I mean was a recent dispatch from Munich only about 50 words long but it spoiled for me the entire month of May. The item said that the government and diet of Bavaria had adjourned for a whole day so as the members could make a thorough test of the new bock beer. In the face of such a item as that how is a person going to appreciate the beauties of a Long Island spring time or the fresh sweet milk supplied by she who we have aptly named Bossie?

Or the story that was printed in regards to the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dempsey in N. Y. city and they was a bran new spick and span $16000.00 automobile at the depot to meet them with a livered chauffeur and Mrs. Dempsey asked Jack if it belonged to some friend and he says no sweetheart it is just a little trinket I bought for you. Well gents after that do you imagine that she whom I sometimes call my Mrs. is libel to get excited over the 60 cents worthy of candy which I carefully selected at the station news stand as I dashed by to catch the 5.55?

OR THE story about Gloria getting rid of a Swede name like Swanson and become the Marquise de la Falaise de la Coudray at one fell swoop and when they have read that kind of news how is women folks going to be satisfied with husbands named Jones and Brown and without no title to go with it except maybe licensed garbage inspector or even worthy kleagle?

Or a story like the one about the dame that come home from the other side a few weeks ago and had to pay a duty of $5000.00 on the new gowns and etc. she bought in gay Paris and when our gals reads stuff along those lines what a fat chance we have got to argue with them about blowing as much as $85 on a complete new summer wardrobe?

Or a story like the one about the doctor that took out his own appendix without no antiseptic or nothing and smiled and chatted during the operation. Suppose your wife reads that, do you think she is going to give you any sympathy when you moan and groan because you blistered a finger playing golf.



I would rather have the postman hand me a dozen gas bills through my own front door than a 1000 mash notes between the iron bars of a cell.

If I was running a newspaper I would put the quietus on all stories such as the above and also all passenger lists of steamers sailing for Europe, all news and pictures about Palm Beach or Pasadena in the winter time or Bar Harbor or Northern Michigan in the summer, all reference to the latest styles of women's dress in Paris, all mention of anybody's private yacht, all mention of any automobile costing any more than $500.00 and all reference to real beer or to weddings where one of the contracting parties was worth more than $62.50 cash.

So much for the news columns.

And as for the advertising I would limit it to the 5 and 10 cent stores and then not let them mention more than 30 cents worth of their merchandise in any one ad.

RING LARDNER.

MY PASSPORT FROM M'SIEU DEMPS'

By THORNTON FISHER.

FELLOW Americans in Paris are like policemen—always around until you need one. I needed one to speak the language of the natives, for eating and traveling in English, my mother and only tongue, had not turned out to be the snap folks back home let on it was.

Hungry and tired, I wandered down the Boulevard des Capucines. At last, the sound of banjo and saxophone led me into a cafe where I was rejoiced to hear a clear order in the familiar idiom, "Fill 'er up again!" Another second and two American citizens were locked in close embrace and one of them was I.

"Yes, I speak the language slightly," my new-found friend admitted.

"Well enough to order ham and eggs?" I interjected anxiously.

"Certainly. But I'm leaving for England on an early train tomorrow," he commiserated.

As we relieved my black despair with another bottle of wine, we sympathetically began showing each other photographs of the family, the old homestead and so forth. Among my exhibits was a photograph of Jack Dempsey and me taken during the champion's training period at Atlantic City just prior to his encounter with Georges Carpentier.

"Here it is; here it is!" my American friend exclaimed suddenly. "This photograph is your passport through France—better than any from the Government. If you don't eat and circulate freely hereabouts now it's your own fool fault."

That night I determined to test out the talisman. Hailing a taxi, I ordered the driver in my best English to take me to Jean's, a typically French restaurant across the Seine. His answer was a slow shrug of his shoulders and a wave of his hands. Snatching the Dempsey picture from my pocket I pushed it before his eyes. The effect was almost immediate.

"Ah-hhh!" he almost screamed. "M'sieu Demps' and you, m'sieu! You boxeur—oui!"

A second later he was scampering across the sidewalk into a shop from which he dragged a protesting citizen. The driver volleyed French and at once the shopkeeper began expressing his admiration of me in broken English. After begging I do his wife the honor of letting her meet me and presenting her, he translated my orders to the taxi driver and 10 minutes later I was in Jean's.

A garcon approached with a menu card. Without a glance I said, "Bring me a sirloin steak, French fried potatoes, lettuce salad with French dressing, a cup of coffee and a slab of homemade apple pie."

THE response was a shake of the head and the conventional shrug. Out came the photo again. I tossed it on the table carelessly; the waiter picked it up. His eyes grew like saucers and he was speechless for a second. Then he emitted a loud whine: "Ah-hhhhh, Demps'—Demps'—you boxeur, eh?"

Diners stared. Waiters surrounded my attendant and even Jean descended to look at the treasured photograph going from hand to hand. The air was full of gesticulation and babble. Jean detached himself, came to my table, and in bruised and lacerated English declared he would have a special interpreter take my order and would offer up a bottle of his most ancient and delectable wine, while the orchestra played selections to my taste. At 11 o'clock I left Jean's, my hunger appeased, my love for Le Belle France exuberant, at peace with the world.

The magic passport as vised by M'sieu Demps' himself.

The next night I tried the famous Cafe de la Paix. Rendezvous of Americans though it is, strangely enough few of the waiters understand or speak intelligible English. As usual, I drew a blank.

In my most perfect English again, however, I ordered a meal. The result was a noncomprehending smile. Out came the photograph, which, in this instance, I handed to a garcon who took it with an expression of "Well, what-do-you-want-me-to-do-with-this-thing?" Then he gazed at it and almost shouted: "M'sieu Demps'—you, too, m'sieur—you fight heem—ah-h-h-h hee wonder Demps'—I show heem, oui!"

To the head waiter he rushed with the prized picture. That dignitary hastened over to my table, calling his staff which surrounded me. Bowing and gripping his hands this generalissimo begged: "Ah, me'sieu, it eez that garcon do not speek Engleesh. A frien' of M'sieu Demps' he eez can have what you say ever'theeng. He punch you in se face—you brave man. He beat our Georges. He beat you, eh? Ah, Demps' he is wonnerful. What you have?"

I FROWNED a condescending frown on the group and picked up the menu card. As I did so each of the waiters uttered one word of English, so that I was able to get a sentence out of the eight or ten of them combined.

Waving his men aside, the head waiter leaned over my shoulder and whispered: "M'sieu, for you I have a ver' special fellow who speek Engleesh. He will for you be the private waiter so long as you are in Paree. He eez the ver' good man." With that he called "Georges!" and directed him to take my order. Georges, though a Greek, proved to be an exceptionally capable linguist and within ten minutes I was ravenously devouring a thick steak. I had scarcely attacked the meal when I became conscious of a score of pairs of eyes leveled at me.

Solicitous Georges stepped briskly to my side and breathed: "M'sieu must not mind. The customers they wish to see the great American boxer who fights Dempsey. The French admire the brave man."

I did not ring the curtain down until I set foot on a home pier.

THE DUKE and the Pretty Girl Thief

TRUE Tale of the Paris Police and How the Memory of a Kiss Solved a Mystery.

Mlle. Ena Dessart posing as Mme. la Baroness. She robbed the throats of fashionable hostesses and was undone by a kiss.

The Duke of Manchester, who remembers at least one kiss that had a startling result.

By ELEANORE BROWNE. (Noted Authority on Crime and Criminals.)

HIS GRACE, the Duke of Manchester, widely known around the world for an adventurous career, has, it is often said, kissed many pretty girls. The police of Paris and Berlin have had occasion to be glad that his gallant grace remembers some of the young women he has saluted on the lips.

A little more than two years ago the police of Berlin notified other police bureaus in Europe that the famous pink diamond that had been one of the treasures of the Austrian crown had been stolen from the home of Herr August Bruck, a wealthy citizen of the German capital. The theft was a mysterious affair and particularly disturbing. The police of Europe do not like robberies in the homes of the rich during social functions. They are unpleasant in their consequential investigations. It is necessary to suspect so many people who have the right to think themselves above suspicion.

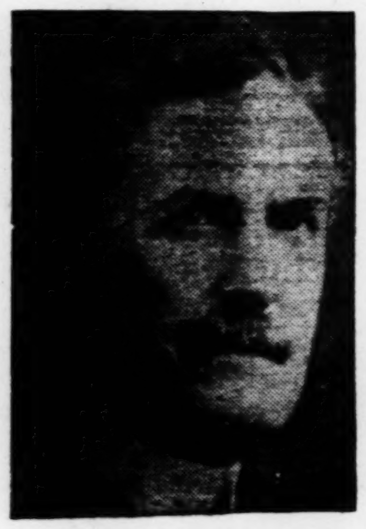
The pink diamond, which had been purchased in London by Herr Bruck for his pretty young wife, is one of the rarest jewels in the world. Its weight is something more than 20 carats, and so far as is known it is the only diamond in the world of its peculiar shade of deep rose pink. It was a bauble of which Frau Bruck was especially proud. It is not given to every woman to adorn her neck with a jewel that for generations had graced only the throats of Empresses.

She had worn it attached to a chain of pearls. Suddenly, during the course of her ball, she discovered that the diamond pendant had been cleverly snipped from the pearl chain.

The police officials were not, for the time, seriously disturbed. Such a rare jewel as the imperial pink diamond is not one that may easily be disposed of. They expected soon to recover it. They began to worry only when, two weeks later, a rich necklace of sapphires was missed in one of the homes in St. James Square, the most fashionable section in London. The necklace had been cut from the neck of Lady Evan Gray, a niece of Earl Gray, the war-time Prime Minister.

Something in the character of the bold theft, and the similarity of the circumstances attending it, hinted to the authorities that the deft hands which had cut the sapphire string were the same as those which had "lifted" the pink diamond. Of this they were convinced when, two evenings after the affair in St. James Square, Mme. Therese Bourget, the beautiful young wife of M. Paul Bourget, son of the famous author, excitedly telephoned to the Paris police that a diamond tiara had been stolen from her boudoir while many guests were dancing in her salon. Mme. Bourget was wise enough to keep her loss to herself until the police arrived and took charge. As is their custom, they closed the doors of the Bourget mansion and examined every guest. They were of the usual fashionable order, nearly all of them well known in French society, some of them visitors from England, some Americans—including the United State Ambassador, Myron T. Herrick. Also, there was the customary scattering of those who were not so well known.

Inspector Duane of Paris, who trapped the girl thief who had baffled the best policemen of Europe.



Myron L. Herrick, U. S. Ambassador to Paris, whose name was given brazenly as a "reference" by the girl robber when she was confronted by the police.

INSPECTOR DUANE of the Paris Surete requested of madame the name and social standing of each of her guests. There was none upon whom suspicion might legitimately rest. And a diamond tiara, set as was Mme. Bourget's, with more than a hundred matched stones, is not a thing that may be hidden in a stocking or in a rosette at the waist. Inspector Duane was satisfied that suddenly there had become active in European capitals a daring thief successfully hidden behind some fashionable masquerade. One after the other a series of these thefts of jewels in the homes of the rich was reported. Inspector Duane, who is one of the younger Inspectors of the Paris Surete, but said to be the most brilliant, decided upon "a plant." In his plan he was helped by nearly all the Ambassadors who entertain on a large scale, and by many fashionable women who could be trusted.

Mme. Paul Lemarche, noted for her lavish entertainments, entered into the conspiracy with the police. She announced a ball in her beautiful miniature palace on the Bois de Boulogne. To her each of the hostesses who had suffered from the cleverness of the unknown thief sent her own list of guests and acquaintances, and to all of these Mme. Lemarche sent her invitations—for the drawing rooms of Mme. Lemarche are spacious and hold many hundreds. Women known to have rare jewels and whom Inspector Duane felt he could invite into his confidence were asked to wear their most blazing ornaments on this occasion, and Mme. Lemarche increased her party by inviting many women of the outer social fringe who are particularly noted for their fondness of display. Inspector Duane made certain that the society columns of the various Paris journals had much to say in advance of the preparations for the Lemarche ball. Lists of expected guests were repeatedly published. One or two papers even mentioned, casually, that the affair gave promise of being especially interesting because of the number of jewels that would be worn. Keen readers of the social news of the day understood this little mention in the Paris journals to be a sort of dig at the "mixing" of social circles, which, it was evident, Mme. Lemarche had resorted to. Only Inspector Duane knew why the paper speculated upon the richness of the ornaments that would reflect the lights from Mme. Lemarche's ballroom chandeliers.

FROM Berlin, London and the Riviera famous detectives were assembled by M. Morain, Prefect of the Paris bureau. At every vantage point in the vicinity of the Lemarche palace agents of police were stationed, with orders to observe any departures from the house after the festivities began, and to shadow any man or woman who left before the usual time for the guests to disperse.

The detectives were distributed, also, among the servants. Inspector Duane made certain that throughout the evening there would be one of his agents hovering close to every door inside the mansion; one or more at every exit; and, even, directly beneath each window. Others would be among the guests, where they might watch each feminine throat with as much attention as if their interest were of a more romantic sort than police precaution.

"If a single jewel is stolen tonight it will be a clever thief who can escape us," the Inspector promised his chief, M. Morain. "And I have the feeling," he added, "that the thief we want to unmask will not let this opportunity slip."

The guests began to assemble at the fashionable Parisian hour, 9 o'clock. Even gay Paris, where there are more jewels than in any other city in the world, seldom has witnessed such a brilliant show as at the memorable Lemarche ball. Young women of the stage who never before had been admitted to such an exclusive house wore their best. Duchesses and Marquises exhibited heirlooms from the days of the Louis. Mme. Lemarche, herself, wore her famous diamonds and emeralds. Others of the madame's jewels, pieces which everyone familiar with the gossip of society knew she possessed, were left quite carelessly in their box in one of the upper drawers of her boudoir dressing table. Their accessibility gave her no concern, however, for one of Inspector Duane's most trusted assistants was stretched as comfortably as could be under madame's bed, so that with very little effort he could peer out and identify the owner of any pair of slim ankles or masculine feet who might slip into the boudoir and prowl close to the dressing table.

At 12 o'clock the guests of madame began to order their cars. The detective under madame's bed was conscious of many aches and pains; and there were no consolations for him—no thief had approached madame's jewel box.

DOWN stairs the score or more of detectives scattered about the house were beginning to think the plans of their chief were to be futile. Then, suddenly, Inspector Duane, who chanced just then to be dancing in his best manner with a mademoiselle of the elite, who would have fainted had she known her handsome partner was a policeman, stopped in the middle of a step and, with scarcely an apology, abruptly excused himself and left the little mademoiselle furious in the center of the floor. Over the heads of the dancers he had seen the signal of one

IT WAS dark. Pekin slept. A light flickered and was gone as a man in uniform snuffed his tiny lantern and slipped cautiously across the terrace to the waiting motor car.

"All ready?" he whispered in Japanese.

The man at the wheel nodded. The other retraced his steps and, opening the door whence he had come, spoke in low tones to someone inside. A moment later a group of three or four filed silently out and followed their guide to the machine, a closed automobile of modern make and high speed.

Through the gateway and down the street, slowly the car proceeded through the Legation quarter, on through the black night that seems blacker just before dawn. They gathered speed as they fled in that early morning solitude, hurtling on through the Tartar City and, more slowly now, on until the gate was reached.

No trouble here. The gates already were opened for the day—they are locked every night—and the machine fled past and onto the open highway. An uneventful trip over some 70 miles of wretched roads, and the Boy Emperor of China had arrived at Tientsin and safety.

That, at least, is one version of the manner in which Mr. Henry Pu-Yi, deposed ruler of China, escaped from the precarious existence possible at the Japanese Legation. He was safe enough in the Legation quarter, to be sure; but his prolonged residence there was becoming difficult for Japan. There were many in the provisional Chinese Government to which Japan had given recognition who considered the harboring of the former monarch hardly compatible with Japan's professed friendship for the Chinese Republic. And so the boy had to depart.

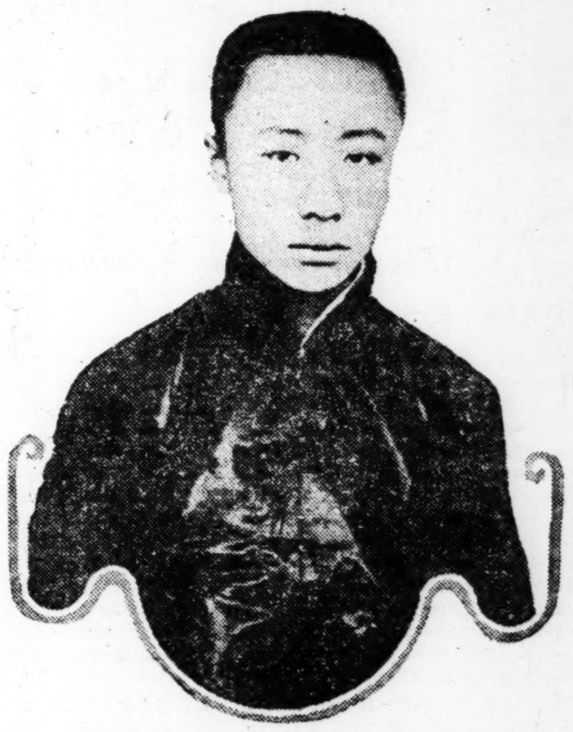
He escaped with his entire entourage, which followed later, somewhat after the colorful fashion described above. Dressed in the uniform of a Japanese guard (which Japan officially does not explain), he drove to Tientsin before dawn the morning of February 24, last. And, be it said, another picturesque chapter was written in the history that is a novel, it being the story of the 19 years of life that has been lived by the boy who would be Emperor had he lived a little sooner.

China has changed, but even with chopped-off queues and ideas about self-determination and the right of the individual to govern himself, there remains the romantic intrigue and the Oriental love for mystery and plots. Not among the least of these is the skein of death-dealing plans that would form a fatal web for the Boy Emperor.

There are plotters who are demanding that the Government order the execution of Henry Pu-Yi. Tum-ta-ta-tum-te-tum-tum-ta-tum! sound the drums of mystery that signify the Oriental. In Pekin and elsewhere are fanatics who fear the potential power of a potentate, and now and then weird rumors of their ideas of how best to end his career come forth from beneath the pall of Pekin's dust.

Thus, thumbing through the year-yellowed pages of the Orient's history, generations in centuries to come may peer squeamishly down through the mist of the years at the drama of life that is the happenings of today, and, all uncomprehending, no doubt, gaze upon the pantomime and see the frantic figures of an Oriental dynasty struggling against the modern monster that has, alas, destroyed them.

THE murky mysteries of the East can live only in the dank cellars of these historic chronicles or in the tales of some spirited writers whose imaginations are not altogether exaggerations of the strange things that have been commonplace in the daily lives of those who have lived in Asia.



The only authentic photograph of the Boy Emperor of China since his abdication in 1912.

China has changed and is changing. The stalwart advance of a sturdy West has roused the giant out of his slumber. The mask of mystery is being frisked from the somber Oriental and he stands weak and trembling, for a time, a newcomer into the family of Western nations but trying hard to do as he is told to do.

And unmasked, the China that would be Western is a comedy of errors to the West—the Chinese is his own worst enemy, a veritable bull in his own china shop, let us say. Wars with factions all over the place every year or so, no cohesion, no confidence abroad as a result. And what is worse to at least one young man, no apparent desire longer to have anything to do with the ancient and royal order of Emperors who used to rule the land by the sword and collect tribute as taxes from the military governors.

Thus, the Dragon Throne is empty and the ruler of the Celestial Empire sits idly in his aircastles near the seat at Tientsin and hopes for the day when he may go abroad and study and be just like any other young man in a democratic world. That is his avowed desire, at any rate, but in the meantime he has to bide his while at Tientsin; and the explanation is that he has no money.

> A moment later a group of three or four filed silently out and followed their guide to the machine.

Just how much faith to put in that reason for his idleness is another story. There are not a few persons in China who would gladly see the monarchy restored. Certainly, nothing could be worse than the present chaotic demi-rule of politicians whose apparent aim is only personal gain. They have not got the idea of ruling for the good of the people, and it may be that this part of their Westernization is taken as a leaf from the notebooks of a few prototypes elsewhere in this democratic world of the twentieth century.

It is even something of a presumption to declare the Boy Emperor is actually at Tientsin. For there has been, you see, a lot of talk about this and that here in Japan, and some say he really isn't in Tientsin at all. Nobody who says that knows just where he is, but it is said, nevertheless, and it causes some doubt as to the whole affair.

Even persons who are living and have been living in Tientsin seem not to know a great deal about the whereabouts of Henry. Take, as an example, an army captain who is now back in America. The transport had just reached Nagasaki and this officer was one of the two who were in charge of the shore-leave watch. Some of the men might get lost in Nagasaki. It is a beguiling city.

AT the Nagasaki Club, which is essentially British, we were the guests of the United States Army Quartermaster. The officers were using the club as their headquarters, thanks to his hospitality. The conversation was about this and that, concerning life in Manila, the murder of a young 16-year-old girl there by a rejected suitor some weeks ago, the war and France—all that sort of thing. And then I found that one of the captains was returning to America after duty at Tientsin. He had just left Tientsin.

"How is the Boy Emperor?" I asked.

He had heard of the Boy Emperor. He was quite sure the boy was in good health. But nobody ever saw him much, or anything like that. Oh yes, he drove about the city, that is, the foreign quarter, all the time. He really didn't know just what part of town the deposed ruler actually lived in. British concession, he thought. But after all, nobody paid much attention to him. His arrival at Tientsin caused no excitement. Hardly anybody knew about it at the time, anyway.

"Really, nobody pays any attention to him. He doesn't amount to much," and the captain certainly looked bored.

Well, there wasn't much more to say about that. He had seen Henry and knew the boy was in Tientsin. But, as he said, nobody seems to know just where the former ruler is living and so it would be difficult to reach him, no doubt, by mail, for example, and expect a reply quickly, at any rate.

Henry, to be sure, at present doesn't amount to much. All of which goes to indicate something of the great change that has made China, across the bay here, what that potentially powerful nation is today and has sent this lad not yet out of his 'teens and his girl wife scuttling for cover in fear of their lives. The thing would have been unthinkable as recently as a dozen and a half years ago.

It is this fear on the part of the democracy that it might be unthinkable some time or other again, to a majority of the Chinese, that is causing them to desire as little as possible of Henry and his bride. The men who came down out of the Manchu country centuries ago and occupied the Dragon Throne established traditions. These traditions are stronger than armies sometimes. The Manchu rulers knew a bit about psychology, it would seem.

What they did not know about was an idea that all men are born free and equal. But some of the younger generation went abroad and studied and others learned in schools the West brought into the country. Busily the West went about pricking the slumbering giant into wakefulness and thereby

He had nothing to do with that, however, it being arranged by the militarists. He is called the Emperor, even as in this article. But it is doubtful whether Henry thinks of himself in that way. It merely is a term that presents itself most readily when describing him.

How much ground there is for fear of the monarchists is a matter open to endless conjecture. As a matter of fact, almost any statement concerning China can be made without fear of refutation.

NOTHING is certain from day to day. There are almost as many factions as there are individuals with money. Which recalls that the flight of the boy Emperor first to the Japanese Legation and then to Tientsin was not the first time the Legation Quarter was the scene of similar occurrences.

General Hsu Shu-tseng, the Anfu faction leader, fled to the Japanese Legation in 1920 when the Anfu government was overthrown as the result of student agitation on the ground that General Hsu, or "Little Hsu" as he is better known, and his faction were pro-Japanese. "Little Hsu" (pronounced Little Shoe) and about 10 of his lieutenants escaped to the Japanese Legation.

A cordon of soldiers of the triumphant student faction was thrown about the entire Legation Quarter. They cannot go inside the district. Not even a Chinese policeman is allowed inside this district. That is the international law. But they watched every exit each hour of the 24. And again a bit of Chinese mystery and strategy got a deposed leader to safety.

"Little Hsu" was crated up inside a box and shipped out as freight of some sort or other—"excess baggage" as far as Japan was concerned, no doubt. The box with its human cargo got by with a lot of similar crates and was put on a freight car for Tientsin, the port of missing rulers.

Then just one more incident in this digression to show the turbulent ways of the life that a ruler in China must lead, China being what it is. In 1917, as mentioned, the monarchy was re-established and President Feng Kuo-chang had to run for his life. He chose the Dutch Legation as his refuge. But his insecurity was short. The Republican troops routed the imperialist forces three days later and the Boy Emperor was forthwith again relegated to the inner confines of the Forbidden City. Little then did he think, mayhap, how forbidden that city some day was to be to him. Or maybe he did. Still, one should never conjecture about that sort of thing in the Orient. The future for people of importance, at any rate, is so unreliable. He was only 11 years old then, anyway, and doubtless unfettered by fancies about great things.

So from then until last fall when Marshal Feng Yu-hsiang, known as the "Christian General," accomplished his coup d'etat, Henry Pu-Yi lived what in the West would be regarded as a frightfully secluded and even boring existence. He never left the Forbidden City, so far as is known, but spent his days in study and in exercise of a sort possible inside the palace and the palace grounds. Now and then he would take a horseback ride, reports from the sanctum sanctorum said. Other reports said the extent of this violent exercise consisted of the Boy Emperor's being loaded aboard a pony which then was led slowly around the grounds by two attendants. From later reports of the Boy Emperor, he must have been pretty well fed up on that sort of hothouse care.

But, you see, inside the walls he was to all intents and purposes the occupant of the Dragon Throne and ruler of the Celestial Empire. And those loyal attendants and gentlemen and ladies of the court never could think of him otherwise. There was, for example, a tremendous argument over whether the Emperor should wear spectacles. One faction in his court declared that glasses never had been worn by any other Emperor of the dynasty and that the device certainly could not be necessary now. The former Empress dowager was most strenuous in her opposition to this innovation of the Western devils. But a court physician ruled that if the Boy Emperor's sight were to be saved Henry had to use glasses whenever reading. That settled the controversy, but it created a lot of hard feeling in the imperial household.

—From painting in oil by Katherine Carl.

DRAMA has marked the life of the Boy Emperor since his ascent to the throne 16 years ago. And there has been at least one touch of tragedy. One day in October, 1921, an official court statement announced the death of Princess Chun, the natural mother of the Boy Emperor. She died by opium poisoning. Tum-ta-ta-tum-te-tum-tum-ta-tum. The beating of drums, rumbling, mysterious, drums of the East. The Princess had committed suicide on October 1, they said.

Her act came as the result of a quarrel with Chin Fei, the virtual Empress dowager, so it was said. These things are never very clear. One just hears this and that about them and has to form his own conclusions. There was a quarrel over the selection of a bride for the Boy Emperor. Chin Fei looked with favor upon a matrimonial alliance between the deposed ruler and the daughter of the President of the Republic. Certainly a strange combination to most ways of thinking.

But the boy's own mother preferred that her son marry the daughter of Yun Liang, her nephew. The Boy Emperor himself had ideas about marriage. He wanted to marry his own mother's younger sister. Still, he said he would be willing to abide by his mother's choice in the matter. In the meantime he wanted to go abroad and see the world before taking up the cares of wedded life.

Chin Fei was not a little incensed at the turn of events which threatened to thwart and, as it turned out, did upset her plans. Bitter words followed. Prince and Princess Chun, the natural parents of the heir to the Dragon Throne, stood by their son. The quarrel continued for three days. Then Princess Chun died. They said she committed suicide.

The Boy Emperor left his seclusion for the first time to attend his mother's funeral on October 31 that year. He was very pale that day and seemed frail and scarcely 10 years old instead of 16. As the catafalque of his mother was lifted after the bearers had been changed, he knelt on a rug of lambskin and bowed three times toward the coffin. He was frightened but maintained a conduct of utmost dignity in this, his first appearance in public.

That was the tragedy in Henry Yu-Pi's life. Earlier events of great moment happened when he was too young to understand them. He was only 3 years old when he ascended to the Dragon Throne. He was born merely the heir to one of China's princedoms and was chosen by the old Empress Dowager, an outstanding figure in China's history who made emperors, to succeed her nephew, the Emperor Kuang Ksu. But this 3-year-old infant knew nothing of these great pageants and the acclaim that was accorded him and all the rest of the ceremony that goes with the coronation of an Oriental potentate.

Then four years later, when the revolution had come and the republicans had won, the Boy Emperor resigned. But his abdication meant nothing to him at the time and he could have known nothing at the age of 7 years as to the significance in the march of world events that his signing away the empire had.

Thus, Hsuan Tung, propagator of the Imperial Family of Ta Ching, the dynasty that has ruled China for centuries, became Pu-Yi and since his abdication in 1912 has lived in seclusion within the moated walls of the Forbidden City. Here in the heart of the Tartar City, surrounded by the gleaming yellow roofs, marble terraces and stately palaces with their solemn Ming dynasty masonry, he has studied and carried on, hoping some day to travel abroad and see the world, but never wanting, so he says, to rule China.

COLDS

Prevention Easier Than Cure

By A. W. King.

ORDINARY colds, the common ailment which most people regard lightly, cost one and one-half billions of dollars a year in the United States, exclusive of the fees paid to doctors and the expense of medicines. This statement was made by Dr. Beaman Douglass of New York City, in an address at the recent annual convention of the Laryngological, Rhinological and Otological Society at Atlantic City.

Dr. Douglass computes his staggering total as follows: There are 100,000,000 cases of colds annually, he says, or an average of one to almost every man, woman and child in the country. In the average case, the patient loses three days from his or her employment. At $5 a day the total is easily seen to be $1,500,000,000.

Physicians agree that many of these colds are unnecessary. Proper preventive measures would keep many of them from even starting. Other cases, which now run their course, could be nipped in the bud. Still others could be checked and cured sooner than they are.

But worse than the inconvenience, discomfort and money loss attached to the general prevalence of colds is the danger of various complications which may arise. Thus, 75 per cent of all pneumonia cases follow colds. Unlike tuberculosis, diphtheria, typhoid fever, dysentery and many other serious infections, pneumonia is not on the wane, in this country. The rates of occurrence and of death remain high. The fight against pneumonia is bound up with the fight against colds.

So declares Dr. Russell L. Cecil, assistant professor of clinical medicine in Cornell University Medical College, New York City, who has written a book, "Colds—Cause, Treatment and Prevention," recently published by D. Appleton & Co. It speaks the latest word of science about one of our commonest afflictions. The writer emphasizes the point that prevention is better than cure.

Colds are due to bacteria, states Dr. Cecil, and therefore it is correct to say that they are infectious. The healthy nose usually is free from bacteria but the mouth and throat harbor a great many different kinds of microbes, including the Streptococcus, the pneumococcus, the Staphylococcus and the influenza bacillus.

Generally these bacteria are harmless inhabitants in a healthy throat, but under certain conditions they attack the mucous membrane—the soft, velvet-like substance which lines the mouth, nose, throat and whole respiratory tract and which is similar to skin but much more delicate.

"It is now widely believed," writes Dr. Cecil, "that the common cold is caused in most instances by a 'filterable virus,' that is, a germ so small that it is invisible and capable of passing through the finest filter. The most generally accepted theory is that this minute virus initiates the disease, and that the other bacteria mentioned play a secondary but important part in producing the inflammatory condition, and are in many cases directly responsible for the complications which so frequently develop. There is no doubt, however, that under certain conditions which lower the vitality the ordinary bacteria of the mouth may cause infection."

The Streptococcus undoubtedly is responsible for most attacks of tonsilitis, the pneumococcus frequently causes sore throats and colds in children, and the influenza bacillus is responsible for many cases of grip. The possible complications of colds include an inflammation of the mucous membrane of the eye (conjunctivitis), abscess in the ear, acute mastoiditis, discharging ear, infected sinus, either acute or chronic, chronic nasal catarrh, chronic sore throat, acute laryngitis, involving the vocal cords, bronchitis and pneumonia.

Colds, says Dr. Cecil, may be divided into noncontagious and contagious infections. The noncontagious cold is one which we do not contract from others nor communicate to them. Anything which irritates the mucous membrane of the nose or throat may cause congestion, which soon becomes actual inflammation when bacteria invade the injured area.

Thus, many things may be looked upon as predisposing causes of noncontagious colds. Excessive smoking, and particularly of cigarettes, is regarded as one of the commonest causes. People who work in an atmosphere of irritating gases, such as bromin, may develop an acute congestion in the nose which is apt to be followed by sore throat or cold. Extremely cold air or overheated air, particularly if too dry, often brings on a cold of this type. Overuse of the throat, as by singers and public speakers, may bring on a sore throat.

Some people develop a cold after eating candy or some food which upsets their digestion. In such digestive troubles the mucous membrane of the throat becomes roughened, the germs get in and the cold follows. Another group of noncontagious colds develops from local infections in the tonsils and sinuses—the nasal cavity and accessory sinuses.

Other colds are traceable to a poor circulation, which in turn may be due to a weak heart, or to neurasthenia, or to malnutrition, etc. Fat people are less susceptible to colds than thin people, their protection coming not so much from good circulation as from the layer of fat which actually protects the individual from sudden changes in temperature.

"Fatigue is another important cause of colds," says Dr. Cecil. "Undoubtedly bacteria find entrance much more easily when the patient is exhausted, and even if a man is in perfect physical condition he is more liable to attack during a period of fatigue."

Improper clothing, especially the continued wearing of summer garments in the first cold snaps of autumn or the putting on of light garments too early in the spring, is a very important factor in causing colds. The wearing of too much clothing is undesirable, also. This applies especially to persons who spend their time in overheated rooms, for the perspiration causes sudden chilling of the body when they go outdoors, and colds are apt to follow. Clothing should be adapted to the weather, from day to day.

"Sad experience has taught most people that unequal chilling of the body is a prime factor in producing colds," remarks Dr. Cecil. It is not getting cold all over that does the damage, as a rule, but the draft on the back of the neck, exposure to the wind without a hat, wetting the feet, sudden change from high to low shoes, and such. A draft of air from an open window is much more dangerous than a walk in the cold air. A man in a good perspiration from a game of tennis may plunge suddenly into the cool surf without any ill effects.

"The reason for this apparent inconsistency is interesting," remarks the author. "Nature has a very complicated heating apparatus which adjusts itself to the conditions to which the body is exposed. If the atmosphere is hot, the sweat glands are stimulated and the evaporating perspiration will chill the body. If we go into a cold atmosphere, the capillaries of the skin contract and then dilate, and the surface of the body will be warmed by the increased supply of blood.

"When we expose just one little sensitive spot to the cold, Nature cannot do her task properly. The body cannot be kept at the temperature which the heat of the room demands and the small exposed area heated adequately. It is asking too much of the heat-regulating apparatus."

The contagious cold is one which is contracted directly or indirectly from another person and which in turn can be passed on to others. It is commonest during cold weather and is very apt to appear from time to time in the form of epidemics. As a rule, the contagious cold runs a somewhat more severe course than the noncontagious cold. The same predisposing causes which are active in bringing on attacks of the noncontagious colds—such as getting chilly, poor circulation or local irritants—play an important part in predisposing to the contagious colds.

"But undoubtedly the contagious cold is capable of attacking a healthy individual with healthy mucous membranes. This type of cold is quite as contagious as any of the other contagious diseases and should be treated as such."

In the contagious cold the germ comes from outside the body, directly or indirectly from someone who already has a cold, the germ being transmitted from the patient to the healthy individual by various methods. Direct infection takes place when the cold is transmitted from the infected person to a healthy person by means of the minute droplets of saliva which are thrown into the atmosphere when the infected person talks, coughs or sneezes.

Kissing is, obviously, an infallible method of transmitting colds and one of the commonest sources of infection. The contagious cold may be transmitted also by contaminated objects, such as drinking glasses, towels, etc. Or the germ may be passed in a casual handshake. For this reason, says Dr. Cecil, one cannot too strongly stress the importance of washing the hands before eating. And a soiled handkerchief which has been used by an infected person may be a menace to others for a considerable time.

The condition of sore throat may be either a symptom or a sequel to a cold. Infection always attacks the weakest point, and for this reason some persons develop the first signs of a cold in the nose, others in the throat. Sore throat is likely to invade the nose in the form of rhinitis (scientific term for a common cold), or the bronchial "tree" in the form of laryngitis or of bronchitis.

Dr. Cecil describes all the complications, some of them dangerous, which may follow a cold. He makes clear the importance of cold prevention. Other chapters take up related subjects. Thus, adenoids frequently are accompanied by nasal catarrh, which often develops into acute colds or even into bronchitis. Adenoids should be removed, says the author. Enlarged tonsils are a source of continual danger in predisposing to other conditions, especially coughs and colds. Persons with enlarged tonsils are "very liable" to contract diphtheria or scarlet fever. Such tonsils should be removed.

The symptoms of rose cold and hay fever closely resemble those of an ordinary cold. These cases are due to a peculiar susceptibility of the patient's mucous membrane to pollens. In rose cold it is the pollen of roses. In hay fever it may be the pollen of various grasses, plants or trees, according to individuals. Some patients, liable to attacks of hay fever all the year round, are susceptible to certain other substances in the air, such as the fine emanations from the skin or hair of animals, or the dust from feathers or wool. Some cases are traceable to articles of food, usually milk, eggs or some kind of meat.

By a skin test it usually is possible to determine exactly what form of protein it is which excites irritation in the nose of such a hay fever patient, and then to give him considerable relief by vaccine inocu-

MEASURES FOR THE PREVENTION OF COLDS.

By DR. RUSSELL L. CECIL.

1. Get lots of fresh air, but avoid drafts. Sleep with windows open.
2. Practice deep breathing exercises.
3. Avoid overeating, especially sweets.
4. Avoid constipation.
5. Take plenty of exercise, indoors and outdoors.
6. Avoid undue fatigue.
7. Do not put fingers in nose or mouth, and be careful to wash the hands before eating.
8. When necessary, keep the nasal passages clean and moist with some sort of mild spray or douche.
9. Train the skin to resist variations in temperature by means of cold baths, massage and vigorous rubbing.
10. Adapt clothing to the temperature of the day. Do not vary the clothing next to the body but have wraps of various weights.
11. Consult the nose and throat specialist to make sure there are no obstructions or infections.
12. If colds still persist, try prophylactic vaccine.

THERE should be rejoicing among the deer, the wild turkeys and all other creatures of the Ozark National Forest. At last, they are to have several areas in the forest which will be their own, in which they can range without danger of death from hunters. In the new Ozark Game Refuge which was created by an act of the last Congress, no gun may break the stillness, no trap may be set, no hunting dog unleashed. Even the fish are to have the protection of strict regulations as to season and size of catch.

All the wild creatures should be happy. To some of them, as the surrounding country became more thickly settled, as the number of hunters increased and the game country narrowed, extinction has approached very close indeed. Now they are to have places in the Ozark domain where they may live in peace, where they may multiply unharassed and unharmed. Animal instinct, however, still is largely a mystery to humans. But in the case of other refuges established for animals and birds it has been curious to note how quickly they seemed to understand where safety lay and to avail themselves of the havens offered.

The Ozark sanctuary has been authorized none too soon. The passing of another decade would have marked the complete disappearance of several species, notably the deer. Now comes the reprieve from a doom which seemed certain. They will thrive, along with the trees which are their natural habitat. And a century hence, when the open spaces in the forest are few, a visitor doubtless will be able to sit on some high point in the wood when spring has come and hear a wild turkey gobbler call to its mate or catch a flash of tan in the green underbrush as a startled deer springs from its bed.

A wild turkey gobbler. Without protection, these birds probably would have been extinct in another ten years.

THE creation of this refuge has come after years of tireless effort on the part of nature lovers in the Ozarks and those in adjoining sections who were interested in the preservation of wild life. In years gone by numerous bills have been introduced in Congress to create national parks and game preserves in the Ozarks, but none was passed until the last session of Congress, when the present refuge was created. In 1916 the late Enos Mills of Long's Peak Inn, Colorado, spent several months in an effort to have Congress change the Ozark National Forest into a national park, but his efforts and the efforts of those who were assisting him were unsuccessful. The creation of the game refuge in the Ozark National Forest probably was due to the fact that the Government already owned the land and that the purchase of no new acreage was necessary, coupled with the fact that it would not interfere with the forest reserve policy.

The Ozark National Forest was created by President Roosevelt by proclamation, in 1908. At that time it contained nearly 1,000,000 acres. Much of this was owned privately, however, and the boundaries were changed. It now contains 511,616 acres, of which 298,752 are owned by the Government and the rest by private individuals. The selection of the Ozark National Forest as a site for the Ozark Game Refuge was made after a careful survey of available sites, and it is particularly well adapted for the purpose. It lies in the rugged Boston Mountains of the Ozark range, embracing parts of Marion, Baxter, Stone, Cleburne, Van Buren, Conway, Searcy, Newton, Pope, Johnson and Crawford counties. The northern boundary is only a few miles south of the Missouri State line. Every condition is present in this big reserve for the propagation and protection of wild life. With a few years of protection and with the addition of new stock, deer and other game will be as prolific as when the first pioneers made their way west from Tennessee in ox carts.

The White, Red and Buffalo rivers flow through the new game refuge. They are dashing clear water mountain streams, famous for their scenic beauty and containing all the varieties of fish native to the Ozarks. Black bass, goggle-eye perch, catfish and crappie abound in their waters. There are countless creeks and tributaries holding as much scenic beauty as the rivers themselves.

THE scenery generally is magnificent—not so gigantic as the Rockies, neither so bare. In summer miles and miles of undulating green broken with occasional bare spots where some river bluff rears its head majestically above a dashing stream, or the point of a ridge barren of vegetation that rises supreme above the green. From March until November the forest floor is a carpet of riotous wild flowers. In autumn it is a panorama of reds, yellows, browns and greens of every shade and hue. Erosion, the rush of strong wind and dashing water, has played its part in the creation of scenic beauty.

A deer and her fawns in a pasture which will be included within the new sanctuary for Ozark animals and birds.

On Sycamore Creek, in the eastern district of the Forest, is a natural bridge. In tramping over the mountains one comes suddenly onto unexpected rocky nooks where erosion has been at work for centuries. On late afternoons in the autumn, if one didn't know the whims erosion had played on the rocks, the fantastic shape of a distant bluff would be mistaken for an old castle on the Rhine.

The refuge will be stocked with pheasants, which are expected to flourish under the ideal conditions for bird life there.

Wild life in the new game refuge is abundant, but not as abundant as it was 10 years ago. Ten years hence, if no protection were thrown round it, many species would have become extinct. This is particularly true of deer and wild turkey. The hunter today is lucky if he gets the bag limit on these two. The other birds and the small game, however, seem to have stood the encroachment of civilization better. They seem to be as abundant as they ever were.

Bird life in the new refuge is prolific, there being some 255 species reported. Practically every species from the humming bird to the bald eagle nest there. The latter are very scarce, but occassionally one is reported. Fox, 'possum, raccoon, wolf, mink, skunk and other smaller fur-bearing animals are present, but not abundant. Otter once was common, but it is now five years since the writer heard of one.

IN A RECENT interview with H. R. Koen, supervisor of the Ozark National Forest, on the amount of game left he said:

"As near as we can determine we have about 50 deer in the eastern district of the forest. Some turkeys are scattered over the whole forest, but they are not abundant. Small game is prolific enough to make protection feasible."

In outlining the steps that probably will be taken in establishing the refuge Koen said:

"Some member of the Biological Survey will be delegated to the forest to study the game conditions. A report will be made in which will be designated the areas best suited by topography and soil for the breeding of game, and the areas best stocked at present. When this has been done several small areas will be set aside as game refuges. Upon these areas very strict rules will apply. No hunting within the designated areas for breeding purposes will be allowed, and fishing will be strictly regulated as to size, string limit and season.

"Within the forest as a whole a strict adherence to the game laws of the State or to similar laws will be required. Artificial stocking with game and fish probably will not be resorted to right away. The first attempt will be to conserve and propagate the game already on the ground. The success of the project rests largely with the people in and adjacent to the forest. If our first efforts are successful money will be available for restocking with deer, turkey and pheasants. No bear or other predatory animals will be brought in."

ROAD and trail building has been a part of the forest policy since the Ozark Forest was created in 1908. Since that time some 76 miles of good roads have been built within its boundaries and 95 miles of trails. State roads built to its boundaries during the last two years have made it accessible to automobiles and many parts of it can be reached now without discomfort. From the south one comes in via Batesville, Mountain View and Sycamore, Arkansas. From the north, via Hollister, Missouri, Harrison and Jasper, Arkansas, and from the west via Russellville, Arkansas.

It is expected that the development of the new game refuge will be along lines similar to that in the national parks, game refuges and national forests in the West. The Ozark National Forest today represents one of the few big open spaces in the South or Middle West. Less than 100 miles in any direction are heavily populated sections—numerous cities and towns. It offers not only a refuge and breeding ground for our diminishing wild life, but a recreation ground for those sections as well.

Now Comes Another Modern Iconoclast Who Would Take All the Joy Out of Juvenilia

Was Robinson Crusoe a Pirate?

By Harry R Burke

WAS the real Robinson Crusoe a pious pirate or was he in fact his own man Friday?

Was the man who inspired Defoe's immortal book really Alexander Selkirk, as our teacher taught us, or was he a mosquito Indian, who by pirates was called William?

Bennett Copplestone, the Scotch novelist—his real name is F. Harcourt Kitchin—is now contending there is no good reason to suppose Daniel Defoe had ever heard of Selkirk, though everyone in England in his day knew of Juan Fernandez Island, where buccaneers and privateers and pirates had rendezvoused and sometimes had marooned their men.

He has joined the modern critics who would take all joy out of Juvenilia. First, "Tom Sawyer" and "Huck Finn" were barred from some libraries as picaresque. Then Capt. Kidd was proved to be not a bloody-minded pirate but a gentleman and a patriot. Even "Mother Goose" was condemned by Mrs. Winifred Stone as immoral and sympathetic to crime. And now Alexander Selkirk must walk the plank.

Decadent days indeed!

Selkirk was a Scot—"dour and dull-witted," says Copplestone. Certainly he had not the invention with which Defoe endowed his marooned adventurer. Neither did he reform under the influence of his solitude. A pirate he was when he landed at Juan Fernandez. A pirate, or privateer—more genteel word, but just as deadly—was Alexander Selkirk after his rescue.

Indeed, Capt. Woodes Rogers, who took him off his solitary isle, used the man as the commander of one of his captured prizes, and Selkirk did yeoman service in the sacking of Guaiquil.

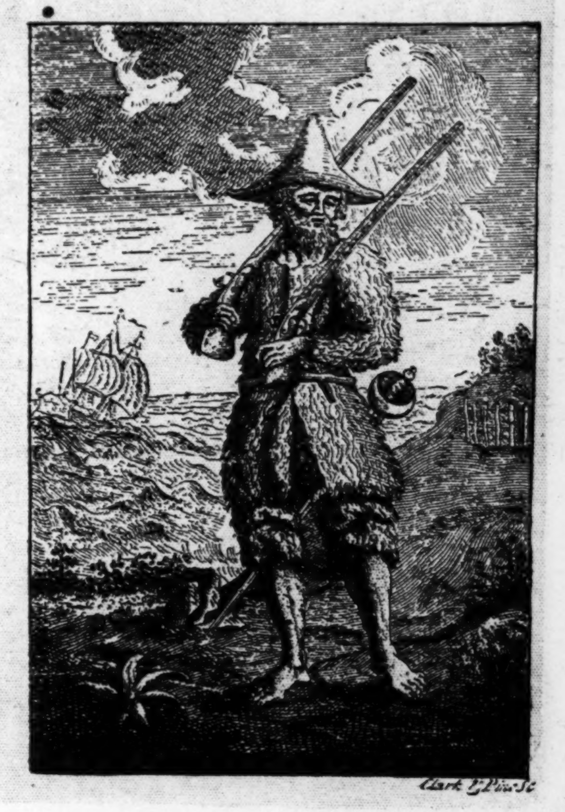
Like many another pirate, Selkirk might have paraphrased Ernest Dowson's later line: "I have been true to thee, Religion, in my fashion." Capt. John Watling would throw dice overboard if he found his pirates gambling on Sunday. Capt. Hiram Breakes held prayers each Sabbath. Le Sieur de Lussan would lead his pirates to mass before he sacked the city they had captured. Capt. Misson would not permit his men to swear: to be whipped and pickled was their punishment. Bartholomew Roberts—fiendish in murder, rapine and pillage—kept the Sabbath, would not touch liquor, and once when he captured a clergyman sought to persuade him to sign pirates' articles as chaplain, finally permitting him to go only after the pirate had taken from the prelate three Bibles and a corkscrew.

NO RECORD of such piety is found in the true story of Alexander Selkirk, which is quite as romantic and far more adventurous than that Defoe designed for his hero. Selkirk's two recorded connections with the church are even less to his credit. The son of John Selcraig of Largo, in Fifeshire, he was cited in 1695 to appear before the session for "indecent conduct in kirk," and he ran away to sea rather than face his accusers. He was back in Largo after six years, where the minister rebuked him before the congregation for quarreling with his brothers. A year later he sailed to England and in 1703 joined Capt. William Dampier's expedition to the South Seas. Dampier sailed the St. George. His companion ship was the Cinque Ports, commanded by Capt. Pickering, who made Selkirk his sailing master. At Isla Grande Pickering died and was succeeded by Thomas Stradling, his lieutenant.

The ships were privateers, and their venture was financed by a group of London merchants. Stradling came to his post one knows not how. Evidently he was not a mariner, and often in those days the officers of such an expedition won their place through relationship or favoritism. Sailing under British colors, the privateers were to wage war on Spanish shipping and the Spanish coasts. "No prey no pay" was their rule.

Certainly Stradling had trouble with his men. At the Island of Juan Fernandez some of them mutinied. "Nor would they come aboard again until Dampier interposed and coaxed them back into good behavior," says John Masefield. Immediately afterward they sighted and made an attempt on a French ship, in defiance of their British commission and of Dampier's will. But the ship won clear and escaped.

Was Selkirk a leader of those mutineers? Sir Richard Steele, who knew the man in after years, implies as much in the first written account of Selkirk's adventures. The Cinque Ports was a leaky bark. Perhaps her sailing master knew and was obnoxiously insistent on repairs. "With the captain," says Steele, "he had had an irreconcilable difference; and he chose rather to take his fate in this place than in a crazy vessel under a disagreeable commander." He was put ashore on Juan Fernandez Island and there he lived alone for four years and four months. It was at first, as Sir Richard hints, his own proposal, but there is evidence that at the last moment Selkirk wanted to sail on. Stradling was inflexible. Selkirk must go.



Clark & Pine Sc

Robinson Crusoe, from the original engraving of the first edition of Defoe's immortal work.

On Juan Fernandez he stayed until Capt. Woodes Rogers, sailing in the Duke, discovered him on Jan. 31, 1709. "When he left the Cinque Ports," wrote Rogers, "he had with him his clothes and bedding, with a firelock, some powder, bullets, tobacco, a hatchet, a knife, a Bible, some practical pieces and his mathematical instruments and books." Turnips and the hearts of cabbage palms were his vegetables. There were goats upon the island, and these and crawfish were his meat. He built a hut which he lined with goatskins. Of these skins he made his clothes.

"A man cloth'd in goatskins, who looked wilder than the first owners of them," Rogers described him. He was hired to catch goats to supply the Duke, her convoy the Duchess, and their prizes with meat. Which he did: "by speed of foot," continues Capt. Rogers, "for his way of living and continued exercise of walking and running cleared him of all gross humors, so that he run with wonderful swiftness thro the woods and up the rocks and hills, as we perceived when we employed him to catch goats for us. He distanc'd both dogs and men, catch'd the goats and brought 'em to us on his back." Once, he told the officer, he had eagerly pursued a goat to the brink of a precipice, where he seized the animal, but, overbalanced, fell to the rocks below with the brute in his arms. He came to his senses three days later, with the goat dead underneath him, so he said.

THE island had been stocked by its discoverer with goats in 1572. Rats from the ships invaded it. Cats were introduced to do away with the rats, and dogs, later, to kill the cats. Thus equilibrium was established. Selkirk had his foot gnawed by rats as he slept when first upon the island, and tamed cats for comrades and protection.

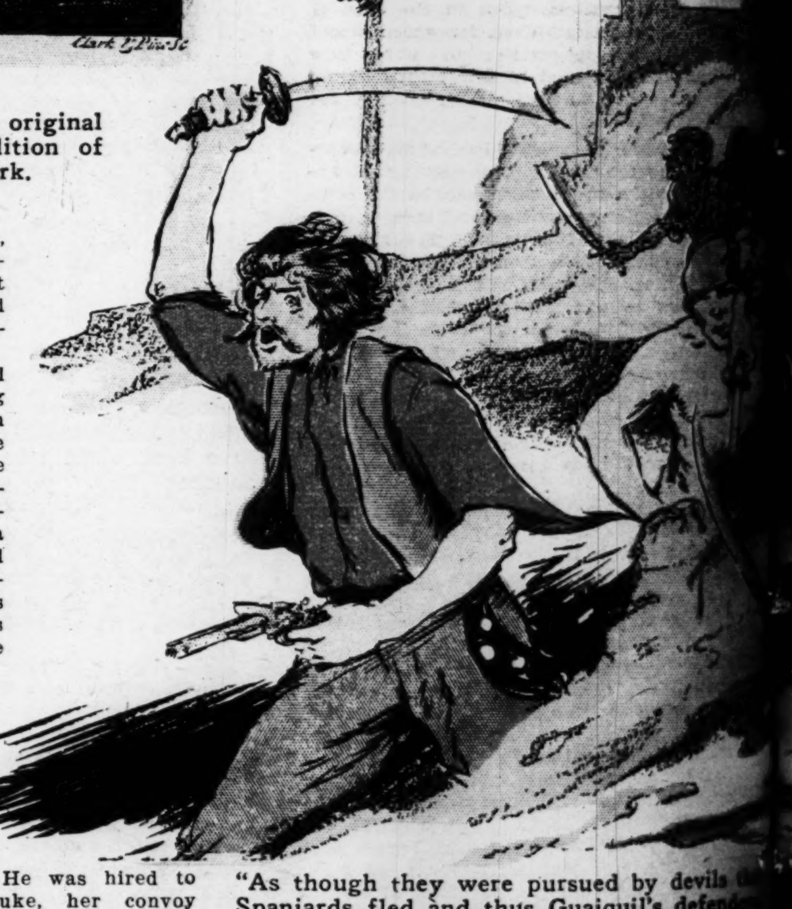
Four years and four months of loneliness. Yet Selkirk was free. "Monarch of all I survey," wrote Cowper in his famous poem on the man.

Capt. Stradling, who left him there, was far less fortunate. The leaky Cinque Ports had to be driven ashore on the coast of Peru to prevent her sinking when her pumps failed. Only a few of her men were rescued and those the Spaniards enslaved, so that they spent four years in the mines Lima while Selkirk lorded it over his king of goats.

Woodes Rogers was scarcely away from Juan nandez Island when his ships took a little prize, Santa Josepha of "50 tons, full of timber, cocoa cocoanuts and some tobacco which we distribut our men." She was careened, cleaned and given good old Puritan name of Increase, and Alex Selkirk was appointed to be her master.

Now, the Duke and the Duchess, with the crease and their other prizes, sailed for the of Peru. Their plan was to take Guaiquil. But fore that "charming enterprise," as their comm called it, they beat up and down offshore; for had heard, from their prisoners, of "a certain widow of the late Viceroy of Peru, who was exp ed to embark with her family and wealth shortly. . . . Also of a stout ship with dry goods for Lima, and another, richly laden, from Panama, with a Bishop aboard."

The Lima ship they captured. The Bishop, according to their prisoners, had "stop'd at Patya to recruit." Now they fitted up two small prizes for the attack on Guaiquil—Selkirk's may have been of them—but before that adventure was begun the lookout on the crow's nest of the Duke had spied a sail. The two small boats started after her, but their haste forgot to take along their patereroes, or swivel guns. The Spaniard was the Panama ship, and laughed at them and beat them off, killing two men, one of them Rogers' brother, Thomas.



"As though they were pursued by devils the Spaniards fled and thus Guaiquil's defend were beaten out of town."

Woodes Rogers may have seen red, but his book shows the calm and determined commander.

SETTING sprit-sails, sprit-sail top-sails, flying and top gallants, the Duke set forward in pursuit. Rogers crowded on all the canvas she would carry. The crew was ordered aft to remain quiet, as the ship would steer better, "being too much by the head." Her decks were cleared when they got to the Spaniard's windward. Weapons were loaded ready.

The chase shortened sail. Her commander he must turn and fight.

From the Duke's aft came the challenge of trum ets. And the Spaniard answered with a proud flo ish.

"Hold your fire until alongside," ordered Rog "Wait until we are in musket range."

They pulled up, and, guaging by the enemy's mast, the privateer let go with her port broadside.

The duel had begun.

The Duke edged toward the enemy. "Port your helm! Run alongside!" called Capt. Rogers. The broadside from the privateer had thinned the Spaniard's decks, but her enemy's small arms bit back. Then the Spanish commander signaled to fire, and her starboard broadside splintered the Duke's top-timbers and her foc'sle head. And so the chase fell off while the Duke answered with her starboard broadside, the case and partridge cutting off the Spaniard's foremast and driving him to bear away to stop his leaks.

"Port hard!"

They edged toward the chase, Capt. Rogers manning his lashers and graplings now, with able men.

"Fire!" And the port broadside from within a pistol's range, wrought havoc on the galleon's deck, and the Duke brought up alongside and threw out her grapplers, lashing fast.

"Fire!" And the port broadside from within a pistol's range, wrought havoc on the galleon's deck, and the Duke brought up alongside and threw out her grapplers, lashing fast.

Then, clearing their way with han grenades, the privateers clambered aboard the enemy, with pistol and cutlass, to fight it hand and hand.

BRAVELY they were opposed, but with cut and thrust and deadly ball they made their way through her waist, dividing their party to charge the groups that had retreated to fo'castle and after-house. Scuppers were red and decks were slippery, but that was in the long day's work.

There was hot fighting at the after hatchway, where the Spanish captain made his final stand. Then "Give us quarter!" he cried as the British stormed his last retreat.

"Throw down your arms, then! Open your hatches! Haul down all sails and furl 'em!"

Such as could of the Spaniard's crew went about these orders. Capt. Rogers told off a prize crew and ordered his men to search the ship. He learned that she was rich indeed. Then the Duke was unlashed and sheared off, the scarlet and yellow of Spain were lowered and the Royal Jack was lifted to the Spaniard's masthead.

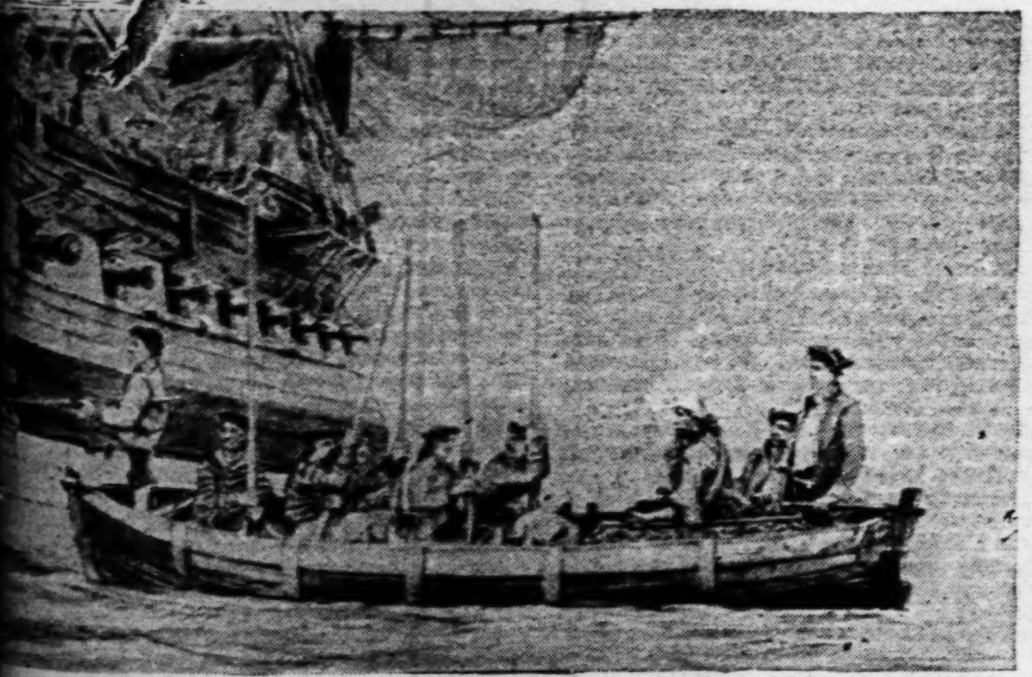
Boats were lowered and Capt. Rogers stood by, ready to carry the Spanish commander and a part of his crew as prisoners aboard the Duke.

"But where," he suddenly demanded, "is the Bishop?" He had forgotten all about the prelate in the fight.

"Ten days ago," was the answer, "he landed at Point St. Helena, with his attendants and his plate. He had heard that you were in these seas."

Then came Guaiquil.

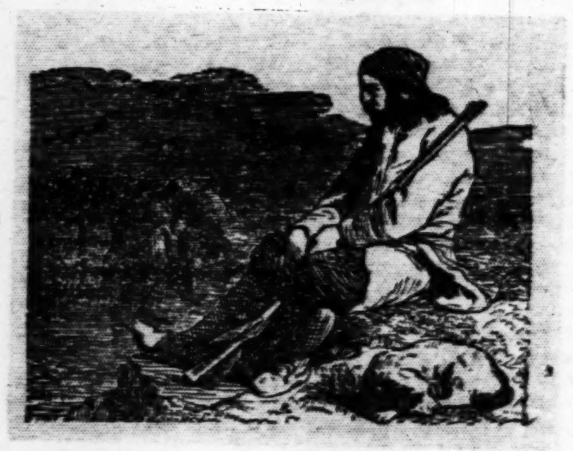
During two broiling days and nights as hot the pinnaces led the way, towing and rowing among the islands and mangrove swamps, where the course was overhung with tangled vines, and foliage so thick that scarcely could breeze penetrate the dark green twilight gloom. "Muskitoes," so Rogers wrote, "pester'd and stung so grievously, while at anchor across the tide on a dark night with a small rolling sea, the boat being so deep laden and cramm'd with men, that I would rather be in a storm at sea than there."



clothed in goatskins who looked wilder than the first owners of them," wrote the Captain.

To take the town he could spare but 110 men, for six prizes now he had, and 300 prisoners aboard. On the second night they reached Guaiquil, only to learn through blazing fires and the alarm of church bells that they had been discovered.

Rogers was for abandoning the sack. Dampier, the pilot, who had sailed with many a buccaneer laconically advised for it. But the others of the pirates would not, so after retiring downstream, where in a long boat they held council of war while they fought mosquitoes, they sent two prisoners into the town to demand 40,000 pieces of eight as its ransom. And the Spaniards stopped to haggle. They offered 32,000. Rogers' answer was quick—and decisive—battle.



"Monarch of all I survey"—Selkirk on Juan Fernandez Island.

The pinnaces were brought up and lay off Guaiquil's embarcadero. Some of his pirates Rogers left aboard to play a barrage over the 70 fighting men at whose head he undertook the city's capture.

Just half a musket shot, across the town's main street, which led to the embarcadero, the Spaniards had formed a battle front of horse and man. The white sun of the tropics beat down upon the town, and flashed in blinding glare from low white buildings and the armor of the Spanish men of arms, as the boats approached over the dancing waters.

WITH a cry of "Forward" the English jumped from their boats. Capt. Rogers had given orders to hold their fire until his men were within a pistol's shot of the enemy. Then, advancing at doublequick they opened up their guns.

The lead rattled like hail off Spanish breastplates. The horses snorted and reared, whirled and struggled. There were cries of Spanish wounded. There were cheers from conquering pirates. And in the confusion the Spanish cavalry broke and fled in retreat, the foot soldiers following.

Before the church the defenders halted. Again their horse were pulled into line. Again the foot reformed upon its remnant. Supporting them here, beneath the cross of Guaiquil's House of God, the Spanish had four cannon.

Up the street, under the pitiless sun, marched Capt. Rogers and his privateers. As they rounded a corner the Spanish saw them, and again the defenders' horse broke their brave array, knocking down and trampling the arquebusiers.

Rogers, with 10 of his foremost men, waited not for the rest. Alone they assailed the Spanish cannon, seized the church and took possession of the guns. As though they were pursued by devils, the Spaniards fled, and thus Guaiquil's defenders were beaten out of town.

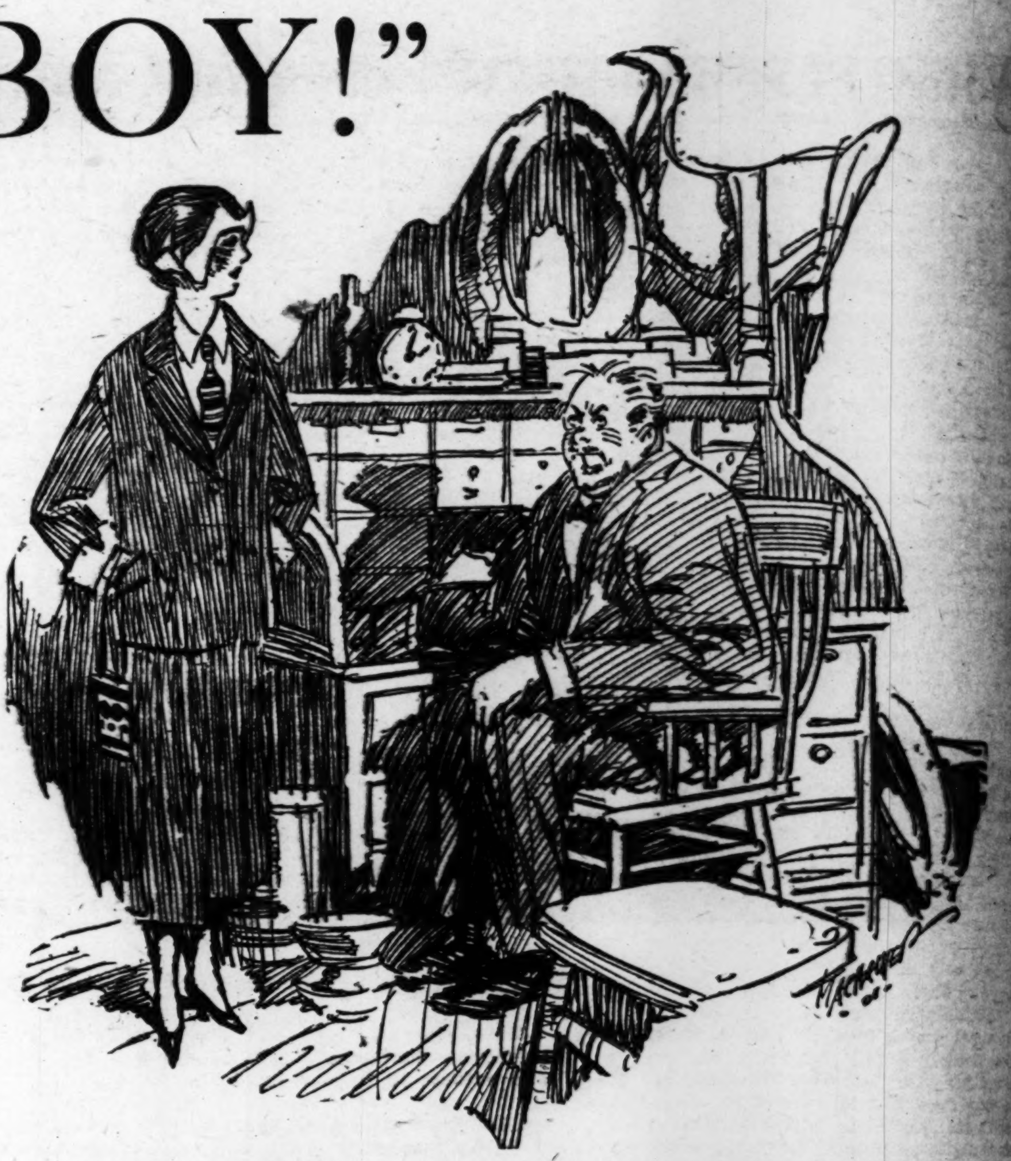
"ATTABOY!"

By

Jerome Beatty



"You're not, neither!" he repeated. "That bum bush-leaguer! No!"

JAKE RYAN, proprietor of the Palace Livery and Feed Stable, at Connersville, Texas, slammed his fist down on the table in his "office" with a bang that shook two saddles and a horse collar off their hooks on the wall.

"You're not, neither!" he declared. Into his statement he put all the vehemence he had used for so many years in addressing umpires who had informed him that they were about to put him out of the game. Jake had once been a great baseball player, one of the best first basemen in the business. He also had had several years' experience as a major league umpire. But there was little of the umpire's air of authority in Jake's manner now.

"Your'e not, neither!" he repeated. "That bum bush-leaguer! No!"

For all the violence of his manner, Mr. Ryan's commands did not carry conviction. There seemed to be implied in his intonation a trace of helplessness, an unspoken attitude of "You wouldn't do that, now, would you?"

Mr. Ryan was addressing his daughter, Dorothy; a dainty blonde girl in a becoming toque and the smartest tailored suit the Dallas stores could furnish.

Dorothy had just returned from college to visit her father over Sunday. Visiting her father had consisted mostly in riding around in one of his livery rigs with Tommy Marsh, who had come over from Waco to see her. Tommy at that moment was standing nervously outside the stable, whither he had fled. He had casually mentioned—after asking Jake how much the rig was—that he would like to marry Dorothy. Jake had remained silent while Tommy counted out the correct change, then, after a short interchange of discourtesies, had advised him to get the something out of there.

Tommy had said what he would like to do. Dorothy had promptly gone in to tell her father what she was going to do. She intended to marry Tommy Marsh, and it mattered not a whit to her if her father didn't like it. She did.

"That guy?" exclaimed Jake. "A college infielder that can't hit the size of his hat! My daughter'll never marry a bum ball player!"

"But, father, you don't know Tommy," Dorothy declared.

"Didn't you introduce me to him today? Ain't I read about him? Captain of St. Vincent's College team!" he sneered. "Signed by the Giants!" he mocked. "I know them college infielders. Field like lightning an' hit about as often."

"But you didn't talk to him. He's graduating in the law course. If he doesn't make good in baseball"——

"I didn't talk to 'im, didn't I?" Jake roared. "'I'd like to marry Dorothy,' says he. 'What can you hit?' says I. 'Two thirty-four in college,' says he."

"But"——

"Two thirty-four! That's what he hits again' throwers! What in th' name of Al. G. Spalding do you think he'll hit again' pitchers?"

"There's"——

"O-O-double-O nothin'! That's what he'll hit. A .234 fungo hitter, that's what he is. Good for nothin' but battin' flies in fieldin' practice. Two thirty-four in college! An' I bet he used a tennis bat an' had th' scorers fixed!"

"Yes, father, but"——

"An' another thing I asks him. I used to be the greatest sacrifice hitter in baseball; so I asks him: 'Young man, can you bunt?' 'Mister Ryan,' says he,"—Jake fairly yelled his protest against such disgusting incompetence—"'Mister Ryan, I don't like to brag about myself, but I can bunt farther than any other man on the team!' Them's his very words! Can you beat it?"

"But, father, Tommy was just joking. He's really"——

"The facts are there. A .234 hitter is no joke. I won't have none in my family. Not on your life!"

SO THAT evening Tommy Marsh hired a rig from a rival livery stable and went around and got Dorothy, who stole out the back door of the Ryan home. They drove to the county seat and were married.

Jake was pacing up and down the gallery when they returned. He ran belligerently out to meet them.

"Didn't I tell you"—— he roared.

Dorothy ran up and threw her arms around her father, who had so frightened the horse that Tommy was having trouble controlling it.

"Father!" she cried, and she furiously kissed his wrinkled face and petted his arm and his head. Dorothy was having as much trouble quieting her father as Tommy was with the horse. "We're married," she announced. "And I'm so happy!"

Most of the neighbors were sticking their heads out the windows. Those who didn't have their heads out had run down to call up on the party line and tell their friends.

"Come in th' house, both of you," Jake demanded. He peered through the dark at the horse that Tommy had started to tie to the hitching post. "Take that rig of Hal Tomkins' over acrost th' street an' hitch it!" he ordered. "You can't tie that in my front yard."

The three gathered in Jake Ryan's parlor. There was no Mrs. Ryan. She had died long before.

"Young man," said Jake, severely, "I don't know whether to"——

Dorothy crossed over and curled up at her father's feet and held his hands.

"Father," she said, softly, "I'm awfully happy."

"Young man," Jake began again, "young man, you gotta lotta nerve."

Tommy did not answer.

"You gotta lotta nerve," Jake repeated, his gnarled fingers twitching in the hands his daughter would not loosen. He looked down and, finally, gently releasing one of his hands, patted her on the head. His voice weakened. He coughed to hide the catch in his throat.

"I guess she wants you," he said slowly, "and I want her to have what she wants. That's all I'm livin' for. But you're takin' her away from me. I'm here all alone an"—he blinked rapidly. "Whatta you mean!" he suddenly stormed. "You gotta lotta nerve! Takin' Hal Tomkins' roan mare to run away with my girl!"

Dorothy smiled and climbed up and kissed her father. Tommy only grinned.

"Tommy is going to practice law with his father in Waco," she said. "He doesn't care much about baseball anyway and is going to give it up."

"Give up baseball? Why?"

To Jake the idea of anybody giving up baseball as long as his legs were good and his arms were strong was something unheard of.

"I thought," said Tommy, "that I probably wouldn't be a success at it—and I really like law."

"Piffle!" scoffed Jake. "I'd rather be a bad ballplayer than a good lawyer any day. An' you ain't a bad one. Ain't you the best college second baseman in Texas? Ain't you been signed by the Giants? Ain't you gonna report at Marlin next month? They tell me you gotta grand pair o' hands! An' you're gonna quit baseball! Not if I know it! I'll make a real player outa you!"

"You'll teach him how to bunt, won't you father?" smiled Dorothy, hugging her father affectionately.

"I sure will," asserted Jake. "Say!" he exclaimed, suddenly recalling what Dorothy meant. "Was you really kiddin' me when you said you was the best long-distance bunter?"

"I really was," Tommy grinned.

"Son," said Jake solemnly, "if I ever find out you was on the level with that stuff, I'll cut your throat." He suddenly noticed the time of night. "Get outa here, botha you!" he exclaimed. "You just got time to take that rig back an' catch the 12:48. Ain't you gonna have any weddin' trip?"

Dorothy hurried upstairs and threw some things into a suit case and came bouncing down with it. She wept as she kissed her father good-by.

Jake wrung Tommy's hand.

"I'll make a ballplayer outa you yet," he said.

"Thanks," Tommy replied. "If I can be half as good a ballplayer as you were and half as good to Dorothy as you have been I'll feel that I am a success."

"Try to be twicet as good," answered Jake chokingly.

"Leave it to me," said Tommy.

"Attaboy!" crooned Jake Ryan as he stood in the door and watched them run down the steps.

"Hey!" he yelled suddenly.

They stopped.

"Don't let Tomkins charge you more'n $2 for this rig. He'll try an' stick you for three."

He watched them until they faded into the darkness, then walked slowly, his head on his chest, back into the house. He dropped into his chair in front of the fireplace. Never had he felt so alone. He lighted his pipe and let the smoke slowly trickle from between his lips.

"Only .234 in college," he said softly, at last. "Ain't that th' devil?" he added plaintively. "Why couldn't ita been anyway .275?"

THAT night Jake had his glorious dream and he knew that all was well. It was one of those dreams that come back over and over again. Jake had dreamed it intermittently ever since he left his job as an umpire in the American League.

In this dream he was facing Spike McCann, and Jake always laid down many twisty bunts and kept Spike chasing them until his legs became tied into a Gordian knot and surgeons cut one leg off in order to straighten out the other.

Jake couldn't point to any particular run of luck that ever had followed this dream—except that once, after it had come, he had remembered who it was that gave him a bad half-dollar—but it always cheered him up.

To Jake Ryan, Spike McCann was an obsession. They first learned of it in Connersville when Jake discharged one of his stableboys who had tacked up in one of the stalls a picture of the great pitcher. Again, before the first world series of which McCann was the hero, when the fellows down at the Elite poolhall dropped around to Jake's to see which club he thought would win, Jake burst out with "McCann can take every game he pitches an' he can work every day if they need him, but he's the biggest skunk in baseball, an' if any of you guys bet on him, I'll beat your heads off with a neckyoke! Hear me?"

After the series Jake learned that Pete Fleet had won $40 by betting on McCann; and Jake went over to Pete's grocery store to make good his threat. It was not until warned that if he broke anything he would have to pay for it that Jake abandoned his plans.

Jake had played in the big leagues for a good many years. He had been one of the first to jump from the National League to the American, upon the formation of the second major organization; and because he always had been a first-class ballplayer, when his Charley-horse became chronic the League made him an umpire.

He had made good, but he had had a great deal of trouble with the players, especially with the youngsters. Jake had no sense of humor and the boys liked to pick on him.

His enemies in Connersville said that Jake had quit because he couldn't stand the gaff, that he had become a joke in the big leagues. His friends defended him stoutly and said sagely they'd bet there was a woman in it somewhere.

For some strange reason nobody advanced the theory that Jake's withdrawal from the profession of umpiring and his hatred of Spike McCann might in some way have been connected.

Everybody liked Jake, for he was a lovable old war horse. And they overlooked his attitude toward Spike McCann, who was one of the heroes of Texas—second only to Davy Crockett, with Tris Speaker a close third. Spike was a local boy, whose unusual talents had made him a foremost figure in the public eye, where he had set the country afire with a vengeance—as the Waco papers so often put it. Your baseball fan doesn't investigate a player's private life. He rates baseball men by what they do, not by what they are.

So it happened that his fellow citizens usually smiled indulgently when Jake began discussing Spike McCann's attitude toward the ethics of baseball. Spike, to them, was a greater man than Mathewson had ever been.

When some of the curious inquired his reasons for belaboring a man who had won 76 games in three years, Jake would only shake his head and say he knew a lot of things he wouldn't tell.

TOMMY MARSH was the son of Waco's most successful attorney, a rough, gruff Texan, who loved baseball and poker, and who never had felt that Tommy's excellent grades in the law school ever quite made up for his low batting average on the baseball team.

Tommy's mother, who never had approved when her husband encouraged Tommy's baseball ambitions, was not entirely reconciled to the marriage of her son with the daughter of a baseball player who ran a livery stable.

"Nonsense, mother," said Mr. Marsh. "He's not just a baseball player. He's Jake Ryan! Didn't you ever hear of Jake Ryan? I remember traveling all the way from Hot Springs to St. Louis just to see Jake Ryan bunt a ball. Jake was the greatest bunter that ever lived; bunted with the small end of his bat, so. Look, mother, this is the way he would do!"

Mr. Marsh seized his walking stick and made many peculiar gyrations, but Mrs. Marsh said she was forced to admit that she couldn't understand how performances like that served any economic purpose, and observed that Mr. Marsh acted more like a cheer leader than like any baseball player she had ever seen.

But when Tommy brought his bride home after their short honeymoon she welcomed her and loved Dorothy from the start, especially since Dorothy, now that she had a husband to manage, believe that the law was a more ennobling profession than baseball, even if lawyers did have to associate with tough people and didn't make so much money.

The first evening that the newlyweds were at the Marsh home, Tommy told about Jake's promise.

"He's going up to Marlin and help me," exulted Tommy. "He says he was a weak hitter, just the way I am, when he started in baseball, and he thinks he can teach me to bunt and place the ball just the way he did."

"Jake Ryan can teach you if anybody can," his father said, eagerly. "Go to it, son. I want you to make good."

Dorothy was unenthusiastic.

"If Tommy does make good," she complained, "then he will be away from me half the time. I think I'd rather have him take up his law practice with you. Dad was a success in baseball and saved a great deal of money, but"——

"Tommy will be a big-leaguer or nothing," said his father. "I want to see him get in there and make Waco people as proud of him as they are of Spike McCann."

"Spike McCann!" exclaimed Dorothy. "Hmm!" she grunted, contemptuously.

"That's the gink I want to get!" muttered Tommy.

"What's the matter with Spike?" asked Mr. Marsh. "He's the greatest pitcher in baseball today. I've known him since he was a kid. You used to be crazy about Spike. What's the matter now?"

"HE'S changed a lot," said Tommy. "He's crooked, dad. Spike was responsible for Mr. Ryan's quitting baseball. When Mr. Ryan was umpiring, Spike told lies about him. Spike was down on him and got Mr. Ryan run out of the big leagues. Mr. Ryan was forced to quit, all because of Spike."

"You don't mean it!" said Mr. Marsh. "What did he do?"

Mr. Marsh and Tommy turned to Dorothy.

She shook her head. "I don't know exactly, except that he ruined father's life by lies."

It was agreed by all concerned that Dorothy had better stay with Tommy's

"You don't mean it!" said Mr. Marsh. "What did he do?"

Mr. Marsh and Tommy turned to Dorothy.

She shook her head. "I don't know exactly, except that he ruined father's life by lies."

It was agreed by all concerned that Dorothy had better stay with Tommy's parents during the training season, for Jake expected to spend a great deal of his time in Marlin, where, he knew, McGraw would welcome him. Every year McGraw, who admired Jake, had invited him to come up and look the bunch over, but Jake always had refused. He was afraid. Youngsters seldom have respect for a champion who has lost his crown, and Jake still loved to be where he could talk to an interested audience about the good old days.

For several years the Giant management had barred all wives from the training camp. Some of the players and all of the wives had complained, but to no avail. Quarrels between wives have wrecked many a ball club.

"You get into Marlin and find that six of the players have brought their wives," a club official explained. "You have only three rooms with private bath to distribute among six couples. You deal them out as diplomatically as you can. Then:

"'Why don't we get a private bath? Aren't you as important a player as Smith or Jones or Brown? Go right down and stand up for your rights!' That's what the three wives that didn't get the private baths begin saying to their husbands. And right away a jealous row starts that in a week will make a first-class club look as bad as Casey Stengel trying to steal home."

So Dorothy stayed in Waco.

JAKE RYAN arrived at Marlin a week after training had started and was greeted with enthusiasm by McGraw. The newspaper men, traveling with the Giants, hailed him with delight, for it gave them something new to write about. That night they sent several thousand words about Jake to the New York papers, adding further to the perpetual disgust of the Marlin telegraph operators who never have been able to understand why New York editors are willing to pay a lot of money to get the dam-fool rot that the baseball writers send about baseball players, who never do anything but go out and run around a lot and act generally like a bunch of kids at recess. There's an operator working in Houston now who can't understand why he was transferred from the Marlin trick and reprimanded. All he did, he will tell you, was to delay six hours in sending a thousand-word story about how a ballplayer had broken an ankle and would be out of the game for three or four months.

"A thousand words to New York about a broken ankle!" he exclaims. "And one of these reporter fellers sets up a howl because it missed gettin' in th' papers until the next day! Whatta you thinka that! An' every day men are bein' killed in Texas, mind you, an' they never send a word about it!"

Darned foolishness, that's what he thinks it is. And the other small-town operators say they think so, too.

Jake told McGraw about Tommy Marsh.

"I'll be glad if you'll work with him, Jake," said McGraw, but he'll never do. I never saw him until he reported. A friend of mine tipped me off to him after reading about him in the Texas papers. The boy's all right for a minor league, but he hasn't the shoulders; he's slow and he backs away.

Jake Ryan threw out his chest.

"LOOK at me!" he demanded. Have I got any shoulders?"

"Not many," McGraw admitted.

"Was I a hitter, or not?"

McGraw laughed. "You never made a home run in your life."

"No," Jake snapped. "But I averaged .296 for 12 years, didn't I? And I'da hit better'n that if them boneheaded scorers weren't always givin' an error if an infielder even touched a bunt that I beat out. Mac, them scorers is fierce!"

McGraw grinned good humoredly. "Cincinnati hits, a lot of them were. You'd bunt with a man on first and the throw would go to second too late to catch the runner. Couldn't do it now, Jake. They've abolished the Cincinnati hit."

"Cincinnati hits nothin'," cried Jake.

"You're right. The Reds always were weak. But maybe, now"——

"I tell you—I—I"——

McGraw, who had forgotten for the moment's Jake's sensitive nature, was sorry for what he had said.

"You were the surest place hitter there ever was in baseball," McGraw interjected earnestly. "I was just kidding. Go ahead and see what you can do for your son-in-law."

Jake appointed himself Tommy's personal trainer, but he found time, at McGraw's request, to work with the other recruits—all except three or four that McGraw thought particularly promising and which he kept on the squad of regulars under his direct supervision.

Tommy learned quickly. He had done a good deal of gymnasium work through the winter and was in better trim than most of the other players.

"Baseball ain't what it used to be," Jake confided to Tommy after Jake's Yannigans had won a five-inning game from the regulars by a score of something like 12 to 8. "The pitchin's bad. You'll knock the daylight outa the National League. I think," he boasted, "I could go back and tear 'em up some myself."

Jake had played first base for the "Little Potatoes, Hard to Peel," as he called his team, and had made a single every time he had come to bat. Bentley, Nehf, Scott—all of them, working carefully to avoid sore arms had looked alike to Jake. And so did they to Tommy, who had proved an apt pupil.

Jake worked conscientiously with Tommy. The veteran backed Tommy up against a fence and farther down the fence built a pitcher's box about two-thirds of the regulation distance away. Then, parallel to the fence, he pitched to Tommy, who had shown a tendency to pull away from the plate. Tommy couldn't pull through the fence, and he learned not to fear the ball.

Then Jake shortened Tommy's stride. Tommy was in the habit of taking a long step and a strong swing as he struck.

"A long step lowers your shoulders," Jake explained. "It makes you a sucker for high ones. An' a heavy swing never does nothin' but throw you off."

He got Tommy a light bat, showed him how to reverse it and to bunt as Jake had done, explaining that it made the striking end lighter. Thus it was easier to hit the ball.

"But I've got a better chance to connect with the big end," Tommy argued. "The handle's too small."

"Son," said Jake, "if you're certain, you hit the ball on the dead center, with the dead center of the bat; if your eye is good and your wrist is right, you only need the point of the bat that's closest to the ball, don't you?'"

Tommy guessed so.

"Then you could hit a ball as square with a lead pencil as you could with a stove pipe," Jake said. "Go ahead and do like I tell you."

Tommy, like all weak hitters, was prone to wait for a base on balls, which made Jake rage.

"You're in there to hit," he snapped. "You'll get a base on balls about once in ten times up, if you're lucky an' the pitcher's afraid of you. If they gave you a hit for gettin' a walk, then you'd hit a bad hundred per cent.

"Make 'em pitch to you. Don't hit at bad balls, but don't let a good one go past, unless you're under orders from the manager. Try to get th' pitcher in a hole. If you get two balls an' no strikes on you, get set an' swing on th' next one. That's the ol' percentage ball. With two an' nothin' on a batter, a pitcher almost always puts the next one over. That's the one for you to take."

Jake had another axiom.

"Remember," he said, "the pitcher's a lot scareder than you are. You're one outa nine hitters. He's one outa one pitcher. He's got nine times as much to worry about as you have."

A FEW days later Jake drifted into the writing room of the hotel, and there found Jim Tierney, secretary of the Giants, dictating to the hotel stenographer. Those inveterate gamblers, "A" and "B," never will leave Mr. Tierney alone. No matter where he goes, letters follow him asking whether the run counts and the difference between a hit and an error.

As Jake entered Mr. Tierney was sending to a volunteer umpire in Dallas the information that the populace was perhaps right in showing a disposition to doubt the accuracy of his decision when, with the bases full, he had called the batter out because the pitcher had thrown four balls and there was no base left for the batter to take.

"Address it to the City Hospital, Dallas," said Mr. Tierney.

"But the letter says the game was played at Fort Worth," the stenographer protested.

"Dallas was where they caught up with him," the secretary explained laconically. He turned to Jake.

"We're going to give your boy something to do," he said. "I was just talking with McGraw about it. We play an exhibition game in Waco a week from Saturday. I hear Marsh is a favorite there."

"It's his home town."

"McGraw says he'll let him play second base. The kid'll be a good card."

McGraw himself came into the room and Jake turned toward him, beaming.

"Mac," said Jake, "that boy of mine will stand that town on its head. Who do we play?" he questioned.

"The Sox," McGraw told him.

"He'll make them American Leaguers look sick. He's a"—— He stopped suddenly. "Which Sox?" he asked.

"Red Sox," replied McGraw. "They're going to pitch Spike McCann. He's a Waco boy, too. Ought to draw a big crowd." And it seemed as if he smiled a bit as he turned quickly and walked away.

For days the Waco newspapers had been full of news of the forthcoming struggle between two Waco boys, the great Spike McCann, son of A. J. McCann, the popular manager of Stubblefield's grocery store, and Tommy Marsh, son of the noted Texas attorney and counselor-at-law, R. L. Marsh. No reporter neglected to mention that Tommy was a bridegroom and that his bride would be there cheering for him.

Ever since he had heard the news Jake had applied himself diligently to educating Tommy to hit the sort of pitching for which Spike was noted. Spike was tall and a bit awkward.

"He never could handle a ground ball," Jake said. "He's made to order for our stuff."

Spike was a curve-ball pitcher, like Matty. With McGraw's consent, Jake had borrowed McGraw's best curve-ball pitchers and had let them work against Tommy. And Tommy improved steadily. He was eager for a chance at Spike.

"I'll do my darndest, Mr. Ryan," he affirmed, "to show him up in his home town."

"Attaboy!" said Jake. "He's a swelled-up stiff an' he'd rather show off in Waco than win a world's series game. Go get him."

All of Waco went to see the game. There wasn't a soul on the streets. A stranger in town couldn't even have found a person to point out the spot where Brann was killed. Even the bookstores which deal in Waco's greatest commodity—volumes of editorials from the Iconoclast—were locked up so the clerks could go to the game.

It was one of those sparkling spring days that only Texas can furnish, a blend of all the spices of winter with all the sweets of summer.

Jake was there with Mr. and Mrs. Marsh and Dorothy. They sat in a box behind the Giant bench. Jake thought he would rather not go down on the field. He wanted to keep out of Spike McCann's sight.

In two short hours Jake had his revenge. The game ended. Tommy was carried around the field on the shoulders of his friends. Spike McCann had slunk away with his beaten teammates. And Jake was as proud as a darky minstrel man in a green-and-gold uniform leading the band in a parade in his home town.

Spike, though not in good condition, had insisted upon pitching the entire nine innings. For eight of them he held the Giants runless. In those first eight innings, only three Giants had made hits. Morris had picked off a single, Pendleton had made a double and Tommy Marsh, now the pride of Waco, had made two singles and a sacrifice hit. One of Tommy's hits was a bunt of the Jake Ryan brand that Spike had been unable to field properly. The other was a little loft over third, placed just as Jake used to place them.

In the ninth—that inning in which all the story-book events occur—with MacGregor on third, and two balls and no strikes registered upon the umpire's indicator, Tommy set himself for the "percentage ball" that Jake had told him about. It came as per order, right in the groove, and Tommy drove it on a line over short for the hit that won the game.

The Waco recruit had triumphed over the Waco veteran, hero of world's championships! They all like to see a youngster make good, and Waco ran amuck in celebrating Tommy's arrival.

They finally carried him to the 'bus that was to take the Giants to their hotel. Jake was waiting at the wagon, his face beaming.

"Attaboy!" he said softly, as the

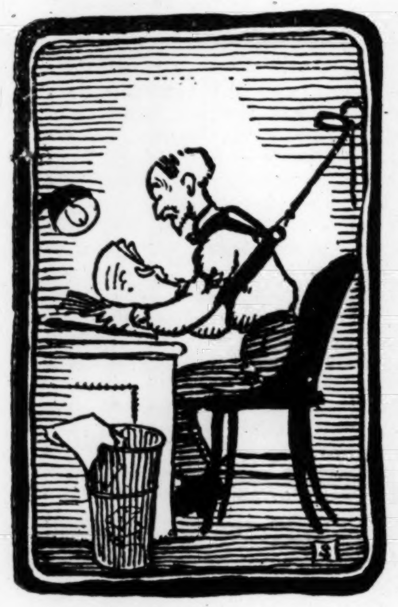
THE EFFICIENCY EPIDEMIC

By STEPHEN LEACOCK

SOMETHING is happening, I regret to find, to the world in which we used to live. The poor old thing is being "speeded up." There is "efficiency" in the air. Offices open at 8 o'clock. Millionaires lunch on a baked apple. Bankers eat less than that. A college president has declared that there are more foot pounds of energy in a glass of peptonized milk than in—something else, I forget what.

All this is very fine. Yet somehow I feel out of it. My friends are failing me. They won't sit up after midnight. They have taken to sleeping out of doors, on porches and pergolas. Some, I understand, merely roost on plain wooden bars. They rise early. They take deep breathing. They bathe in ice water. They are no good.

This change, I am sure, is excellent. It is, I am certain, just as it ought to be. I am merely saying, quietly and humbly, that I am not in it. I am being left behind. Take, for example, the case of work.



"Would wear dog harness if they thought they could work more in it."

IN MY time one hated it. It was viewed as the natural enemy of man. Now the world has fallen in love with it. My friends, I find, take their deep breathing and their porch sleeping because it makes them work better.

They go for a week's vacation in Virginia not for its own sake, but because they say that when they get back, they can work better. I know a man who wears very loose boots because he can work better in them, and another who wears only soft shirts because he can work better in a soft shirt. There are plenty of men now who would wear dog-harness if they thought they could work more in it.

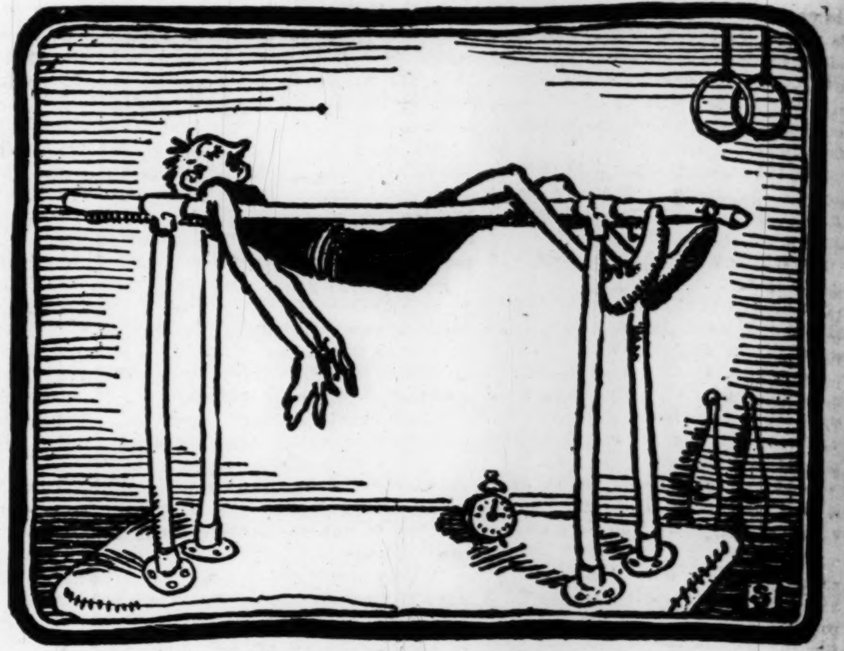
I know another man who walks away out into the country every Sunday; not that he likes the country; he wouldn't recognize a bumble bee if he saw it; but he claims that if he walks on Sunday his head is as clear as a bell for work on Monday.

Against work itself I say nothing. But I sometimes wonder if I stand alone in this thing. Am I the only person left who does hate it?

NOR is work all. Take food. I admit here and now that the lunch I like best—I mean for an ordinary plain lunch, not a party—is a beefsteak about one foot square and two inches thick. Can I work on it? No, I can't. But I can work in spite of it. That is as much as one used to ask, 25 years ago.

Yet now I find that all my friends boast ostentatiously about the meager lunch they eat. One tells me that he finds a glass of milk and a prune is quite as much as he cares to take. Another says that a dry biscuit and a glass of water is all that his brain will stand. One lunches on the white of an egg. Another eats merely the yolk. I have only two friends left who con eat a whole egg at a time.

I understand that the fear of these men is that if they eat more than an egg or a biscuit, they will feel heavy after lunch. Why they object to feeling heavy, I do not know. Personally, I enjoy it. I like nothing better than to sit around after a heavy lunch with a half-dozen heavy friends, smoking heavy cigars. I am well aware that that is wicked.



"Some roost on wooden bars."

NOR is food all, nor drink, nor work, nor open air. There has spread abroad along with the so-called physical efficiency a perfect passion for information. Somehow, if a man's stomach is empty and his head clear as a bell, and if he won't drink and won't smoke, he reaches out for information. He wants facts. He reads the newspapers clean through. He clamors for articles filled with statistics about illiteracy and alien immigration and the tonnage percentage of battleships to be scrapped in the next disarmament conference.

I know quite a lot of men who bought the new encyclopedias, and what is more, they read them. They sit in their apartments at night with a glass of water at their elbow reading the encyclopedia. They say that it is literally filled with facts. Other men spend their time reading the Statistical Abstract of the United States (they say the figures in it are great) and the Acts of Congress, and the list of Presidents since Washington (or was it Washington?).

SPENDING their evenings thus, and topping it off with a cold boiled prune, and sleeping out in the snow, they go to work in the morning, so they tell me, with a positive sense of exhilaration. I have no doubt that they do. But for me, I confess that once and for all I am out of it. I am left behind.

Add to it all such rising dangers as night and morning exercise, and the reduction to standard weight, daylight saving, and bigger and better breathing, together with eugenic marriage, the initiative and referendum, and the duty of the citizen to take an intelligent interest in politics—and I admit that I shall not be sorry to go away from here.

But before I do go, I have one hope: I understand that down in Haiti things are more considerately ordered. Bull fights, cock fights, dog fights, are openly permitted. Business never begins till 11 in the morning. Everybody sleeps after lunch, and the cafes remain open all night. In fact, the general efficiency so they tell me is less perceptible in Haiti than it has been anywhere since the time of Nero. Me for Haiti.

MAP OF UNITED STATES WILL COVER A WHOLE ACRE

THE recent passage of an authorization bill by Congress enables the Government to carry to completion the largest and most comprehensive map of the United States—a great mother map that will represent, when completed, 20 years from now, an accurate topographical survey of every square inch of the vast territory that comprises the United States.

This great map—the largest in the world—will not be in one piece, but will be composed of 6000 sections which, if placed together in one big pattern, would cover more than an acre of ground. So complete in every detail will it be, says Popular Science Monthly for July, that anybody living in any section of the country will be able to find on the proper sheet the exact location of his house. Delicate contour lines will draw the picture of the country's hills and valleys, plains and mountain ranges, canyons and waterways—even its man-made landmarks.

Work on the survey for the map began in 1879 and has progressed slowly, held back by the lack of appropriations. Now, however, Congress has authorized the completion of the work and the appropriation of $950,000 for the survey in the first year. The total expenditure is estimated at $49,200,000.

Modern science in many ways will aid in completing the map. Aerial photography will play an important part. The mapping plane, carrying a photographer equipped with a panoramic camera, flies at an altitude of about 12,000 feet, and pictures are taken often enough so that they overlap. Then definite locations of known points are marked accurately on tracing linen as a guide in fitting the aerial photographs.

The survey will be a history in itself. Every line of the map will reveal much of romance and adventure for those who have had a part in its making.

For example, a group of tiny lines defines the contour of Mount McKinley. Yet to obtain them, a company of men have struggled up the white heights, laboriously packing surveyor's equipment, and have pitted their strength and wit against the forces of nature. Again, there is designated on the map a minute area marked "Mojave." Under a burning sun another company has spent many hours in the desert sighting and marking.

It is a tremendous undertaking. Yet when the last square inch of our vast country has been surveyed, there will have been completed a treasure chart of priceless value.

Future Men May Live a Thousand Years

PRESENT day man, on the average, lacks only 12 years of achieving the Biblical span of "three score and ten." That is to say, a baby born today should live for 58 years, 20 years more than the average contemporary of George Washington lived and twice as long as the average person lived at the time of Shakspeare. And, thanks to the efforts of science in combating disease, the average span of life is increasing every year.

Will science in time succeed in prolonging the average life until, like Methuselah, we measure our lives by centuries instead of years?

This is the question raised in the July issue of Popular Science Monthly, which points to recent statements by eminent scientists that suggest an even more astounding possibility, namely, that science some day may succeed in causing men to live forever!

One of the statements comes from Professor Fritz Haber, noted German chemist, who expresses his belief that men may learn to live for ten centuries or more. In the human body, he says, are various essential chemical agents known as "enzymes." These, he declares, eventually deteriorate, causing death. It is more than a theoretical possibility, he says, that science can supply substances that will prevent these important chemical agents from wearing out and that human life can be prolonged as long as the old enzymes are replaced.

Doctor Raymond Pearl, distinguished scientist of Johns Hopkins University, is another who believes old age may be conquered. Old age, he says, may be caused by a still undiscovered chemical substance—a poison—that finds its way into the blood and attacks the body cells. What we call death, he believes, does not occur until various parts of the body have surrendered one by one to the poison.

of his lieutenants—an upraised hand.

"Madame Lemarche herself!" the Lieutenant exclaimed in a whisper. "Her emeralds! Lifted entire from her neck! It was while she was saying adieu to important friends that she missed them. It was but a minute ago."

Inspector Duane gave his orders tersely. "Block the doors!"

An instant later every detective in the house had caught the signal from some other one—the upraised arm. A determined form bulked in each doorway that opened from one room into another. Guests who happened to be in the halls were politely but firmly asked, when they attempted to pass out, or into a room, to remain in the halls. Couples caught flirting in the palm-room, in hidden corners, suddenly were showered by a flood of light and gently made to stand discovered—and to remain. Within a minute after Mme. Lemarche had whispered of her loss to the nearest man she could recognize as an agent of the Surete, all of her guests were penned in rooms from which they could not emerge. Inspector Duane himself announced:

"A theft has been committed. The emeralds of Mme. Lemarche have been taken from her neck. It is proper to assume the thief still among us. For a brief time, and with apologies of the police and of madame, you all will be inconvenienced!"

THE commotion the announcement caused did not perturb Inspector Duane. He was grimly determined to identify the thief, and was confident that she, or he, was still in the house.

With his assistants he began a systematic inspection of guests. Men and women whom he knew—famous men and women of wealth and high place—he respectfully gave into charge of an assistant, one by one, and these were escorted at once to their cars. Perhaps women of Parisian society had never known before how coldly the unimpressionable police estimate some of them individually, for there were some, that night, who had occasion to be fearfully indignant when the Inspector bowed coldly to their demands to be passed out, and refused them. One of those asked, politely, if they would not wish to depart at once, with the compliments and regrets of the police, was His Grace the Duke of Manchester, who had come over from London to attend the Lemarche ball. The Duke smiled whimsically at the Inspector.

"If you don't mind," he said, "I'd like awfully to remain for the moment. But, if I may, I should like to join the group of guests in the library and await your developments there.".

"With pleasure, your grace!" the Inspector replied. "Your grace is interested, perhaps, to see how we shall handle this matter?"

"Yes, very much," the Duke observed, and the Inspector was puzzled again by the whimsical smile around "Manchester's" lips. The official escorted him into the library and notified the agents in charge of the guests in that room to permit him to pass out at his pleasure. The thirteenth ranking Duke of the British realm is one to whom the police of Europe are invariably courteous.

A bevy of women agents shortly arrived from the Police Bureau. Calmly Inspector Duane announced that as a matter of duty each woman present should permit herself to be interrogated alone in a room set aside for the purpose. Scores of madame's intimate friends, who, like the Duke of Manchester, declined to leave the house, at once voiced their approval of this proposal and submitted themselves. Many less known guests demurred, but the police were obdurate. Men and women alike must submit to search and examination.

The proceedings occupied more than three hours. At the end of this time, when every man and woman who was not of such high standing as to be wholly above suspicion had been carefully searched, Inspector Duane was disconsolate. His elaborate plan had miscarried. The thief had escaped in a manner that made an astounding mystery.

IN THE meantime the Duke of Manchester had displayed his gallantry to many of the women in the library in the fashion so gracefully his. He helped them to make a jest of their wounded feelings, and dissuaded some of the more haughty ones from their purpose of defying the authority of the police. TOMMY was getting into his street clothing at the hotel when McGraw entered the room.

"I wish you'd come up to my room when you're dressed," said McGraw. "Your father is down in front in his car, waiting to take you home, but I want to see you first."

Tommy dressed hastily, breathlessly. His chest was swelling with the knowledge of deeds well done when he knocked upon the door of McGraw's room.

"Sit down, Tom," said McGraw.

Tommy dropped into a chair, thinking of things he would say in answer to McGraw's words of praise. Perhaps the Giant manager was going to offer him a three-year contract! Should he sign it or not? He decided he would wait and talk it over with Dorothy.

"Listen to me, son," McGraw was saying, quietly. "I'm your friend, a better friend than Jake Ryan is. You had a great day today. You set yourself solid with Waco. If you had been a failure it would have been easier for me to say what I'm going to say. But probably then I wouldn't have said it."

Tommy smiled indulgently.

"My head isn't swelled, Mr. McGraw," he assured him.

"I don't believe it is. Listen! It's a hard thing to tell you, but it's the best thing for you. Now is the time for it to come."

"Go ahead."

"You won't do in major-league baseball."

Tommy's heart jumped into his throat. His chest was tight. He could not breathe. His jaw dropped.

"I know baseball players pretty well," McGraw continued. "I knew from the start that no amount of training would make a ballplayer out of you. You're a good infielder. But the bushes are full of them. The trouble is that you'll never make a hitter. You're not built that way."

"But Mr. Ryan"——Tommy began, helplessly. His knees were trembling

The official escorted him into the library and notified the agents in charge of the guests in that room to permit him to pass out at his pleasure. The thirteenth ranking Duke of the British realm is one to whom the police of Europe are invariably courteous.

A bevy of women agents shortly arrived from the Police Bureau. Calmly Inspector Duane announced that as a matter of duty each woman present should permit herself to be interrogated alone in a room set aside for the purpose. Scores of madame's intimate friends, who, like the Duke of Manchester, declined to leave the house, at once voiced their approval of this proposal and submitted themselves. Many less known guests demurred, but the police were obdurate. Men and women alike must submit to search and examination.

The proceedings occupied more than three hours. At the end of this time, when every man and woman who was not of such high standing as to be wholly above suspicion had been carefully searched, Inspector Duane was disconsolate. His elaborate plan had miscarried. The thief had escaped in a manner that made an astounding mystery.

IN THE meantime the Duke of Manchester had displayed his gallantry to many of the women in the library in the fashion so gracefully his. He helped them to make a jest of their wounded feelings, and dissuaded some of the more haughty ones from their purpose of defying the authority of the police. To one young woman, a Belgian whose own jewels were lavish, and who was particularly charming, his grace was especially attentive. Earlier in the evening he had been presented to her in the ballroom. He remembered that Mme. Lemarche had spoken of her as a Baroness—bearer of a German title through marriage, when she was very young, to a Teuton. Her own family, she found occasion to say, was one well known in Liege, the Belgian fortress city.

The young Baroness seemed to know almost everyone. She had lived much in Paris, London and Berlin, she said, and had not allowed her widowhood to interfere with her social duties.

When the Baroness returned from her own closeting with a woman agent of police, she was smiling gayly and inclined to be merry at her own expense. The Duke went up to her at once and joined in her mood.

Inspector Duane, when he was convinced there was nothing more to be done, appeared at the library door and glumly announced that the guests would not be inconvenienced longer; that all might depart. The emeralds, he said, remained quite stolen.

"You have my condolence," Manchester said to the Inspector. "And also, I am sure, the Baroness here will express her chagrin. She has been peculiarly interested in the events tonight, I am sure."

SOMETHING in Manchester's whimsical manner puzzled the Inspector. While the Duke was speaking the officer was glancing into the smiling face of the pretty young Baroness. His quick eyes caught a shadow that flitted across that face at the Duke's last remark, and he saw, too, that she shot a look with something of fright in it at his grace of England.

"Of course I am interested," the young Baroness agreed, with a brightness that sounded hollow to the Inspector, who was conscious now of some mysterious tableau shaping before him. "We women are disappointed that our willingness to obey the gentlemen of the police has been so fruitless!" She laughed a little, but the laugh did not sound right to the Inspector.

"Madame has seen something of this sort happen before?" the police official ventured.

"Oh, no, monsieur!" the young woman exclaimed. "I cannot remember ever having participated in such an extraordinary occasion. I am dreadfully sorry for my friend, Mme. Lemarche."

"Ah, madame, my memory is better than yours," the Duke of Manchester interrupted. "And mine is a deserving tribute to your beautiful charm, dear madame, while your forgetfulness is a sign of how easily a man may come and go across the history of a pretty woman's life. May I share my triumph with our friend, the Inspector here, and tell him how I have remembered throughout the evening what madame forgot—that not three years ago she was so agreeable as to kiss me in Berlin? Or did you really forget, madame?"

Now the Inspector was in no doubt about the shadow on the girl's face and the fright in her eyes. And the Duke was not whimsical now, but rather hard and cold.

"Will your grace explain?" the Inspector asked, shortly. "There is a play of some kind. Your grace is not merely amusing!"

"No man should explain a kiss when the lady forgets it," Manchester returned, his eyes on those of the Baroness. He added, then: "But I may suggest that you confer very earnestly with Madame la Baroness, again in private, perhaps. Since you have found no one else who knows of the emeralds, it is possible she may!"

Inspector Duane's fingers fluttered at the girl's wrists. "If you please, Madame la Baroness!" he said.

She was very haughty and protestant when she faced a circle of police agents and Inspector Duane in the private room. Of Manchester and his memory she declared: "He is just a silly fool and flatters himself! I have not been in Berlin since the Baron's death."

SHE flung at the police a list of her friends and social connections, and of powerful relatives in Belgium. She even mentioned Ambassador Herrick, who, when reached by telephone, agreed that he knew the Baroness, but much more slightly than she had claimed; only as one he remembered as having been at the home of Mme. Bourget when the diamond tiara disappeared. Others of her acquaintances, strangely, knew scarcely more about her, beyond that she seemed to have a social cachet; principally because of her "Belgian family."

Inspector Duane was bothered a bit by the undoubted social standing, but he was convinced that the long-sought thief stood before him, her own throat blazing with diamonds. Despite the girl's protests he ordered that she be confined in one of the Lemarche bedrooms, with a woman agent of police close to her bedside.

The night's communications with Liege, in Belgium, discovered that the "Baroness" was quite a fraud. She was the daughter of a butcher, and had run away, not too romantically, to Germany not long after the war. From Berlin, before dawn, the wireless brought an answer to the description of her in which the Paris police referred to Manchester's whimsical reference to a "memory." "The woman you describe," this message read, "is most probably Ena Dessart, jewel thief, who obtained social acquaintance here by forged identification documents and credentials. She was detected in the theft of jewels at a function in Berlin by Manchester, who suspected her and discovered the stolen jewelry concealed in her hair. There is some recollection that he conducted himself toward her in a fond manner with intent to prove his suspicions. Manchester undoubtedly would be correct in his identification."

The Duke himself would neither confirm nor deny the Berlin message. "It is sufficient, Inspector," he insisted, "that a gentleman should not forget a charming lady whom he has kissed. Nor the theft of the jewels of a hostess."

An hour of dawn with the detectives again ranged about her, this time at her bedside, was too much for Mlle. Ena. She led the Inspector to the palmroom and, bidding him dig deeply into the earth around a huge potted cluster of green leaves, watched silently while he brought out the emeralds. It was her trick first to choose a hiding place for her proposed plunder; then to conceal it in the house until such a time as she could pay her "party call" or revisit the house in some other social manner, and find opportunity to regain her loot. She admitted proudly that it was she who had taken the pink diamond of Frau Bruck.

crowd tossed Tommy into his arms. "Attaboy!" and he helped him toward the 'bus, where grinning Giants reached out hands to help the youth who won the battle of Waco

TOMMY was getting into his street clothing at the hotel when McGraw entered the room.

"I wish you'd come up to my room when you're dressed," said McGraw. "Your father is down in front in his car, waiting to take you home, but I want to see you first."

"I don't believe it is. Listen! It's a hard thing to tell you, but it's the best thing for you. Now is the time for it to come."

"Go ahead."

"You won't do in major-league baseball."

Tommy's heart jumped into his throat. His chest was tight. He could not breathe. His jaw dropped.

"I know baseball players pretty well," McGraw continued. "I knew from the start that no amount of training would make a ballplayer out of you. You're a good infielder. But the bushes are full of them. The trouble is that you'll never make a hitter. You're not built that way."

"But Mr. Ryan"——Tommy began, helplessly. His knees were trembling and he was trying hard to keep back the tears.

"Jake's case was entirely different. He was fast on his feet. You're not. Jake could hit any kind of pitching. You're helpless in front of speed. Jake was a born baseball player; he had a wonderful eye. His only weakness was that he lacked power. So he hit short ones instead of long ones. Jake Ryan never will be able to make you a hitter. I've been watching you. I know you won't do for the major leagues. Jake would know it, too, if you hadn't married his daughter."

"Didn't I clean up today?" Tommy asked, feebly.

"You did. And it gave Jake more joy than he ever had in his life before, because you cleaned up on Spike McCann's pitching. That's why now is a good time to quit. I understand your father is rich and has a good law practice and wants to take you in."

"My father wants me to be a big-leaguer," said Tommy, pitifully.

"You'll never be one. I can't use you, even though I'm interested in you and I'd do anything for Jake. I signed you because a man that ought to know good ballplayers said you were good. He never had seen you play. He made a mistake."

"But didn't I show up Spike McCann? If I can hit him can't I hit the others? How do you figure"——

"Here comes the blow, Tommy. Spike McCann was the man who told me about you. Spike tried to get his club to take you, and they had one of their scouts look you over in a college game. He said you wouldn't do. Then Spike wrote to me. He complimented me to the extent of thinking that I might make a hitter out of you. He said you were heady. You are. And I took a chance."

Tommy wasn't hearing McGraw's last words. His brain was all befuddled.

"Spike McCann recommended me?" Tommy gasped.

"You both lived in the same town. Because you were a Waco boy he wanted you to get along."

"But I hit him all over the lot today!" Tommy retorted. "I showed him up!"

McGraw smiled.

"You can't show up McCann. Nobody can. Spike is the greatest pitcher in the business. I'd give my whole club for one like him."

"But how did it happen"——

"Spike wanted you to make good. His reputation was made and he didn't give a whoop whether or not he looked good in Waco in an exhibition game. So he pitched in the groove for you. He didn't need the hurrah stuff. You were breaking in, he thought, and he helped you. I saw it all the time. He was giving you just what he thought you wanted. Do you think you could get three hits and a sacrifice off McCann if he didn't want you to? What was it you hit in college?"

"Two thirty-four," said Tommy, dolefully.

"Do you think even Jake Ryan can take a .234 college hitter and in a couple of weeks make out of him a man who can bat a thousand when Spike McCann's in the box?"

THE tears almost came to Tommy's eyes. He felt that he had been disgraced, treated like a child whose big brother allows him to win a race down the block. Spike McCann, who had lied about Jake Ryan and driven him from baseball, had been helping Tommy along!

"Well," said Tommy, finally, "you know, Mr. McGraw, whether I'm any good or not. But it's tough to find out that my wife's father's worst enemy"—

McGraw burst out laughing.

"That was Jake's pet hobby," he said. "He thought Spike drove him out of baseball."

"Didn't he?" asked Tommy, quickly.

"It was funny—funny to everybody but old Jake. You see, Jake was made an umpire when he wasn't any good as a baseball player. He was a good umpire—as good as any of them ever get to be—until his eyes went bad and his nerves gave out. The American League kept him as an emergency umpire, a sort of pensioner's job, it was. Then they found out that Jake had about $50,000 salted away, and they released him just as Jake resigned. It was one of those things that come from two directions at once. I don't know whether the resignation or the release was first to the wire.

"What was funny about that?" Tommy demanded. "Where did McCann come in?"

"They all liked to kid Jake. One day Spike told a newspaper man that somebody had seen Jake playing a ukelele in his room at the hotel. The newspaper man printed the story. It was all over the circuit within 24 hours.

"The fans knew it and so did the players. It got so that when a player wanted to get out of a game that Jake was working in all he had to do was to go through the motions of playing one of those Hawaiian things and Jake would bounce him. Some fan would yell out to know how things were on the beach at Wai-ki-ki and they'd have to hold Jake to keep him from going up into the stand after the fan.

"The catcher, when Jake was behind the plate, would say to a batter coming up, 'Hello, Bill, Hawaii,' and Jake would be so mad he'd forget to call balls and strikes. The Hawaiian craze was just coming in and the kidders had a lot of material to work with. The players on the bench would get to singing that 'Aloha' thing, and Jake would stop the game and run them all off the field.

"One day Jimmy Torrence came to bat with one of those Hawaiian wreaths around his neck, and Jake fined him a hundred dollars. I was in the other league, of course, but I heard all about it. It's a wonder the news never got down to Texas.

"Out of the right-field stand at the Polo Grounds, when everything was quiet one day, some fan yelled, in a pleading voice, 'Come on, Jake, won't you please dance the hula for us?' Jake pretended he didn't hear. 'Come on, Jake,' the fellow yelled, 'just once, and I'll never ask you again.' And Jake threw down his chest protector and mask, went over in front of the stand, and announced that he'd give a thousand dollars if the man that said that would come down on the field. Nobody came.

"Some of the players," McGraw went on, "began writing to steamship agencies, giving Jake's address and asking for literature on Hawaii. They drove him wild. Finally the league couldn't stand for it any longer. Jake couldn't stand the gaff that a real umpire takes as a matter of course. He was a great ballplayer, but he was too worn out to be an umpire. So Jake and the League separated. That's all the story."

TOMMY smiled in spite of himself. He rose wearily.

"I'm glad you told me," he said. "It makes it a little easier to stand. You're right, Mr. McGraw. I was afraid all the time I didn't have the stuff, but I did want to make good for my father's sake and for Mr. Ryan's. Now that I think of it I guess I'll be just as happy as a lawyer as I would have been as a ballplayer."

"Certainly you will," said McGraw. Probably if your 'loving friends' hadn't urged you on so much you never would have tackled baseball. But you've made good for Jake and you're a hero to your father. You're just married. It would have been a tough life for your wife, just married and all that."

"I hate like the dickens to tell them."

"Don't!" McGraw exclaimed. "Whatever you do, don't do that! Don't break the news to Jake! Let him think he got his revenge on Spike through you. It will make him happy the rest of his life. And your father—well, you might tell your mother. I bet she can fix it."

"It doesn't seem fair—my having a reputation that I don't deserve."

"Don't worry about that," said McGraw, firmly. "In baseball you're a hero only for 24 hours. In a week Waco will have forgotten all about today's game."

Tommy wrung McGraw's hand.

"Thanks," said Tommy. "Me for the law office. I'll go down now and break the news."

"Attaboy!" said McGraw.

Tommy started toward the door and turned.

"I'd better telephone home and have mother take that ukulele of mine off the piano," he grinned, in a weak attempt to appear cheerful. He paused, his brow wrinkled. "Mr. Ryan said McCann lied about him. That was true, wasn't it? Mr. Ryan didn't play a ukulele, did he?"

"No," McGraw affirmed. "McCann did lie. It wasn't a ukulele—it was a guitar."

Tommy smiled in spite of the sorrow that weighed heavy upon his heart. "Good-by," he said again. "I know it will be all right. I'll tell Dorothy all about it. Mr. McGraw," he said, in a burst of boyish confidence, "I've got the most wonderful pal in the world—my wife. She's the finest, the brightest, most sensible person on earth. I wish you could meet her."

"I wish I could," said McGraw.

"I'm going home and tell her all about it—everything, and just what I'm going to do. I don't care what anybody else says." He blushed and his eyes were shiny with tears. "I know what she'll say, and when she says it, everything will be all right."

"What will she say?" McGraw asked.

"She'll say"—he drawled the word as if he loved every syllable, "she'll say, 'Attaboy!' "

And as if he were ashamed of the emotion he had expressed, he threw open the door and rushed out.

The Romance of the Boy Emperor of China

AND so the time passed quickly and before long after his mother's death Pu-Yi again was looking for a wife. He seems to have had his way this time. There was no meeting, no courtship such as is known in Occidental lands. But a departure that is almost the same thing was made in the choice of an Empress. Pu-Yi held a beauty contest!

He ordered the 12 most beautiful Manchu Princesses in all China to have their photographs taken and presented to him. Thus, after due consideration, the Boy Emperor chose Princess Kuo Chia Si of the obscure house of Jung, daughter of Major-General Yung Yuan and granddaughter of General Chang Hsun, both of princely Manchu blood. And the match was regarded as a love affair.

Descriptions of the little Princess declare she is the most beautiful Manchu girl in all the world. She is small and slender. Being a Manchu, she does not bind her feet, which, however, are naturally small. The Empress is quite modern in one respect at least, for, also because she is a Manchu, she uses cosmetics, including rouge, quite freely. The law of the Ching dynasty rules that only Manchus may become the wife of the Emperor, since the Ching family is a Manchu family that conquered China proper several centuries ago.

The Empress has hair of the jet-black sort so prized in the Orient. It is long and luxuriant, reaching to her knees and, therefore, it being her pride, it is doubtful whether she would bob it, even were she to get to America some day, as she wishes to do. Her features are well formed, the nose being almost aqueline. Her eyes are large and brown, gazing out from behind sheltering, heavy lashes. They are not slanting, at least not at the exaggerated angle given all Chinese in the pictures of these Orientals in the West. Her face is oval, with a softly rounded chin. She would be charming anywhere and, judged by Oriental standards, is indeed beautiful.

IN THE early hours before dawn of Dec. 1, 1922, they were married. Such pomp and splendor seldom are seen anywhere. The little Princess came to her lover carried over the yellow-sanded pathway through the Great East Gate of the Forbidden City. Yellow lanterns flickered in the darkness and a yellow moon on the wane peered down with half an eye on the proceedings.

From the top of the dragon chair of yellow silk in which she rode, a golden Phoenix, symbol of the Empress of China, spread its wings. She sat behind the drawn curtains that her face might be veiled from the public gaze, and 32 sturdy men carried her from her father's house to the palace. Golden sand along the way, yellow silk everywhere—for yellow is the "royal purple" of China—an event of such magnificence could take place only in old Pekin. And a few blocks away—for Pekin is a city of contrasts—the foreign colony of Western devils still reveled to the strains of a jazz orchestra at a modern hotel in observance of a St. Andrew's ball.

The marriage rites themselves were simple. The Empress and her Emperor sat side by side on the Dragon Bed, he on the left and she on the right. They exchanged golden cups containing wine, and pieces of soft wheat bread. The ritual is symbolic of long life and a blessing on posterity. Thus it has been done in the past. And thus it may be done in future, although it hardly seems likely. At any rate, for a time the imperial family of Ta Ching is not to die out.

The Emperor before Hsuan Tung was his uncle, Kuang Ksu. Prince Chun was the brother of Kuang Hsu and husband of the daughter of Jung Loh, first cousin of the old Empress Dowager. The Emperor Juang Hsu and the Empress Dowager died. Hsuan Tung succeeded to the throne with his own father, Prince Chun, as Regent.

Kuang Hsu's wife succeeded to the title of the Empress Dowager and later supplanted Prince Chun as Regent, holding this post at the time of the abdication in 1912. When she died this left Chin Fei, the Golden Concubine, as head of the women of the imperial household. She was virtually supreme in deciding the life of the Boy Emperor, since his own father and mother did not live inside the Forbidden City.

Chin Fei, of good blood but not of the imperial clan, insisting on dictating the life of Henry Pu-Yi and her position gave her such authority that she could override the wishes of his own father and mother. It was the quarrel with Chin Fei that resulted in the death of Princess Chun, the Boy Emperor's mother, as already told.

Following the death of the young Empress Dowager Chin Fei ruled supreme. However, the marriage of the Boy Emperor put an end to her regime. The wife is always superior to the concubine and the young Empress took precedence over Chin Fei.

What does the Boy Emperor want to do now? He says he wants to travel and see the world. The web of intrigue about him in his own country makes it imperative that he get away as soon as possible. Whether he plans or his friends plan to put him on the unstable throne again is conjectural. He is not generally believed to have the slightest desire to restore the monarchy. He was too young when he abdicated, through the Empress Dowager, to have had a taste of power. His one opportunity to realize what the life of an Emperor consists of was in 1917 when the monarchial leader. Chang Hsun, performed his coup d'etat by which the empire was restored to Pekin for a few days.

HENRY PU-YI still holds the respect of many of his people. The terms of his abdication were not unpleasant. Three decrees were issued by Lung Yu, the young Empress Dowager, who then was Regent. In the final terms of abdication the Emperor retained his title and was guaranteed by the republic the same respect due a foreign sovereign. He was to receive $4,000,000 (silver), which is about $2,000,000 a year, as compensation from the Government—not a bad pay check. But he rarely if ever got anything from the shifting Government in the republic. He has had a hard time financially in recent years.

He retained his private property by the abdication terms. This kept his court in the Forbidden City going. He had to sell a great deal of the timber and other valuable things to continue, and the throne also received gifts from loyalists from time to time.

Even these, they say, have stopped now. This is said to be the reason why Henry and Elizabeth are in Tientsin for the time being. They are "broke" and can't go anywhere else, so they say. In Japan, where Henry planned to visit, notice was given that he would be received only as an ordinary citizen and that he would have to stay at hotels anywhere he went in this country. Japan has universal manhood suffrage now, you know, and all sorts of democratic ideas. Henry apparently had expected better treatment from his old friends over here. At any rate, he hasn't come over, officially, at least. Incognito and disguised is something else again. Possibly. But hardly probably.

No, in all probability Henry and Elizabeth are sojourning in Tientsin and thinking of the days when they strolled about the Forbidden City's high pink-walled, narrow avenues and had some semblance, at least, of being somebody. And back in Pekin whence they came the intriguing thought conveyed by the Forbidden City has come to mean naught. The time is not far distant, some believe, when the private and intimate place of retirement of the Manchu Emperors will be but another sight for tourists. The alluring veil of obscurity is being dragged from the face of another historic spot of the world and the avid public gaze will tear to shreds the last remnant of really forbidden territory.

SOLDIERS invaded the innermost palaces at the order of the "Christian General" last fall. Then a commission was established with the avowed purpose to "take inventory" of the treasures of the old rulers—the priceless things of a powerful dynasty. As a result, palace porcelains are being seen at the curio fairs and stores of Pekin. Soldiers are carting out packing cases containing untold treasures taken from the palaces.

The courtyards are empty save for tremendous urns, a few litters used by the retinue, at one place a Sedan chair, gorgeously lined with shining yellow silk, used by the former Emperor—these are all that remains in sight. Utter desolation. Glory vanished without trace. Tenebrous calm. A vast sepulchre of a dead dynasty. A dead system of rule. An ancient conception lies buried. The people are supreme. Vines grow over the smaller courts, between the flagged stone courtyards.

Soldiers guard the place. They may be bandits in a new role. A soldier one day, a bandit the next, is the rule in China. Or vice versa. They destroy the final vestige of charm. Gray-clad ruffians. Visions of Rome. Vandals. Destruction and chaos. What will become of China?

The factions are in the midst of another comic-opera war. Constant strife marks the so-called Republic. The people are tiring of this ineffectual attempt to be ruled along Western ideas. They are beginning to feel that it is like many other novelties invented by the foreign barbarians outside the great wall. You can't tell what they will do, those Chinese.

But some day they are going to settle this business at Pekin, one way or the other. They wait a long time and suffer much. In the end they usually separate the wheat from the chaff pretty effectually. They want peace. They had centuries of peace until the revolution. That is a thought that comes to the countless millions now crushed under the costly heel of the militarists.

And Henry Pu-Yi, a likable young chap, is sojourning idly in Tientsin.

Preventing Is Easier Than Curing Colds

lations against that particular protein.

Like hay fever, there is a hereditary tendency in asthma. This troublesome disease sometimes dates back to a heavy cold in the head and chest. The symptoms are caused by excessive susceptibility of the bronchial mucous membrane to certain proteins, dust, bacteria, or emanations from animals—usually horses. Most of these sufferers are sensitive to some protein, the identity of which must be discovered in order that the patient may keep away from it. The majority of these cases are benefited by injections of vaccine.

In coping with colds, the most popular constitutional treatment always has been some method, and there are many, of making the patient sweat. Modern medicine has discovered nothing better than the old-fashioned way of our grandmothers, writes Dr. Cecil.

The patient takes a hot bath or a hoot foot bath, which should be continued for 20 or 30 minutes. He then drinks a hot lemonade, to which may be added a tablespoonful of brandy or whisky, and follows that with a 10-grain Dover's powder. Then he goes to bed with two or three extra blankets over him. It often happens that the patient awakens in the morning completely free from symptoms.

Concerning the chlorin treatment for colds which has been taken by President Coolidge and other prominent persons, Dr. Cecil says the reports have been so conflicting that he hesitates to pass judgment. It may prove to be of help in some of the early cases, but of doubtful value in those which have passed to the more advanced stage.

Some physicians advocate the use of vaccines in the treatment of colds. In some cases an injection has a very beneficial effect, but in others it fails. Vaccines also are employed in cold prevention but the hypodermic injections must be given every week or 10 days through the winter and spring months, without interruption. If discontinued the immunity soon vanishes, probably in two or three weeks. A method which has been successfully used in recent years by many physicians, including the author, is to immunize the patient with a vaccine prepared from the bacteria in his own throat—called an autogenous vaccine.

Dr. Cecil's advice on the treatment of colds, summarized:

Rest in bed, or at least indoors. Take a hot bath or a hot foot bath, a Dover's powder and a hot drink, and sleep under two extra blankets. Avoid any exposure to cold. Take five to ten grains of aspirin to relieve discomfort, and repeat after three or four hours if necessary. Try to check the infection by local applications of 25 per cent argyrol. Take some mild laxative. Stick to a simple diet. If you feel feverish, call in the family physician. Do not resume routine activities of life until your cold is over. If the cold hangs on, after a week or 10 days, consult a nose and throat specialist.

The Parasol Ants, Which Raise Mushrooms

A COMMUNITY of parasol ants, recently installed at the zoo, have been made to carry on their marvelous work by day shifts instead of at night, for the benefit of visitors.

The ants grow mushrooms in subterranean beds, manuring these with circular portions of leaves cut by them from rose bushes specially for the purpose, and by carrying the leaf discs over their heads they have earned the name of parasol ants, says the London Chronicle.

After the nest had been set up, not a single ant showed itself above ground during the day—much to the disappointment of visitors.

Recently, the keeper noticed each morning that fresh pieces of leaves had been cut from the rose branches supplied them, and that the orange pith given the ants as food, pending the raising of their mushroom crops, had been eaten. So, instead of introducing the food substitute each evening, he did so in the morning, taking it away at night.

This has proved so effective that the ants may now be seen cutting and carrying their "parasols" daily.

What the visitor is, unfortunately, unable to see is the work below ground, the masticating and rolling of the leaves into balls which, acted upon by damp heat, eventually become a spongy mass suited to the growth of the fungus—Rozites gongylophora.

It is stated that when the ants have formed a new bed it is inoculated with mycelium threads from the old bed, after the fashion of human mushroom growers.

The larger workers undertake the task of constructing the beds. The green leaves are brought to them, and they cut them into shreds, cleaning each by licking it, then rolling it into a little pellet and throwing it upon the heap.

Was Robinson Crusoe a Pirate?

But the Spaniards had removed their gold. Except for "jars of wine and brandy in great plenty" there was little of value found. Only two of Rogers' men had been wounded, one of him by a shot from his own pinnace.

UP THE river the pirates pursued the refugees, looking for loot,. Selkirk had been one of the attacking party, for he was given command of one of the pursuing boats. Above at one landing he found "above a dozen handsome, genteel young women, well dress'd and their hair tied with ribbands very neatly, from whom the men got several gold chains, etc., but were otherwise so civil to them that the ladies offer'd to dress 'em victuals and brought 'em a cask of good liquor."

"This I mention," says Capt. Rogers, "as a proof of our sailor's modesty and out of respect to Mr. Selkirk, late Governour of Juan Fernandez, and Mr. Connely, who commanded this party, for being young men. I was willing to do them this justice, hoping the fair sex will make 'em a grateful return when we arrive in Great Britain on account of their civil behavior to these charming prisoners."

It was a hope fulfilled. They reached England without further great adventure. Selkirk is described by Sir Richard Steele thus: "There was a strong but serious cheerfulness in his look, and a certain disregard of the ordinary things about him, as if he had been sunk in thought." He returned to Largo, where the fatted calf was killed. And there built a cave within his father's garden, that he might retire and meditate.

Then entered into the garden, not a serpent, but at least a tempter—Miss Sophia Bonce. Perhaps she had heard of Capt. Rogers' exhortation to the English "fair." She sought out the would-be hermit, dragged him forth from his Scotch cave and carried him off to Bristol. If Selkirk's return to Largo had been a sensation, this elopement was not less than scandal.

Evidently he visited London, for Steele saw him later. "Though I had frequently conversed with him," he wrote, "after a few months' absence I met him on the street; and though he spoke to me I could not recollect that I had seen him. Familiar converse had taken off the loneliness of his aspect and quite altered the air of his face."

AT BRISTOL he was once charged with assaulting one Richard Nettle, shipwright, a sad come-down for one who once had bravely assailed the flaunted banners of proud Spain. And it was in Bristol, too, he made a will, leaving his fortune and his house to his "loving friend Sophia Bonce of Pall Mall, London, spinster."

But it wasn't long until in Mrs. Frances Candis, a widow at Carston, Devon, Alexander found a lady more to the liking of his sailorman's heart. Wiser than Sophie, she grappled the privateer and towed him to a ministerial port, where the two were spliced. Two years later Selkirk was appointed mate to H. S. M. Weymouth, on which, a year later, at the age of 45, he died.

It is little of Crusoe's story one would recognize in that tale. William Dampier, pirate, privateer, naturalist and the first white man to discover Australia, provides a better clew to the identity of the real Robinson. Dampier wrote a journal while his fellow pirates were boozing and rioting and carried it on his adventures in a bamboo tube, both ends of which were plugged with wax to make it water-tight. He was commander of the expedition when Selkirk was left upon the island. He was pilot to Woodes Rogers when Selkirk was taken off. On Jan. 11, 1661, he was with Capt. John Wattling at Juan Fernandez when William, a Mosquito Indian in their company, was abandoned by the pirates, who ran before three Spanish men of war. On March 22, 1664, he was with Capt. John Cook in the Revenge when William was taken off.

In his "Capt. Singleton," "Col. Jack," "A New Voyage Around the World," and in the maritime incidents of "Moll Flanders" and "Roxana," Defoe betrays his debt to Dampier, whose voyages had been published seven years before Alexander Selkirk was landed on his desert isle.

WILLIAM, the Indian, had a gun, a knife, a small horn of powder and a few shot when he was left behind, while hunting, as his comrades fled. Which ammunition "being spent," says Dampier, "he contrived a way by notching his knife to saw the barrel of his gun into small pieces, wherewith he made harpoons, lances, hooks and a long knife." His gun flint and a piece of the barrel served as hammer and anvil. He tempered his iron with fire and shaping the pieces with stones, ground them to an edge. With these he caught fish, goats and seals, from whose skins he made fishing lines and thongs. He built a house which he lined with goatskins. For clothing he wore a skin about his waist. His bed was of the same material.

William had a brother named Robin. And Robin was with Capt. Cook when William was found.

When they landed, Robin leaped ashore, says Dampier, and running to William "threw himself flat on his face at his feet, who, helping him up and embracing him, fell flat with his face on the ground at Robin's feet, and was taken up by him also. We stood with pleasure to behold the surprise and tenderness and solemnity of this interview, which was exceedingly affectionate on both sides."

So much for William, who might be Crusoe and Man Friday in one, and who surely was an inventive and self-reliant individual. Those qualities which are key to Crusoe's character, he had, and Selkirk seems to have had them not. Nor does Defoe's moralizing fit with what we know of the dour Scot more than with the heathen William. Daniel Defoe took but part of Selkirk's story to preach a sermon. His genius made a classic. Whoever was Robinson Crusoe makes little odds. The lonely man upon the island will be dear to humanity as long as hearts are young.

How I Lost 50 Pounds
In 2 Months Without Diets, Exercise, Massage or Reducing Girdles.
"I did not have to go through strenuous exercises, nor rub myself with absurd creams, which generally put on flesh instead of taking it off. I did not wear weakening garments, nor torture myself with diets. I was fortunate enough while in Europe to find out the secret with which millionaires, French actresses and beautiful women of Paris keep their figures slender. Not only did I easily and gradually lose 50 pounds, but the reduction was lasting, as I have never gained a pound since stopping the treatment.
I feel and look years younger, and my health has greatly improved with this wonderful discovery. No matter how fat you are, you may do just as I did, and easily lose a few pounds every week without any danger. Simply go to any good drug store, get a package of SAN-GRI-NA (insist on this name, as it is the only thing I ever found to reduce), use it as per directions, and watch your weight go down. You eat all you want while you take SAN-GRI-NA. IT IS GUARANTEED ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS; the formula of a French physician, and has been used for years in private practice by leading physicians and specialists. Beware of cheap imitations. SAN-GRI-NA is the name."
On sale at any of Speckart Bros., Draper's, Enderle's, Otto's, Judge & Dolph's, Wolff-Wilson's, Johnson or Kranson Bros. drug stores, or any department store.

"SUFFERING FROM HABITUAL CONSTIPATION and weak from a recent operation, it was impossible for me to continue my social duties and club work. I dropped out of everything. I felt fagged in the morning and was nervous and irritable. Finally our family physician prescribed yeast. In three days I noticed an improvement, while in three months' time with stomach trouble and constipation conquered, vitality restored, I felt like a new person. I have now resumed all social and club activities—singing the praises of Fleischmann's Yeast."

(Mrs. D. H. Webb, Anderson, S. C.)

"OUR EIGHT YEAR OLD GIRL would lose four or five weeks of school work, besides being incapacitated while she was in school from attacks of stomach trouble. I decided to give Fleischmann's Yeast a trial. I began with half a cake mixed with peanut butter on bread, and then as I found that the yeast was going to succeed, I served it in many different ways. My child has never had another attack of stomach trouble since I gave her yeast."

(Mrs. G. A. Viele, Costa Mesa, Cal.)

What Everybody Knows

—the danger of clogged intestines
—the evils of digestive troubles and disfiguring skin eruptions
—the tragedy of lowered vitality

NOT a "cure-all," not a medicine in any sense—Fleischmann's Yeast is simply a remarkable fresh food.

The millions of tiny active yeast plants in every cake invigorate the whole system. They aid digestion—clear the skin—banish the poisons of constipation. Where cathartics give only temporary relief, yeast strengthens the intestinal muscles and makes them healthy and active. And day by day it releases new stores of energy.

Eat two or three cakes regularly every day before meals: on crackers—in fruit juices or milk—or just plain. For constipation especially, dissolve one cake in hot water (not scalding) night and morning. Buy several cakes at a time—they will keep fresh in a cool dry place for two or three days. All grocers have Fleischmann's Yeast. Start eating it today!

And let us send you a free copy of our latest booklet on Yeast for Health. Health Research Dept. 782, The Fleischmann Company, 701 Washington St., New York.

FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST

A FAMOUS FOOD for health—start eating it today

"AFTER I GAVE BIRTH to my child, I felt very much 'run down.' I lost weight, was very anemic; food would nauseate me, had constant trouble with my stomach, and what troubled me most—I suffered from terrible sties. I tried all kinds of remedies. I finally went to an eye specialist. He prescribed Fleischmann's Yeast—three cakes a day. After two months there wasn't a trace left of the sties. My complexion improved wonderfully. I no longer sit down at the table with an aversion for food. And I manage to keep and look young with the help of Fleischmann's Yeast."

(Mrs. Sarah Steinhardt, New York City)

"INVALIDED FROM ROYAL NAVY with chronic constipation. Went to India. . . . Advised to try Canada. Was just able to get into army, but after 2½ years in trenches, returned to Canada totally unfit and pensioned. In 1919 I gave Fleischmann's Yeast a fair trial, thank God. Six months afterward I passed for life insurance and my pension stopped. I am now absolutely fit and never need a laxative; and this is after over 20 years of suffering."

56-MILE WIND, HEAVY RAIN AND LIGHTNING CAUSE DAMAGE

Blinding Flash Indirectly Responsible for Death of Two Negroes When Auto Hits Building.

$500,000 LOSS TO CROPS IN COUNTY

10,000 Telephones Put Out of Order and Plate Glass Windows Are Broken—Downpour of 1.66 Inches

Excessive lightning, a wind that reached a velocity at one time of 56 miles an hour, and a downpour of rain that amounted during the night to 1.66 inches, caused damage in and around St. Louis, was indirectly responsible for two deaths, created considerable inconvenience, and more or less interruption of public utility services last night.

A blinding flash of lightning caused an automobile driver to lose control of his car at Leonard and Laclede avenues. The car hit a building and two of its negro occupants were killed and three others injured. Damage to corn, wheat and other planted fields in St. Louis County, due to the washing away of soil and fertilizer, was estimated at $500,000. In the metropolitan area 10,000 telephones were put temporarily out of order.

Church Spire Damaged.

Lightning struck a number of homes and wrought considerable damage to the tall spire of St. Roch's Catholic Church. Numerous homes and other places throughout the metropolitan area were deprived temporarily of electric service during the night, but there was no general trouble reported by the electric company, such as equipment or general supply line trouble. Street car service was slowed in the customary way by the storm, and by considerable blowing of fuses in cars.

Many automobile drivers found that the rain, driven through apertures by the wind, affected their motors, and some cars stalled. Lightning and the accumulation of rain water in the streets at many points, where sewers could not meet the demands immediately, made driving difficult for a time. Trees again were sufferers in the storm, many losing fine, big limbs in the wind, while others were struck by lightning.

In places in the city wires of the various utilities were blown down. Some plate-glass store windows were smashed. Thirty fire alarms were turned in during the night, due to small fires, or fear of fire, caused by the lightning.

Opera Performance Stopped.

The rain did not interfere with the closing performance of "Rob Roy" at the Municipal Theater in Forest Park until 10 p. m. Near the end of the second act the pastoral scene in the Scotch Highlands, with the old mill by a splashing waterfall, was deluged in a real rain and the audience made for the pergolas. After waiting half an hour, the management signaled with the lights that the show would not be resumed. Rain checks will not be honored, as the performance lasted till after 9:30 p. m.

The $500,000 estimate of damage to St. Louis County fields was made by County Agricultural Agent Hansen, who said the storm was almost unprecedented of late years in its effect of washing away quantities of soil around the roots of growing crops. On the basis of about 100,000 acres of tillable land in the county, the agent estimated that the damage was about $5 an acre. Much fertilizer on the land was washed away, he said. There was some damage to apple trees, he added.

This was the second severe blow to county farmers within five weeks. On May 24 a frost and low temperature destroyed 10 to 15 per cent of the 500,000-bushel wheat crop and wiped out most of the tomato, potato, strawberry and cherry crop, at a loss of about $700,000, Agent Hansen estimated.

After a day of threatened storm, the clouds opened with a drizzle at 8:55 o'clock last night, but the rain did not become heavy until 10 p. m. At that time the electrical display gathered intensity, until, for a time, there was an almost constant flashing of lightning, accompanied by rolls of thunder.

The rain lasted throughout the night. At 10:55 p. m. the maxi-
